Decades Of Precedent Snapped By '65 Unicam

New laws which enact a state income tax, consolidate public power districts and direct the sale of state school lands emerge as the major enactments of the amazing 1965 Legislature.

In each case, this 15th edition of the Unicameral snapped decades of precedent and tradition in reaching its decisions on the trio of issues.

And, in terms of far-ranging future effect upon the state and its citizens, the tax-power-school lands triumverate must assume the title of the Big Three of the 1965 session.

99 Major Pieces

Of the record 584 bills passed by the Legislature, fully 99 could be tabbed as pieces of major legislation.

They spread widely into the fields of taxation, government reorganization, education, politics, civil rights, capital construction and state appropriations.

The 1965 Legislature authorized the spending of $459 million during the 1965-67 biennium, including $137 million from the tax-supported state general fund.

For purposes of comparison, although budgeting changes have rendered figures less than fully comparable, the 1963 Legislature authorized $396 million in spending during the past biennium, including $93 million from the general fund.

The income tax would replace the state property tax and become effective Jan. 1, 1967, unless organized referendum efforts are successful in repealing the law at the 1966 general election.

The power consolidation—merging the wholesale electric activities of Consumers Public Power District, Loup River Public Power District and Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District—is scheduled to take effect on July 1, 1966, but it will be subjected first to a court test.

The school lands sale, enacted over the veto of Gov. Frank Morrison, will be undertaken over the next 12 years as leases on the 1.6 million acres expire.

Bread Tax 'Propaganda' Denounced; Probe Urged

Washington (AP) — The House took up the administration's farm bill Tuesday and heard a California Democrat demand an investigation of the milling and baking industries.

It also heard the Agriculture Committee's ranking Republican, Rep. Paul B. Dague of Pennsylvania, urge outright rejection of the measure because, he said, "it is not in the interest of farmers, consumers or taxpayers."

The Democrats are confident of pasaage, however, convinced that changes they will seek to make in the wheat and cotton sections will neutralize the "bread tax" complaint and remove most other major objections.

The congressional investigation of the milling and baking industries was demanded by Rep. B. F. Sisk. He said the millers and bakers have flooded Congress with "the most vicious and least factual material I have ever seen" on the wheat certificate plan.

Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., joined to condemn what she called "the propaganda war waged by the baking industry" and "one of the classic lobby performances of the year."

The object of their attack was industry claims that an increase of 50 cents in the price of certificates, which millers would have to buy with each bushel of domestic wheat, would lead to a two-cent increase in the price of bread.

Mrs. Sullivan called the charge a "half-truth." She said the wheat plan would would have increased somewhat the price of bread ingredients.

She commended, therefore, a decision by the Democratic leadership to offer an amendment providing treasury payment of the 50-cent increase.

"This," Mrs. Sullivan said, "pulls the teeth from this price rising squeeze."

Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., has planned to offer the amendment, but the chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, Rep. Harold D. Cooley, D-N.C., now will introduce it by agreement.

Of the Democratic leaders' decision, Quie told a reporter:

"They saw this bread tax argument mushrooming to where they could lose the whole bill on the floor."

Sisk, in his floor speech, said most of the information on the bill put out by the milling and baking industries is "pure poppycock and as phony as a $3 bill."

He said he is introducing a resolution calling for a select congressional committee to investigate the industries for "antitrust and monopoly practices."

"What they do affects every housewife," Sisk said. "They are a giant monopoly out to feather their own nests."

Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., said, "There are many other bad things in the bill beides a bread tax."

Vicious Material

Anderson attacked Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and views on the bill advanced by the Agriculture Department.

"All the bilge has not been on one side," Anderson said. "Maybe we should investigate some of his ideas and the use of federal money to lobby."

Arguing for passage of the bill, Cooley said, "The bakers will have no excuse to increase their prices on enactment of this law. The bakers have no right to squawk. They ought to be delighted."

Arguing against passage, Dague said he "just can't believe" the cost of the farm programs would go down under the bill.

State Hospital Escapee Caught After Ax Threat

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County deputy sheriffs apprehended an 18-year-old Lincoln State Hospital escapee after he had threatened a Lincoln family with a long-handled ax Tuesday.

Mrs. Dwight King of 2250 So. Burlington Ave. called the sheriff's office immediately upon running back into the house after she and her three children and sister-in-law were forced into her car by the escapee carrying the ax.

According to Sheriff Merle Karnopp, the woman saw the man standing by her kitchen door and he asked whose car was parked outside.

When she responded it was hers, he told her she was going with him and he forced her and the children and the sister-in-law, Mrs, Walter Broer, out of the house and into the car.

Mrs. King said she told him they would go if he would promise not to hurt them. The escapee said if she would back the car out onto Burlington and face it north, he would let them go if she would promise not to call the police.

After Mrs. King backed the car out, the escapee drove northward and apparently crashed the car on the Burlington hump viaduct.

Deputies Percy Wilcox and Harlan Kendle apprehended the man who was running across a field west of the viaduct.

Karnopp said State Hospital officials said they had planned to put the inmate in maximum security Tuesday when they discovered he was missing.

Rural Utica Boy Dies In Accident

Utica (AP) — A seven-year-old rural Utica boy was killed Tuesday when the car his mother was driving went off the highway near Utica and overturned. The victim was Dennis Cain.

Mrs. Lee Cain, another small boy and a small girl were treated at Seward and released, the sheriff's office at Seward said.

Ministers To Meet

Ottawa (AP) — The Canada-Japan ministerial committee will meet here Sept. 23-24, Foreign Secretary Paul Martin announced, to exchange views on matters of common interest, mainly economic. It will be the fourth meeting since the committee was formed in 1961 and the first since a session in Tokyo last September.

Callan Predicts Farm Bill Okay By Large Vote

Washington (AP) — Rep. Clair Callan, D-Neb., said Tuesday he believes the farm bill will not only pass the House but probably by the largest vote any farm legislation has received in recent years. The reason, he said, is the compromise decided upon by House democratic leaders Monday night.

The compromise is for direct government payments as a substitute for a proposed certificate plan as a means of financing wheat provisions of the bill.

"I believe the farmers won a major victory," Callan, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, told a reporter. "And even though many of us would like to see the certificate plan go into effect we are now assured of additional farm income. This is our main goal."

Approve School Aid Proposal

. . . IN CLOSING ACTION

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The longest legislative session in Nebraska state history concluded Tuesday after adding another blockbuster to its long list of explosive achievements.

Lawmakers voted to place on the 1966 general election ballot a proposed constitutional amendment which would require a program of state aid to education once a state income or general sales tax becomes effective in Nebraska.

The proposed amendment, contained in LB341, would also provide that the state may continue to finance capital construction projects with a property tax after an income or sales tax takes effect.

At Least 20%

At least 20% of the revenue derived from the broadened tax base would be channeled into state aid to public schools.

The bill won 34-12 approval, and the proposed amendment becomes the 17th constitutional question which will be placed before the electorate in 1966.

Also approved on the 1965 session's final day was a second legislative reapportionment act. See story on Page 15.

Final adjournment came at 3:10 p.m. on the 149th legislative day of the 75th session upon a motion offered by Sen. Ross Rasmussen of Hooper.

584 New Laws

With enactment of seven additional bills, the record-shattering total of new laws approved by the 1965 Unicameral reached 584. The number considered, also an all-time high, peaked at 937

True to its form over the past 7½ months, the Legislature swept through major debate even in its final hours.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff attempted to revive his Resolution 48, which would have the effect of taxing intangible property held by banks, building and loan associations and insurance companies. His effort was rebuffed on a 13-27 vote.

Changes Proposed

Five changes in the legislative rules were proposed, and all but one was beaten down.

At the end, Carpenter arose to pay tribute to his colleagues for "moving this state forward" through a stream of major legislative achievements.

This, he said, is "the term I've been looking for." It is Carpenter's fifth.

Omaha, Lincoln Aid

Final reading action on LB341 was achieved with the aid of seven Omaha senators and four Lincoln lawmakers. Thirty votes were required to pass the measure.

Never during its long and difficlt journey across the legislative board had the bill previously garnered sufficient strength to guarantee its enactment.

If the amendment is eventually approved by the voters —and if the income tax were to become effective on Jan. 1, 1967, as now scheduled—the 1967 Unicameral would be forced to adopt a program of state aid to education.

Modify Amendment

The proposal, in effect, would modify the Duis Amendment to the state constitution, which now prohibits the state from levying any property tax once the tax base is broadened.

Senators who voted against the proposal were Elvin Adamson of Valentine, S. H. Brauer Sr. of Norfolk, Peter Claussen of Leigh, Cecil Craft of North Platte, William Hasebroock of West Point, Sam Klaver of Omaha, Maurice Kremer of Aurora, Frank Nelson of O'Neill, Herb Nore of Genoa, Ira Paine of Grand Island, Chet Paxton of Thedford, and William Wylie of Elgin.

One bill, LB927, proposing formatin of six health regions in the state, failed to clear final reading. The vote was 17-27.

Unacceptable

Its chief sponsor, Senator Carpenter, said the bill had been rendered unacceptable by floor amendments.

Among other bills which received final approval was LB332, the new comprehensive noxious weed control program which had earlier won legislative approval only to be recalled for amendments.

The measure won 26-17 passage.

Armed Peace Rules Riot Area

Los Angeles (AP) — Armed peace ruled in the fire-scarred Los Angeles Negro section Tuesday after six days of riot. Gov. Edmund G. Brown lifted a curfew which had blacked out 46 square miles for three nights.

But Dr. H. H. Brookins, Negro chairman of the United Civil Rights Committee representing civil rights groups in Los Angeles, called Brown's order somewhat premature because of "continued rumbling." He asked the governor to reconsider.

The National Guard relieved 2,500 troops from riot duty. But 12,500 combat troops remained. Police will continue on 12-hour shifts.

These actions followed 24 hours without a killing.

Signs Of Normalcy

Signs of normal life began to return to the area surrounding the Negro community of Watts where the riot erupted Wednesday after white police arrested a young Negro for drunken driving.

Emergency food supplies were distributed under Guard protection. Food stores reopened. Clerks wore sidearms in some. Guardsmen patrolled others.

Partial daytime bus service was restored. Mail was delivered to buildings that escaped the mobs torch. Banks reopened. More reopenings were announced for Wednesday. Cleanup of glass-littered streets started as county employes went back to work in the area.

Riot Twist To Game

Negro children played cops and robbers, with riot-type variations.

In another section of the city courts speeded the processing of 3,352 persons arrested. After the processing of 100 Monday, 300 were ordered into court to plead Tuesday and 500 were scheduled for Wednesday.

It's the biggest court parade in U.S. history of persons arrested in an outbreak of violence. Possible penalties include up to 20 years for arson and 1 to 15 years for looting.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. flew into Los Angeles for a series of consultations. The civil rights leader said he wanted to help "redeem, despite their guilt," Negro rioters and "help them find a useful place in a good society in which they can share as equals."

'Rehearsal For Revolution'

Evangelist Billy Graham looked over the battered Negro section from a helicopter and then described the riot as "a dress rehearsal for a revolution."

Police Chief William H. Parker, favorite target of Negroes in the riot area, commented: "Unless this community and the nation can learn the lesson in this holocaust—that no society can exist without law enforcement—then the next time it happens they will take the whole city."

In Washington government officials said Los Angeles and Chicago had passed up a summer-long federal project designed to avert racial strife. Los Angeles Mayor Samuel Yorty was described as not interested in, but not flatly rejecting, participation in the program by President Johnson's Council on Equal Opportunities.

Yorty said he did not recall ever being contacted by the agency. He said it was "absolutely untrue" that the agency had picked Los Angeles as a potential racial trouble spot this summer.

Collins Wanted

Brown conferred with Yorty Tuesday and then asked Johnson to send Leroy Collins to California for consultation on the Los Angeles racial situation. Brown said Collins "has an enviable record in easing tensions in American communities."

Brown has promised to name a seven-man blue-ribbon commission to find out why the riots occurred and how to prevent their happening again.

The rioters feel no remorse about what they have done, a Negro psychologist reported. "They look upon it as a revolt, rather than a riot," said Dr. Harold W. Jones, psychiatrist assigned to the area by the county mental health department.

Violence Elsewhere

More racial violence was reported during the night in other widely scattered Southern California communities than in the riot center.

Twenty-five young Negroes set a furniture store afire early Tuesday in San Bernardino, 50 miles east of Los Angeles.

In San Diego, 125 miles to the south, three whites were arrested after nine gasoline bombs were hurled in predominantly Negro areas. Two white TV newsmen were beaten by 15 Negroes. Police have arrested 75 persons since the first racial outbreak Sunday.

Six fire bombs were thrown in Santa Ana, 40 miles south of Los Angeles.

Bomb Clues Sought In Crash Of Jetliner

Chicago (AP)—Search boats fished bodies out of Lake Michigan Tuesday while investigators hunted the reason why a United Air Lines jet plane crashed into the lake carrying 30 persons to their death.

Six bodies were recovered, along with pieces of wreckage of a sleek, new Boeing 727—a type of craft that never before had crashed.

United Air Lines said the bodies identified were those of Sanford Horwitz, 13, of Great Neck, Long Island, N.Y., Kal..an Musin, 44, Des Moines, Iowa; Robert Charles Zabor, 40, Greenwich, Conn. and Miss Barbara Cartwright, 32, of Bedford Heights. Ohio.

The FBI, the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) and the company declined to speculate on the possibility that a bomb had blasted the jet airliner out of the sky just minutes away from a routine touchdown Monday night.

Explosion Before Plunge

Witnesses on the shore reported there had been a flash of light and an explosion before the plunge.

Paul Driscoll, an Associated Press reporter, was in a search boat which received a radio message from the Coast Guard cutter Woodbine to "look for seats or portions of seats" and disregard other kinds of debris for the time being.

The implied significance is that seats are over the luggage and cargo compartments in that type of plane. And a bomb—if there was one — might have been secreted in baggage or packages.

The hunt was centered about 17 miles northeast of Ft. Sheridan, a military base 25 miles north of Chicago.

The doomed flight—No. 389 —made only initial contact with approach control at O'Hare International Airport in Chicago as it headed for the finish of its New York-Chicago run.

No Trouble Indicated

Usually contact is made several times, said George Niles, chief controller for the Federal Aviation Agency in Chicago. But this time there was only one, and Niles said there was no indication of trouble.

The plane was over the lake, just five to six minutes away from its scheduled arrival at 9:27 p.m. CDT. The air was calm. Visibility was good. And, apparently, Capt. Melville W. Towle, 42, of Wyckoff, N.J., was bringing in his crew and passengers for a routine landing.

The Boeing 727 he commanded had been delivered just 10 weeks ago. Service with these three-engine planes was started in December 1963. A total of 160 of them are in use on several airlines.

One of the 24 passengers was Clarence L. (Clancy) Sayen of Seattle. His life ended in an ironic twist Sayen, who was president of the Air Line Pilots Association from 1951 to 1962, was a tireless worker for air safety.

Six bodies were recovered, along with pieces of wreckage of a sleek, new Boeing 727—a type of craft that never before had crashed.

United Air Lines said the bodies identified were those of Sanford Horwitz, 13, of Great Neck, Long Island, N.Y., Kal[illegible]an Musin, 44, Des Moines, Iowa; Robert Charles Zabor, 40, Greenwich, Conn., and Miss Barbara Cartwright, 32, of Bedford Heights, Ohio.

The FBI, the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) and the company declined to speculate on the possibility that a bomb had blasted the jet airliner out of the sky just minutes away from a routine touchdown Monday night.

Explosion Before Plunge

Witnesses on the shore reported there had been a flash of light and an explosion before the plunge.

Paul Driscoll, an Associated Press reporter, was in a search boat which received a radio message from the Coast Guard cutter Woodbine to "look for seats or portions of seats" and disregard other kinds of debris for the time being.

The implied significance is that seats are over the luggage and cargo compartments in that type of plane. And a bomb—if there was one — might have been secreted in baggage or packages.

The hunt was centered about 17 miles northeast of Ft. Sheridan, a military base 25 miles north of Chicago.

The doomed flight—No. 389—made only initial contact with approach control at O'Hare International Airport in Chicago as it headed for the finish of its New York-Chicago run.

No Trouble Indicated

Usually contact is made several times, said George Niles, chief controller for the Federal Aviation Agency in Chicago. But this time there was only one, and Niles said there was no indication of trouble.

The plane was over the lake, just five to six minutes away from its scheduled arrival at 9:27 p.m. CDT. The air was calm. Visibility was good. And, apparently, Capt. Melville W. Towle, 42, of Wyckoff, N.J., was bringing in his crew and passengers for a routine landing.

The Boeing 727 he commanded had been delivered just 10 weeks ago. Service with these three-engine planes was started in December 1963. A total of 160 of them are in use on several airlines.

One of the 24 passengers was Clarence L. (Clancy) Sayen of Seattle. His life ended in an ironic twist. Sayen, who was president of the Air Line Pilots Association from 1951 to 1962, was a tireless worker for air safety.

Approve School Aid Proposal

. . . IN CLOSING ACTION

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The longest legislative session in Nebraska state history concluded Tuesday after adding another blockbuster to its long list of explosive achievements.

Lawmakers voted to place on the 1966 general election ballot a proposed constitutional amendment which would require a program of state aid to education once a state income or general sales tax becomes effective in Nebraska.

The proposed amendment, contained in LB341, would also provide that the state may continue to finance capital construction projects with a property tax after an income or sales tax takes effect.

At Least 20%

At least 20% of the revenue derived from the broadened tax base would be channeled into state aid to public schools.

The bill won 34-12 approval, and the proposed amendment becomes the 17th constitutional question which will be placed before the electorate in 1966.

Also approved on the 1965 session's final day was a second legislative reapportionment act. See story on Page 15.

Final adjournment came at 3:10 p.m. on the 149th legislative day of the 75th session upon a motion offered by Sen. Ross Rasmussen of Hooper.

Lawmakers have been in session since Jan. 5.

584 New Laws

With enactment of seven additional bills, the record-shattering total of new laws approved by the 1965 Unicameral reached 584. The number considered, also an all-time high, peaked at 937.

True to its form over the past 7½ months, the Legislature swept through major debate even in its final hours.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff attempted to revive his Resolution 48, which would have the effect of taxing intangible property held by banks, building and loan associations and insurance companies. His effort was rebuffed on a 13-27 vote.

Changes Proposed

Five changes in the legislative rules were proposed, and all but one was beaten down.

At the end, Carpenter arose to pay tribute to his colleagues for "moving this state forward" through a stream of major legislative achievements.

This, he said, is "the term I've been looking for." It is Carpenter's fifth.

Omaha, Lincoln Aid

Final reading action on LB341 was achieved with the aid of seven Omaha senators and four Lincoln lawmakers. Thirty votes were required to pass the measure.

Never during its long and difficlt journey across the legislative board had the bill previously garnered sufficient strength to guarantee its enactment.

If the amendment is eventually approved by the voters—and if the income tax were to become effective on Jan. 1, 1967, as now scheduled—the 1967 Unicameral would be forced to adopt a program of state aid to education.

Modify Amendment

The proposal, in effect, would modify the Duis Amendment to the state constitution, which now prohibits the state from levying any property tax once the tax base is broadened.

Senators who voted against the proposal were Elvin Adamson of Valentine, S. H. Brauer Sr. of Norfolk, Peter Claussen of Leigh, Cecil Craft of North Platte, William Hasebroock of West Point, Sam Klaver of Omaha, Maurice Kremer of Aurora, Frank Nelson of O'Neill, Herb Nore of Genoa, Ira Paine of Grand Island, Chet Paxton of Thedford, and William Wylie of Elgin.

One bill, LB927, proposing formatin of six health regions in the state, failed to clear final reading. The vote was 17-27.

Unacceptable

Its chief sponsor, Senator Carpenter, said the bill had been rendered unacceptable by floor amendments.

Among other bills which received final approval was LB332, the new comprehensive noxious weed control program which had earlier won legislative approval only to be recalled for amendments.

The measure won 26-17 passage.

NUCLEAR PROLIFERATION . . .

Russians Give Treaty Brushoff

Geneva (AP) — The United States proposed Tuesday a world treaty to stop additional nations from becoming nuclear powers The Soviet Union brushed the proposal aside as a joke and said it is not worthy of discussion

In a message to the 17-nation disarmament conference which received the U.S. proposal, President Johnson said the peace of the world requires such a treaty.

Johnson said the fate of generations yet unborn" is in the hands of this Geneva disarmament conference

The American draft was formally approved by the three other Western nations in the conference — Canada, Italy and Britain

British Lukewarm

But the British support was lukewarm and failed to conceal sharp backstage differences within the Western group

The draft was submitted to the conference by chief U.S. negotiator William C. Foster

Its key article called on each nuclear power to undertake "not to transfer any nuclear weapons into the national control of any non-nuclear state, either directly or indirectly through a military alliance, and each undertakes not to take any other action which would cause an increase in the total number of states and other organizations having independent power to use nuclear weapons."

This wording sought to allow the West to go ahead with its projected North Atlantic nuclear force

Exclusion Of Germany

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin told newsmen Russia never would consider any treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons unless it explicitly banned any arrangement which could give West Germany direct or indirect access to the control of nuclear weapons

Western differences over the draft also revolved around the projected Atlantic force.

British delegate Lord Chalfont told a news conference the original British draft specified that the Western nuclear powers would never abandon their veto on the use of nuclear weapons by such a force

This provision met with vigorous opposition, however, from the Bonn government West Germany takes no part in the conference but is represented by an official observer, Swidbert Schnippenkoetter

U.S. Bowed To Bonn

The United States bowed to the West German objections and refused to go along with the original British draft

As a result the British delegation withdrew from sponsorship of its own proposal which was then put forward under American auspices

One Western delegate said the argument among the Western powers was "purely academic" because Soviet rejection of the whole draft was regarded in advance as a virtual certainty.

Chalfont said the draft failed "to rule out the possibility that an association of states might be set up with the capacity to make use of nuclear weapons by the decision of a majority of its members, in other words without the veto of an existing nuclear power."

TURNCOAT, FAMILY LEAVE RED CHINA

Korean War turncoat William C. White, 35, of Plummerville, Ark., his Chinese wife and their children, John, 6, and Ann, 4, walk across the border from Red China into Hong Kong Tuesday. Ex-Cpl. White was one of 21 Americans who were captured during the Korean War and decided to stay with their Chinese captors. He said, "I want to go home. I want to see my mother." White, who said he has not betrayed the United States, termed himself ready to fight for the U.S. in Viet Nam if called upon. Once he gets home, White said, he may teach Chinese.

LBJ Urges Latins To Adopt Common Market Idea

. . . TO SPEED SUCCESS OF 'ADVENTUROUS' ALLIANCE FOR PROGRESS

Washington (AP) — President Johnson suggested Tuesday that Latin American nations adopt the European Common Market idea to seed trade and social progress, and to hasten success of the Alliance for Progress.

Speaking on the fourth anniversary of the alliance, Johnson pledged continuing U.S. aid and help for Latin America in finding markets for its exports at fair prices.

Latin American diplomats attending the White House ceremony termed Johnson's speech the most understanding and praiseworthy he has made on hemisphere affairs since assuming the presidency.

"It was a tremendous speech," said Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa, ambassador of Nicaragua and dean of the diplomatic corps.

Greatest applause came when Johnson announced that the United States would help Latin America find markets for its commodity exports, and that he is recommending abandonment of a plan to put a special import fee of one cent a pound on sugar imports.

The President called the alliance the greatest adventure for the Americas since the discovery voyage of Christopher Columbus in the 1490s.

He laid great stress on the Common Market type of cooperation in trade and development among Latin American nations. The President commented that while Latin America as a whole had achieved a 2.5% rate of production growth in 1964, and apparently would do at least as well this year, the Central American republics, where a common market plan is well advanced, showed a 7% growth rate in 1964.

The President urged adoption of the multination approach on such projects as road systems, river development, communications, and production of fertilizers, pesticides and other products needed to boost farm output.

He added, "Factories and banks and dollars do not alone build a nation. People build a nation.

"And on those people, on their health and their knowledge and their faith, their participation and their sacrifice, rests the future of all of us and the future of all nations."

Hike In Beet Sugar Quota Asked By Administration

Washington (UPI) — The administration Tuesday asked Congress to extend the sugar act to 1971. It recommended giving Latin American producers a bigger share of the U.S. market and elimination of the controversial import fee on foreign sugar.

Under the proposal, developing countries would divide any increase in U.S. needs beyond 9,700,000 tons and less than 10,400,000 tons. This increase would be divided after the Philippines received 10.86% of any increase.

The elimination of the import fee would mean a saving of nearly $20 million to Latin American producers and several million for producers in other parts of the world.

Retroactivity Asked

The administration recommended that the increase in basic domestic quotas—the amount that can be marketed — should be retroactive through last Jan 1

The Agriculture Department said the quotas would enable U.S. mainland producers to continue marketing nearly the same amount of sugar they are now producing from the restricted 1965 crop.

Under the proposed bill, the domestic quotas, based on a national consumption level of 9 7 million tons, would be:

—Beet sugar area, 3,025,000 tons, an increase of 375,000 tons

—Mainland cane sugar area, 1,100,000 tons, an increase of 205,000 tons

The total domestic quota, including quotas for the beet sugar area, mainland cane sugar area, Hawaii Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, would be 6,390,000 tons. The quota provisions for Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands would be the same as in the present law.

The Philippines quota would remain at 1,050,000 tons.

Marine Engineers, Ship Owners Settle

Washington (AP)—Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz announced Tuesday that agreement has been reached on all issues in dispute between ship owners and marine engineers, one of three unions whose strike has tied up some 100 merchant ships on the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts

After announcing the settlement of what had been considered a key dispute in the strike, Wirtz went back into negotiations between the ship owners and the two other striking unions. There was no indication whether agreement was close Agreement between the AFL-CIO National Marine Engineers Beneficial Association and the American Merchant Marine Institute came after nearly 24 hours of continual bargaining.

Wirtz declined to reveal details of the settlement pending formal drawing up of the contract, but he said "it represents complete acceptance of the President's recommendation"

President Johnson had urged the unions to go back to work while a special panel headed by Wirtz and AFL-CIA President George Meany worked out a settlement of the key issue of how many engineers should be employed on automated ships.

Mississippi Vote Eases Registration

Jackson, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi voters gave a surprisingly strong stamp of approval Tuesday to Gov. Paul B Johnson's constitutional amendment to ease voter registration requirements in this deep South state

The result was interpreted as a vote of confidence in the moderate approach Johnson has taken in the state's dealings with the federal government on the voting issue.

With 80% of the vote counted the amendment was running ahead 110 886 for to 43 426 against

"This vote is evidence of the desire of all the people of this state to continue a positive approach to all our problems" Johnson said

The amendment removes from the state constitution requirements that a voter applicant must be of good moral character, be able to interpret the constitution and define the duties of citizenship. It permits the legislature to set new requirements at its discretion.

The amendment proposal led from the start in the special referendum The outcome was not in doubt from the time the first returns were reported

Only a few counties went against the amendment. Among them was Adams (Natchez) in the southwest a hotbed of Ku Klux Klan activity Another county which opposed the proposal was Lauderdale where Meridian —the state's second largest city—is located.

Wagner's endorsement was expected to make Screvane the favorite to capture the Democratic nomination from his three chief opponents — City Comptroller Abraham Beame Rep William F Ryan, and City Councilman Paul O'Dwyer, brother of a former mayor

The winner of the Democratic nomination will oppose Rep John Lindsay, a Republican.

Red Try To Infiltrate Da Nang Base Fails

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP)—Alert U.S. Marines smashed an attempt by Communist guerillas early Wednesday to infiltrate the strategic Da Nang Air Base, a U.S. military spokesman said.

Two Viet Cong were killed. There were no American casualties, he said..

The infiltration attempt came just a day after the Marines fought off a band of about 40 screaming guerrillas who attacked a Marine tank unit three miles southwest of Da Nang. In that engagement, the Marines estimated they killed 26, while reporting no casualties of their own. The Red battle cries were "Yankee go home" and "You die" A spokesman said the fleeing survivors left six bodies behind

To Barbed Wire

Early Wednesday 10 to 12 of the Viet Cong reached the barbed wire outer perimeter of the base, 380 miles north of Saigon before they were discovered Several clashes broke out and intermittent firing continued for about two hours

The base, heavily guarded by the Marines, is considered a prime target for the Viet Cong since air strikes are mounted there against enemy targets in both North and South Viet Nam. Despite the heavy security, military sources concede the difficulty of making the base completely secure against attack.

The attempt at Da Nang was one of several Viet Cong-initiated incidents No casualties were reported in any of the attacks The spokesman listed the following

An ammunition dump at Pleiku, 235 miles north of Saigon, came under small arms fire for about 10 minutes

The Special Forces camp at Duc Co, about 30 miles west of Pleiku, was hit by mortar fire

Phu Hun outpost about five miles east of Saigon was attacked, but artillery fire was called in and the attack driven back.

Tuesday government troops shot up a Viet Cong company 30 miles south of the border and boosted to 32 the toll of guerrillas killed in a dog days drive launched last weekend, a U.S. military spokesman said.

Elements of the 1st U.S Infantry Division, based near the Bien Hoa Air Base 12 miles northeast of Saigon, were credited with their first confirmed kill A briefing officer said a guerrilla was shot and fatally wounded in a fire-fight between U.S soldiers and a five-man Communist patrol

Government troops operating 140 miles southwest of Saigon near the nation's tip were reported to have killed seven Viet Cong and captured seven. Vietnamese losses were described as very light

Medics Pronounce Cooper, Conrad 'Fit, Ready To Go'

Cape Kennedy Fla (AP)—The final go-ahead for Thursday's launching of the Gemini 5 spaceship on its eight-day orbital voyage was given Tuesday night by mission director E. E Christensen

Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. passed a last, thorough physical examination and were reported "fit and ready and rearing to go" by Dr. Charles A. Berry, director of Gemini medical operations.

Weather conditions offer no problem, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said. The tracking network is in good operating conditions, and forces waiting to recover the astronauts were on station.

The green light for the launch at 8 a.m. CST was given after the astronauts and Neil Armstrong and Elliott See Jr. — went through an hours-long review of the entire mission

For 4½ hours, the astronauts underwent careful scrutiny by flight surgeons and specialists. Afterwards, Dr. Berry said both crews "are in condition to fly eight days."

Berry said Conrad, Cooper and Armstrong had recovered completely from a flu-like condition each suffered early this month The condition had not been revealed previously.

The illness was not serious, and was cleared up when the astronauts stayed close to their quarters for a couple of days, Berry said. They were not put too bed.

The Titan 2 launching rocket, the spacecraft and the worldwide tracking range checked out okay, and there was no doubt that Cooper and Conrad would pass all tests for the scheduled blastoff at 8 a.m. CST Thursday.

Only the weather and a new power system in the spacecraft left some lingering doubts. If anything is to delay the flight, rocketeers felt, it will be the power system.

Two 68-pound fuel cell sections will power the spacecraft, replacing the storage batteries previously used. For an eight-day flight, batteries would weigh 12 times more than the fuel cells, more than the Gemini 5 could handle.

Medics Pronounce Cooper, Conrad 'Fit, Ready To Go'

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP)—The final go-ahead for Thursday's launching of the Gemini 5 spaceship on its eight-day orbital voyage was given Tuesday night by mission director E. E. Christensen.

Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. passed a last, thorough physical examination and were reported "fit and ready and rearing to go" by Dr. Charles A. Berry, director of Gemini medical operations.

Weather conditions offer no problem, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said. The tracking network is in good operating conditions, and forces waiting to recover the astronauts were on station.

The green light for the launch at 8 a.m. CST was given after the astronauts and Neil Armstrong and Elliott See Jr. — went through an hours-long review of the entire mission.

For 4½ hours, the astronauts underwent careful scrutiny by flight surgeons and specialists. Afterwards, Dr. Berry said both crews "are in condition to fly eight days."

Berry said Conrad, Cooper and Armstrong had recovered completely from a flu-like condition each suffered early this month. The condition had not been revealed previously.

The illness was not serious, and was cleared up when the astronauts stayed close to their quarters for a couple of days, Berry said. They were not put too bed.

The Titan 2 launching rocket, the spacecraft and the worldwide tracking range checked out okay, and there was no doubt that Cooper and Conrad would pass all tests for the scheduled blastoff at 8 a.m. CST Thursday.

Only the weather and a new power system in the spacecraft left some lingering doubts. If anything is to delay the flight, rocketeers felt, it will be the power system.

Two 68-pound fuel cell sections will power the spacecraft, replacing the storage batteries previously used. For an eight-day flight, batteries would weigh 12 times more than the fuel cells, more than the Gemini 5 could handle.

Willie's 78th Birthday Big Angus Whingding

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Angus — Willie just meant to roast a few wieners for the kids, but his 78th birthday turned into this hamlet's biggest wingding in decades

Close to 90 people showed up—three times the town population. A bachelor who chose to retire in the Nuckolls County town of his birth, William G. Taylor had never had such a party

"I didn't intend it as a party for myself, but I had this big brush pile that had to be burned and . . . "explained the honoree, a bit stunned by it all.

The fact that Willie is one of the town's oldest residents is only one reason the affair snowballed. Mrs. Wayne McClure's kingsize cake was also a tribute to one of the town's best-liked —and to one of the few employes still around from the old Angus Automobile Company.

"The factory started in 1907 and I only worked there a year or so, but there was a bit of a boom the few years it was open," recalled the former railway mail clerk "The town was some bigger then, but 150 was about the limit, near as I can remember."

Technically, even Willie is no longer an Angus resident since taking a room in nearby Edgar. But his daytime headquarters usually is the old Angus bank building which he bought to house a few antiques and memoirs.

Among the items richest in meaning, if not antiquity, is his new pen and pencil set. It was Willie's birthday present from youngsters of the community.

Sally Blames Lack Of Scissors For Unsuitable Omaha Costume

Omaha (UPI)—Fan dancer Sally Rand said Tuesday she would have been more suitably dressed for a performance in Omaha, except that she couldn't find a pair of scissors with which to make a

Sally, accused of doing her act in her birthday suit, said in Municipal Court that she usually makes an under-the-gown costume each time she does a show. However, this time she said she couldn't find the scissors with which to cut out the costume

Sally denied the charge that she did her July 9 act at Mickey's Night Club in the nude.

Patrolman Vern Prescher of the Omaha vice squad disagreed, however. He said Sally began her act in a white gown with a pair of fans and finished in the nude He said she was wearing the gown for one moment and the next instant it was gone.

When Sally took the stand she testified she had been doing the same act since 1932 and had never been convicted

"I was wearing shoes and fans and other intimate articles which I don't want to discuss in public," she said

While other persons testified, Sally did what came naturally in the hot courtroom —fanned herself

O'Neill (AP)—Rural voters in the Atkinson, Stuart and Amelia areas voted 434 to 355 for creation of a Class 6 school district in western Holt County. Atkinson and Stuart have their own high schools and voters in the towns did not take part in the election. No site has been designated for the new school.

Auto Driven By Relative Kills North Platte Tot

North Platte (AP) — A 17-months-old North Platte boy died in a North Platte hospital following an accident in front of his home at the western edge of the city Monday night.

He was identified as Michael Schulz, the son of Mrs. Carol Anne Schulz

The Lincoln County sheriff's office said the child was playing in the street in front of his home when a relative who was visiting, Guy J Mills, 18, Wichita, Kan., drove away. Mills was quoted as saying he did not see the child but felt the wheels pass over the boy.

Civil Rights, Viet Nam Struggles Will Likely Continue For Over Decade, Seaton Warns

Chicago (AP) — Fred Seaton, secretary of interior in the Eisenhower cabinet, said Tuesday the struggle for civil rights and the fighting in Viet Nam "may take a decade, or two or more to resolve"

Seaton publisher of the Hastings Neb Tribune, told the 52nd convention of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars that these are the two great struggles in which our nation is presently engaged"

"The first is the continuing internal struggle to bring about a full realization of civil rights for all our citizens.

"The other is our continuing and absolutely necessary resistance to communist encroachment by stealth, subversion and war in Southeast Asia"

Seaton said the "scene of action" in the Vietnamese conflict "may broaden at any time because the decision rests solely with the forces of international communism —an atheistic, shockingly effective conspiracy against the God-given fundamental rights of mankind"

He said "obstructionism of one sort or another" is hampering the government's efforts in both struggles

Seaton said the civil rights effort suffers because of the zealots who wilfully break civil laws and defy authority in their misguided attempts to advance either cause." The Ku Klux Klan" and their kind "... self-annointed intellectuals, beatniks and just plain kooks hamper and harass the President and the government in prosecuting the war to a successful conclusion."

He also said that certain members of the U.S. Senate "assault our Viet Nam policy day after day to the bewilderment of the people and to the consternation and even embarrassment of our President"

Seaton included "such widely divergent groups as the John Birch Society the Minute Men and others "who suffer from a common and malicious malady that their fanatical beliefs justified in the light of their concept of what is good for America"

'No Good Purpose'

He added that "whether those groups and individuals mean it or not, they are serving no good purpose for America"

Rep Olin Teague, D-Tex, told the full VFW convention "I don't think we have to worry about any more wholesale closings of veterans hospitals."

Teague referred to a recent effort by the Johnson administration to close some 32 hospitals domiciliaries, treatment centers and regional VA offices The order for 32 closings was reduced to 17 and a massive mail campaign by the VFW and other veterans groups played a major part in the reversal, Teague said.

Shortcomings Of Voc Ed Act Of '63 Discussed By Stanley

"A foul blow was felt when the national legislature passed the Vocational Education Act in 1963," said Cecil Stanley, assistant commissioner for vocational education in Nebraska

Stanley was discussing the status and developments of Nebraska vocational education at the 47th Annual State Home Economics Education Conference held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education. An estimated 200 Nebraska Home economics instructors heard the opening day speeches Tuesday.

Stanley explained that the Vocational Act was geared to labor market needs and because of that the funds made available through the act must be used for the training of individuals for gainful employment.

He said that the act requires the educators to concern themselves with all people with all levels of learning ability "No matter what they do in Washington you at the local level are going to have to gear yourself to specific problems of vocational education," he said

Another provision of the 1963 act is that the state must have an advisory council in vocational education Stanley explained the advisory councel in Nebraska is made up of representatives in the labor field, manufacturing, and higher education as well as an agricultural and women's representative.

Stanley explained that at the local level the Nebraska legislature passed a bill (LB301) providing for the establishment of 19 educational service units in Nebraska financed through a maximum of one mill levy each. "I don't think with a one mill levy they can do all the things they hope to do through the enactment of these units, Stanley said.

Later, he explained, LB 581 was introduced to combine one or more of the 19 units into a "super-imposed district where they can levy up to a 2 mill maximum for the establishment of area vocational schools." He added that Grand Island, Hastings, and Kearney were hoping to establish an area vocational school, as is North Platte.

He said that the bill provides for a maximum of $100,000 for up to five schools provided that the schools put up a like amount of money for the operation of post high school vocational technical education programs.

Problem With Power May Delay Gemini

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP) — Problems with a spacecraft power system Tuesday night threatened to postpone the eight-day Gemini 5 flight of astronauts L. Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad Jr.

The delay could be several days if the system has to be replaced, but officials emphasized they are doing everything possible to correct the difficulty. The launch presently is scheduled for 8 a.m. (CST) Thursday.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the trouble developed in a fuel cell system. The system mixes liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen to produce water and in the process creates electrical power to run spacecraft systems.

The fuel cell system has never been used on a U.S. manned space flight. It is to replace conventional batteries which are heavier and require more storage space.

The Gemini spacecraft is not capable of carrying enough batteries for eight days.

T. C. Kennedy, Newman Grove; Maurice Lindburg, Polk, and J. R. Lindburg, Stromsburg, told the breakfast group they were in Washington to support the farm bill and also an on-the-farm grain storage program.

New Holt County High School OKd

O'Neill (AP)—Rural voters in the Atkinson, Stuart and Amelia areas voted 434 to 355 for creation of a Class 6 school district in western Holt County. Atkinson and Stuart have their own high schools and voters in the towns did not take part in the election. No site has been designated for the new school.

Auto Driven By Relative Kills North Platte Tot

North Platte (AP) — A 17-months-old North Platte boy died in a North Platte hospital following an accident in front of his home at the western edge of the city Monday night.

He was identified as Michael Schulz, the son of Mrs. Carol Anne Schulz.

The Lincoln County sheriff's office said the child was playing in the street in front of his home when a relative who was visiting, Guy J. Mills, 18, Wichita, Kan., drove away. Mills was quoted as saying he did not see the child but felt the wheels pass over the boy.

Civil Rights, Viet Nam Struggles Will Likely Continue For Over Decade, Seaton Warns

Chicago (AP) — Fred Seaton, secretary of interior in the Eisenhower cabinet, said Tuesday the struggle for civil rights and the fighting in Viet Nam "may take a decade, or two, or more to resolve."

Seaton, publisher of the Hastings, Neb., Tribune, told the 52nd convention of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars that "these are the two great struggles in which our nation is presently engaged."

"The first is the continuing internal struggle to bring about a full realization of civil rights for all our citizens.

"The other is our continuing and absolutely necessary resistance to communist encroachment by stealth, subversion and war in Southeast Asia."

Seaton said the "scene of action" in the Vietnamese conflict "may broaden at any time because the decision rests solely with the forces of international communism—an atheistic, shockingly effective conspiracy against the God-given, fundamental rights of mankind."

He said "obstructionism of one sort or another" is hampering the government's efforts in both struggles.

Seaton said the civil rights effort suffers because of the zealots who wilfully break civil laws and defy authority in their misguided attempts to advance either cause." The Ku Klux Klan" and their kind "xxx self-annointed intellectuals, beatniks and just plain kooks hamper and harass the President and the government in prosecuting the war to a successful conclusion."

He also said that certain members of the U.S. Senate "assault our Viet Nam policy day after day to the bewilderment of the people and to the consternation and even embarrassment of our President."

Seaton included "such widely divergent groups as the John Birch Society, the Minute Men and others "who suffer from a common and malicious malady that their fanatical beliefs justified in the light of their concept of what is good for America."

'No Good Purpose'

He added that "whether those groups and individuals mean it or not, they are serving no good purpose for America."

Rep. Olin Teague, D-Tex., told the full VFW convention "I don't think we have to worry about any more wholesale closings of veterans hospitals."

Teague referred to a recent effort by the Johnson administration to close some 32 hospitals, domicillaries, treatment centers and regional VA offices. The order for 32 closings was reduced to 17 and a massive mail campaign by the VFW and other veterans groups played a major part in the reversal, Teague said.

The Watts Disaster

By AL KUETTNER

(Note: William O. Dobler, The Star's editor is on vacation. Today's column is by Al Kuettner of United Press International Mr. Kuettner is a veteran in the field of racial news and discusses today the Negroes of Los Angeles, third largest city of the country, now swept by devastating riots).

LOS ANGELES—In metropolitan Los Angeles more than half a million Negroes make their homes. They swarm in the crowded south-central district of Watts, scene of rioting and pillage during the past week, and they enjoy the middle and upper-class comforts of clipped lawns and polished silver of Baldwin Hills on the west side of town.

Right now, because of the city's current dilemma, the Negro population is being analyzed, questioned, looked at and planned for more than ever before. Focus of the nation's attention—from President Johnson to Evangelist Billy Graham and civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.—is on the Negro of Los Angeles. Question: Where do they live? Answer: All over the area but generally in packed ghetto-type districts in the central city. The heaviest concentration is in the Watts district which lies due south of downtown Los Angeles. Almost half the Negro population resides there in generally lower class housing. This is the most volatile area, the section with the largest crime statistics and the lowest interest in good citizenship.

All Eyes On The Negro

Watts is one of 13 areas of greater Los Angeles with sizeable pockets of Negroes. Generally, Negroes here live in well defined districts. Once they move into a new section, whites tend to leave quickly.

★

The Los Angeles "Black Belt," previously concentrated in the central city, has been spreading westward during the past 20 years, taking in entire new sections that once were all-white. Relatively few Negroes live in the suburbs. "We have less integration of the suburbs than in many places of the South," a Negro leader confided. "The real estate interests simply have a silent agreement about this."

The same pattern of Negro housing holds in other towns in the greater Los Angeles basin such as Long Beach and Pasadena. Tensions mounted quickly in those areas with the rising troubles in Los Angeles proper.

"Some of these places have all the ingredients for trouble but on a smaller scale," said Henry Talbot, district director of the National Urban League.

Accounts of hit-and-run sniper activity outside the Watts riot zone now sealed off by the National Guard after it was left in smoking ruins by mobs have generally occurred in or near other Negro areas of town.

Question: Who suffered the most in Watts? Insurance companies are just beginning to survey the damage. Much loot is being recovered in large caches and returned to owners who can identify possessions. But both Negro and white business people in Watts will pay heavily.

Talbot is of the opinion that a number of merchants who lost everything to the Molotov cocktails of rioters will not return, even if they recover their losses. "This means that a large number of Negroes who earned their living in these stores will now be out of work and housing," Talbot said.

The Urban League, which has several centers in the area, will convert them into "social command posts," he said, to serve as a reference point for people trying to return to normal. The Urban League and other agencies are considering long-range programs such as low-interest government loans through the Small Business Administration. Some form of urban renewal is also being considered, although similar projects here have run into much political red tape. It's generally agreed that the Watts district, now resembling a war-scarred area with 201 business structures destroyed and 556 damaged, will be reconstructed. As men like Talbot probed into the Watts disaster, they ran repeatedly into the suggestion that last week's apparently disorganized rioting had a pattern to its destruction.

Peace-Keeping Issue Buried

The United States has softened its "pay up or get out" position against United Nations members who are delinquent in their peace keeping assessments.

This will leave the United Nations $103 million in debt, but it will permit Russia and France plus a few lesser neighbors to continue their voting power.

Is this a defeat for the United States? We do not think so.

The technical weakness in the U.S. case was that some of the peacekeeping was authorized by the UN General Assembly. Peace keeping measures require Security Counsel approval. This error provided France and Russia with a legal reason for refusing to pay. But here again we encounter a distinction between a legal reason and a national reason. The delinquency was actually caused by actions the defectors believed were not in their national interest. They wouldn't pay to defeat their own ends.

It became a case of give in or wreck the United Nations. The cost of wrecking the only international institution dedicated to world cooperation and peace would have been far greater than the $103 million in question.

It is understood that both France and Russia will ultimately make gifts toward the liquidation of the peace keeping debt, though not in the amount of their assessments. If that is true, no one won this one.

This settlement cannot remain permanent. The doctrine of non-payment if a nation does not gain from the peace keeping efforts will not work. It leaves the definition of "interest" to each nation and nations do not have the same point of view, especially when the world is sharply divided between Red and Free.

Problem-Solving Legislature

We doubt that the State of Nebraska, since it attained statehood, had a legislature like this 75th one, which met its problems as manfully or with greater decisiveness.

Nebraskans will long remember this period. Whether it will be able to live up to the progressive challenge is the question. There are several referenda to test the voters and there is the question whether the state will return the men at the next election who acted so forthrightly.

The 1965 legislature virtually wiped the slate clean of the nagging basic problems from which earlier legislatures turned away. It broke the tax barrier. It met the state's educational crisis head on. It did not shrink from the state's needs for more public facilities. It provided for much needed additional trade schools. It settled the harassing problem of interest rates on smaller loans in a fair manner. It reorganized the state's public power agencies and provided for better, more efficient handling of state government. It did many other things as well.

We do not say that all of the solutions will be popular or even the best but the combination of them removed questions whose accumulation had greatly slowed the state in a great disservice to Nebraskans. We can now move forward into the new age with the real hope of progress. That will depend upon the rank and file Nebraskans and upon the continuance of such legislative good sense.

In a way the session just closed was a vindication of Nebraska's non-partisan unicameral legislature. There was a mixture of Republican and Democrat in the legislative makeup, but they worked shoulder to shoulder for the bigger goal of a modernized Nebraska. And that is the way it should be.

We would like to believe, and there is good evidence of it, that Nebraska is under a new leadership. We labored too long under the philosophy that the governor is no more than a good public relations man and that the legislature exists only to hold down taxes by evading real problems. If all Nebraskans sense this good change the state is well on its way to greater prosperity when taxes will be less because income is greater.

Whatever history will say about Nebraska this one thing is certain. It had a legislature that deserves the respect and the enthusiasm of every citizen.

Of its many decisions here are some of the more important:

It ordered the reorganization of the state's major public power agencies, combining the wholesale activities of Consumers Public Power District, the Platte Valley district and the Loup district into one agency, providing for, but separating, the irrigation interests of Platte and Loup. This has long been due. It clears the confusion and costly bickering of the three agencies and provides the way for low cost, adequate electric service in line with modern electric practice.

It created a Department of Administrative Services for the state government.

It approved of a six year capital construction program totalling $68.5 million with $23 million of it scheduled for the 1965-67 biennium. This includes an expanded university.

It provided for an open presidential primary election and the selection of all convention delegates by the electorate.

It approved the establishment of an educational service unit concept, to provide supplementary and special education in all areas of the state.

It approved of an area trade school program and created a new such school at Sidney. The state's involvement was set at $500,000 per biennium and a maximum of $100,000 for each school.

It consolidated revenue functions of the state government under the tax commissioner.

It enacted an interest rate legislation statute with a maximum charge of 18% interest for installment sales and revolving charge agreements.

It passed a fair employment practices act.

It established a post-conviction appeal procedure in the state courts.

It ordered a one-half cent increase in the gasoline tax providing 80 percent of the return to cities and 20 percent to the counties.

It broke the long standing tax impasse by enacting an income tax statute effective January 1, 1967. This will relieve property owners from a property tax levy for the support of state operations.

There was more, but this listing is sufficient to describe the character of the 1965 legislature. It solved our problems

Gregory Warns Of Trouble In North

WASHINGTON — I talked with Negro comedian Dick Gregory shortly after he was shot in the leg in Los Angeles. He was not in an entertaining mood. All the predictions he had given me one year earlier about the danger of bitter hatred flared up in northern cities had been fulfilled in Los Angeles.

He had been out on the streets all night, exhorting, urging, begging Negroes to give up their arms, as he had done in Philadelphia last year, in Cleveland, and in Cambridge, Md.

This time, in Los Angeles, he warned of more trouble to come in the big cities of the north.

"We've got the crowds off the street corners," he said. "But now the problem is snipers. They're up in windows picking off cops. If ten cops are killed there'll be white bitterness, and police revenge. So far, chiefly Negroes have been killed. But if ten cops are killed, white America will get together to retaliate against the Negro.

"This will just be the beginning," said Gregory. "Last year I told Bobby Kennedy that the Negro of this country can bring it to mass destruction.

"Do you know what five Negroes could do out in Laurel Canyon with five bombs? They could wipe out the home of every movie actor, and every other home besides.

"Do you know what would happen if the Negroes of New York started turning on the water — just running the water faucets with the city facing a water shortage? The white folks would start running their water to save up tubs so their children could have something to drink. And the next fire that started, there would be no water for the fire-hoses. New York could go up in flames.

"Trouble is sure to break out in other cities," said Gregory, who last May had predicted to me in detail what would happen in big northern cities later in the summer.

"The cops are scared now. They're not motivated by revenge—now. It's fear. But the Negro doesn't know it's fear.

"In riots like this, the Negro just doesn't know. He hears what the fellow next to him says. He doesn't know that the cops are just as scared as he is. Suppose a soldier gets scared and shoots into the crowd — the word goes all over — 'Get the soldiers!' The soldiers have a good image now. The cops haven't. But one soldier gets scared and it's all off.

Over a year ago I had interviewed Gregory in Chicago regarding the long hot summer that lay ahead in 1964. He predicted more trouble in the North than in the South.

"How can I hate white boys who went to jail with me? How can you hate whites when you know so many of them have been working for you? But the Negro in the north doesn't know this. That's why the situation in northern cities can be so tense. Collision is in the air. There could be race riots."

One Day We Will Lose An Astronaut

NEW YORK — Astronauts are said to be better insurance risks than test pilots and people who take tub baths. But countless millions of Americans will stop breathing at the climax of the count-down and the blazing liftoff of Messrs. Cooper and Conrad.

Eventually one or more of our spacemen will be killed. No one understands this more clearly than the men themselves. Before any of ours were blasted off a pad I asked the first crop — Glenn, Shepard, Grissom, Carpenter, Schirra, Slayton and Cooper — what would happen if their retrorockets failed to function and they could not knock themselves out of orbit. There was a lull in the interview, broken eventually by Glenn, the instinctive leader of the pioneering group.

"Well," he said with a shy smile, "the astronaut would remain in orbit for, let's say, a week or ten days. Then his orbit would decay and he'd come back. He'd hit the atmosphere too hard."

What he was laconically saying was that the astronaut would return as a cinder.

The most extraordinary precautions are taken by the National Space Agency to frustrate the intentions of hostile nature and soulless machine to harm our spacemen. Every system and control in the Gemini capsule is duplicated and in some cases triplicated in case something goes wrong with the original gizzmo.

As for the Titan II booster, an awesome pillar of fire the height of a 10-story building, it has been equipped with a neatly boxed brain which would sound an alarm to the astronauts sitting on its peak if it was about to blow up before it fulfilled its short-lived destiny. They, in turn, could eject themselves out of their capsule. If they didn't, a man in the command post at Cape Kennedy or Houston could touch the button that would shoot them out of there.

If danger looms at any stage of their impending eight days in space, Cooper and Conrad could be brought back to earth with or without their consent by a command decision in the form of a radio beam. No matter where they landed, help would soon be at their side. No royal person, no heir to riches of Croesus, ever had as many devoted baby-sitters as an astronaut.

It is part of our nature to suspect that the Russians treat their cosmonauts much more callously. There is not a particle of evidence to support rather widespread belief that cosmonauts have perished and their deaths have been hushed up by the communist-controlled Soviet press. But many refuse to believe that the Russians fret as much as we do over their intrepids, else why would they shroud their activities in secrecy until their people are safely in orbit? And why don't they televise the nerve-wracking launchings?

Brazil Paying For Its Past

RIO DE JANEIRO — Because Brazil is a vast country with a people of such diverse origins and such great empty spaces, the twin evils this reporter has observed in a swing through South America are seen here in the sharpest focus. The fruit of centuries of colonial rule and the geograpical accident of an equatorial climate, they dim future hopes as they have plagued the past.

The first of these evils is an all-too-common lack of social responsibility on the part of the owning oligarchs. The pattern of Spanish-Portuguese colonization was one of grab and run. The wealth of the Americans of the South—an incredible wealth in gold, silver and jewels—was shipped off to the mother countries. Investment and development in the new land were alien to this concept.

The unit of responsibility was the family, and in the Spanish-Portuguese tradition this would include a horde of cousins, uncles and aunts. But beyond that circle, responsibility thinned out to meager good works among the poorest of the poor. One observer in a Spanish-speaking country put it as follows:

"In several years here I've come to know a few of the very rich. On one or two occasions I've been emboldened to say, 'You know the need is very great for a children's hospital. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you were to found such a hospital and give it in your name?' They look at me in astonishment. 'Children's hospital! Why I have my family to think of.' "

The very rich live on a scale — great town houses, huge landed estates, apartments in Paris, Madrid, Lisbon where they spend several months each year—that only a few North Americans even attempt today. They seek to insure their future by keeping large chunks of their wealth out of the country, invested in the United States or Europe.

The second evil is an outgrowth of the first. The layer of trained, capable administrators willing to take government jobs is thin indeed. In business and industry it is larger since the rapid development of the industrial center of Sao Paulo. (Brazil last year turned out 200,000 motor vehicles.)

Planning Minister Roberto Campos works 12 to 14 hours a day. He has so few assistants to whom he can turn for help in the complex economic task he is directing. The same lack is evident in the political crisis that Brazil faces with presidential elections due a year from October. Those who stress the prime importance of stability in this transitional phase see few candidates measuring up to the urgent needs of the moment.

"Surely Brazil does not deserve more than two lunatics in one generation," remarks one of the stabilizers who shuttles back and forth between Rio and the new capital of Brasilia.

The last popularly elected president, Janio Quadros, resigned after a few months in office in a maneuver intended to force Congress to yield to his wishes. The maneuver failed and Quadros was out. His vice-president, Joao Gulart, who happened at the moment to be in Red China negotiating a trade deal, was able to take power. Spouting talk about land reform and encouraging non-commissioned officers in the army to challenge the authority of their superiors, Goulart was at the same time one of the two or three largest landholders in the country. His holdings were said to be six times the size of the country of Belgium. While he may have been a Marxist, as was widely charged, a cynic remarked that it was more Groucho than Karl.

The leading candidate for president who has managed to get the nomination of the conservative party which backs the present regime, is Gov. Carlos Lacerda of the state of Guanabara (Rio de Janeiro). Lacerda is extraordinarily brilliant, and he has demonstrated his capacity in trying to correct Rio's acute shortages of water, sewage facilities and other basic needs. But he is suspected of an insatiable lust for power, and his political views would qualify him for high office in the John Birch Society in the United States.

One of the weirder declared candidates is Alziro Zarur, a 48-year-old radio preacher with a wide following. "Jesus will rule Brazil if I win," he tells his radio listeners, "and Jesus is not my campaign manager, I am his." His chances in a wide open free-for-all are not entirely discounted.

So much is happening in the far-put reaches of this giant country that if only the present troubles can be mastered, the future is bright. Building the capital of Brasilia 800 miles in the empty interior is fulfilling many of the hopes held out for it. Roads are being pushed out, new towns and cities built, resources developed. In the state of Parana in the south, adjoining Sao Paulo, a full-scale boom is on, with frontier overtones.

In short, Brazil, which has had a coastal civilization with crowded port cities, may at last be opening up. The potential is unlimited if only the skills, the drive, the initiative can be mobilized to realize it. The sleeping giant that has lived only on the Atlantic littoral, in its awakening, can transform not only a nation but a continent.

The Wrong Road

Lincoln, Neb.

We as a nation are smart enough to conquer space, with temperature variations from over 400 below zero to several thousand degrees above, and still survive. But we are as stupid as sheep in learning from the experience of other nations that we can't lord it over our fellow man and expect to get by with it.

England learned her lesson the hard way when the blockbusters put the lords and the laborers in the same bomb shelters, and they were glad to mingle together.

When man strays too far from the straight and narrow, he will be reminded of his mistakes and often he is reminded in not too gentle a way. Today the Scandinavian countries have gone so far as to embrace the so-called "new morality" which is not new, at all. It was tried in the days of Sodom and Gomorrah and in the days of the flood.

Stupid man as ever in the past will put up a fight when he is reminded of his error. Billy Graham was harassed while he was talking in Denmark and even told to go back to America. People just don't want to be told that they can't do as they please and not expect to pay the penalty.

Are we in America ever going to learn that we are on the wrong road? People are starving and we are feeding the garbage cans with our wasteful methods. When people stand up in numbers against injustices toward them, we threaten them with a bomb. The fact is that we should be bombed out of our greediness and awakened to the fact that we are our brother's keeper.

I'm afraid we will learn the hard way what Christianity really stands for.

President's Decision

Hastings, Neb.

Representative Gerald Ford, GOP House leader, thinks that President Johnson should order an all-out attack upon North Veit Nam. But for some unaccountable reason, neither Mr. Ford nor any other Republican dared to tell President Eisenhower to launch an all-out attack on North Korea in June, 1953. Rather, Ford and all other Republicans backed up, shut up, and consented to Ike's accepting an armistice to end the Korean conflict without ever trying to attack North Korea or trying to gain a military victory for the U.N. and the U.S.

Now, in event that President Johnson should decide to end the Viet Nam conflict, as the Korean conflict was ended, with an armistice, Representative Ford would find himself in a very embarrassing position if he continued to insist that the Viet Nam conflict be continued and extended into North Viet Nam.

Americans in general have always abided by the decisions of the President of the United States, the commander-in-chief of all U.S. armed forces, and there is no good reason why they should not now abide by the decisions of President Johnson concerning the Viet Nam conflict.

From Within

Lincoln, Neb

The powers that be in the Kremlin must be taking great comfort in the headlines out of California that are flooding the American scene these days. Not that they probably are too surprised, since an analysis of the situation and others preceding it would indicate that the "masters of deceit" have had no small hand in bringing it about. But they do make excellent political propaganda out of our racial troubles, and keep adding fuel to the flame, meanwhile laying the framework for new flareups elsewhere.

The race riots in Rochester, New York, about a year ago at this time serve as a good example of what we are up against in this shrewdest of enemies. It had been a long, hot summer in that part of New York and the mood was receptive for such a rebellion. But the setting was so completely foreign for such an outbreak. In Harlem, yes. But Rochester had never witnessed anything like it before. We have friends who live there and discussed the matter with them. Rochester does have a large Negro population, about 10 percent, or 30,000 of the city's 300,000. But they are for the most part well educated, hard-working, and well treated. They live in nice homes, which they maintain with pride and there are few slum areas. That is why it must be believed that the riots were from an imported group who stirred tempers at a psychological time. There was no reason for the riots there, since the Negroes had everything that was being demanded.

The menace from without is difficult enough to combat. But what can we do about such an insidious menace from within?

High And Low

Bladen, Neb.

I have heard it said many times that we all have our likes and dislikes. But why should any of us dislike anyone who has done us no harm?

Many of the fine, cultured people who have done scarcely any labor in their lifetime feel themselves superior to hard-working people, when these same old bent-over farmers and public laborers are the ones who are keeping them in their air-conditioned homes and the easy life.

In wintertime these fine folks step out of nice warm rooms and into fine cars to be driven to their destinations. They are living off the fat of the land.

Are we getting a fair deal?

Right now, because of the city's current dilemma, the Negro population is being analyzed, questioned, looked at and planned for more than ever before. Focus of the nation's attention—from President Johnson to Evangelist Billy Graham and civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.—is on the Negro of Los Angeles. Question: Where do they live? Answer: All over the area but generally in packed ghetto-type districts in the central city. The heaviest concentration is in the Watts district which lies due south of downtown Los Angeles. Almost half the Negro population resides there in generally lower class housing. This is the most volatile area, the section with the largest crime statistics and the lowest interest in good citizenship.

All Eyes On The Negro

Watts is one of 13 areas of greater Los Angeles with sizeable pockets of Negroes. Generally, Negroes here live in well defined districts. Once they move into a new section, whites tend to leave quickly.

★

The Los Angeles "Black Belt," previously concentrated in the central city, has been spreading westward during the past 20 years, taking in entire new sections that once were all-white. Relatively few Negroes live in the suburbs. "We have less integration of the suburbs than in many places of the South," a Negro leader confided. "The real estate interests simply have a silent agreement about this."

The same pattern of Negro housing holds in other towns in the greater Los Angeles basin—such as Long Beach and Pasadena. Tensions mounted quickly in those areas with the rising troubles in Los Angeles proper.

"Some of these places have all the ingredients for trouble but on a smaller scale," said Henry Talbot, district director of the National Urban League.

Accounts of hit-and-run sniper activity outside the Watts riot zone, now sealed off by the National Guard after it was left in smoking ruins by mobs, have generally occurred in or near other Negro areas of town.

Question: Who suffered the most in Watts? Insurance companies are just beginning to survey the damage. Much loot is being recovered in large caches and returned to owners who can identify possessions. But both Negro and white business people in Watts will pay heavily.

Talbot is of the opinion that a number of merchants who lost everything to the Molotov cocktails of rioters will not return, even if they recover their losses. "This means that a large number of Negroes who earned their living in these stores will now be out of work and housing," Talbot said.

The Urban League, which has several centers in the area, will convert them into "social command posts," he said, to serve as a reference point for people trying to return to normal. The Urban League and other agencies are considering long-range programs such as low-interest government loans through the Small Business Administration. Some form of urban renewal is also being considered, although similar projects here have run into much political red tape. It's generally agreed that the Watts district, now resembling a war-scarred area with 201 business structures destroyed and 556 damaged, will be reconstructed. As men like Talbot probed into the Watts disaster, they ran repeatedly into the suggestion that last week's apparently disorganized rioting had a pattern to its destruction.

Peace-Keeping Issue Buried

The United States has softened its "pay up or get out" position against United Nations members who are delinquent in their peace keeping assessments.

This will leave the United Nations $103 million in debt, but it will permit Russia and France plus a few lesser neighbors to continue their voting power.

Is this a defeat for the United States? We do not think so.

The technical weakness in the U.S. case was that some of the peacekeeping was authorized by the UN General Assembly. Peace keeping measures require Security Counsel approval. This error provided France and Russia with a legal reason for refusing to pay. But here again we encounter a distinction between a legal reason and a national reason. The delinquency was actually caused by actions the defectors believed were not in their national interest. They wouldn't pay to defeat their own ends.

It became a case of give in or wreck the United Nations. The cost of wrecking the only international institution dedicated to world cooperation and peace would have been far greater than the $103 million in question.

It is understood that both France and Russia will ultimately make gifts toward the liquidation of the peace keeping debt, though not in the amount of their assessments. If that is true, no one won this one.

This settlement cannot remain permanent. The doctrine of non-payment if a nation does not gain from the peace keeping efforts will not work. It leaves the definition of "interest" to each nation and nations do not have the same point of view, especially when the world is sharply divided between Red and Free.

Problem-Solving Legislature

We doubt that the State of Nebraska, since it attained statehood, had a legislature like this 75th one, which met its problems as manfully or with greater decisiveness.

Nebraskans will long remember this period. Whether it will be able to live up to the progressive challenge is the question. There are several referenda to test the voters and there is the question whether the state will return the men at the next election who acted so forthrightly.

The 1965 legislature virtually wiped the slate clean of the nagging, basic problems from which earlier legislatures turned away. It broke the tax barrier. It met the state's educational crisis head on. It did not shrink from the state's needs for more public facilities. It provided for much needed additional trade schools. It settled the harassing problem of interest rates on smaller loans in a fair manner. It reorganized the state's public power agencies and provided for better, more efficient handling of state government. It did many other things as well.

We do not say that all of the solutions will be popular or even the best, but the combination of them removed questions whose accumulation had greatly slowed the state in a great disservice to Nebraskans. We can now move forward into the new age with the real hope of progress. That will depend upon the rank and file Nebraskans and upon the continuance of such legislative good sense.

In a way the session just closed was a vindication of Nebraska's non-partisan unicameral legislature. There was a mixture of Republican and Democrat in the legislative makeup, but they worked shoulder to shoulder for the bigger goal of a modernized Nebraska. And that is the way it should be.

We would like to believe, and there is good evidence of it, that Nebraska is under a new leadership. We labored too long under the philosophy that the governor is no more than a good public relations man and that the legislature exists only to hold down taxes by evading real problems. If all Nebraskans sense this good change the state is well on its way to greater prosperity when taxes will be less because income is greater.

Whatever history will say about Nebraska this one thing is certain. It had a legislature that deserves the respect and the enthusiasm of every citizen.

Of its many decisions here are some of the more important:

It ordered the reorganization of the state's major public power agencies, combining the wholesale activities of Consumers Public Power District, the Platte Valley district and the Loup district into one agency, providing for, but separating, the irrigation interests of Platte and Loup. This has long been due. It clears the confusion and costly bickering of the three agencies and provides the way for low cost, adequate electric service in line with modern electric practice.

It created a Department of Administrative Services for the state government.

It approved of a six year capital construction program totalling $68.5 million with $23 million of it scheduled for the 1965-67 biennium. This includes an expanded university.

It provided for an open presidential primary election and the selection of all convention delegates by the electorate.

It approved the establishment of an educational service unit concept, to provide supplementary and special education in all areas of the state.

It approved of an area trade school program and created a new such school at Sidney. The state's involvement was set at $500,000 per biennium and a maximum of $100,000 for each school.

It consolidated revenue functions of the state government under the tax commissioner.

It enacted an interest rate legislation statute with a maximum charge of 18% interest for installment sales and revolving charge agreements.

It passed a fair employment practices act.

It established a post-conviction appeal procedure in the state courts.

It ordered a one-half cent increase in the gasoline tax providing 80 percent of the return to cities and 20 percent to the counties.

It broke the long standing tax impasse by enacting an income tax statute effective January 1, 1967. This will relieve property owners from a property tax levy for the support of state operations.

There was more, but this listing is sufficient to describe the character of the 1965 legislature. It solved our problems.

Gregory Warns Of Trouble In North

WASHINGTON — I talked with Negro comedian Dick Gregory shortly after he was shot in the leg in Los Angeles. He was not in an entertaining mood. All the predictions he had given me one year earlier about the danger of bitter hatred flared up in northern cities had been fulfilled in Los Angeles.

He had been out on the streets all night, exhorting, urging, begging Negroes to give up their arms, as he had done in Philadelphia last year, in Cleveland, and in Cambridge, Md.

This time, in Los Angeles, he warned of more trouble to come in the big cities of the north.

"We've got the crowds off the street corners," he said. "But now the problem is snipers. They're up in windows picking off cops. If ten cops are killed there'll be white bitterness, and police revenge. So far, chiefly Negroes have been killed. But if ten cops are killed, white America will get together to retaliate against the Negro.

"This will just be the beginning," said Gregory. "Last year I told Bobby Kennedy that the Negro of this country can bring it to mass destruction.

"Do you know what five Negroes could do out in Laurel Canyon with five bombs? They could wipe out the home of every movie actor, and every other home besides.

"Do you know what would happen if the Negroes of New York started turning on the water — just running the water faucets with the city facing a water shortage? The white folks would start running their water to save up tubs so their children could have something to drink. And the next fire that started, there would be no water for the fire-hoses. New York could go up in flames.

"Trouble is sure to break out in other cities," said Gregory, who last May had predicted to me in detail what would happen in big northern cities later in the summer.

"The cops are scared now. They're not motivated by revenge—now. It's fear. But the Negro doesn't know it's fear.

"In riots like this, the Negro just doesn't know. He hears what the fellow next to him says. He doesn't know that the cops are just as scared as he is. Suppose a soldier gets scared and shoots into the crowd — the word goes all over — 'Get the soldiers!' The soldiers have a good image now. The cops haven't. But one soldier gets scared and it's all off.

Over a year ago I had interviewed Gregory in Chicago regarding the long hot summer that lay ahead in 1964. He predicted more trouble in the North than in the South.

"How can I hate white boys who went to jail with me? How can you hate whites when you know so many of them have been working for you? But the Negro in the north doesn't know this. That's why the situation in northern cities can be so tense. Collision is in the air. There could be race riots."

One Day We Will Lose An Astronaut

NEW YORK — Astronauts are said to be better insurance risks than test pilots and people who take tub baths. But countless millions of Americans will stop breathing at the climax of the count-down and the blazing liftoff of Messrs. Cooper and Conrad.

Eventually one or more of our spacemen will be killed. No one understands this more clearly than the men themselves. Before any of ours were blasted off a pad I asked the first crop — Glenn, Shepard, Grissom, Carpenter, Schirra, Slayton and Cooper — what would happen if their retrorockets failed to function and they could not knock themselves out of orbit. There was a lull in the interview, broken eventually by Glenn, the instinctive leader of the pioneering group.

"Well," he said with a shy smile, "the astronaut would remain in orbit for, let's say, a week or ten days. Then his orbit would decay and he'd come back. He'd hit the atmosphere too hard."

What he was laconically saying was that the astronaut would return as a cinder.

The most extraordinary precautions are taken by the National Space Agency to frustrate the intentions of hostile nature and soulless machine to harm our spacemen. Every system and control in the Gemini capsule is duplicated and in some cases triplicated — in case something goes wrong with the original gizzmo.

As for the Titan II booster, an awesome pillar of fire the height of a 10-story building, it has been equipped with a neatly boxed brain which would sound an alarm to the astronauts sitting on its peak if it was about to blow up before it fulfilled its short-lived destiny. They, in turn, could eject themselves out of their capsule. If they didn't, a man in the command post at Cape Kennedy or Houston could touch the button that would shoot them out of there.

If danger looms at any stage of their impending eight days in space, Cooper and Conrad could be brought back to earth with or without their consent by a command decision in the form of a radio beam. No matter where they landed, help would soon be at their side. No royal person, no heir to riches of Croesus, ever had as many devoted baby-sitters as an astronaut.

It is part of our nature to suspect that the Russians treat their cosmonauts much more callously. There is not a particle of evidence to support rather widespread belief that cosmonauts have perished and their deaths have been hushed up by the communist-controlled Soviet press. But many refuse to believe that the Russians fret as much as we do over their intrepids — else why would they shroud their activities in secrecy until their people are safely in orbit? And why don't they televise the nerve-wracking launchings?

Brazil Paying For Its Past

RIO DE JANEIRO — Because Brazil is a vast country with a people of such diverse origins and such great empty spaces, the twin evils this reporter has observed in a swing through South America are seen here in the sharpest focus. The fruit of centuries of colonial rule and the geograpical accident of an equatorial climate, they dim future hopes as they have plagued the past.

The first of these evils is an all-too-common lack of social responsibility on the part of the owning oligarchs. The pattern of Spanish-Portuguese colonization was one of grab and run. The wealth of the Americans of the South—an incredible wealth in gold, silver and jewels—was shipped off to the mother countries. Investment and development in the new land were alien to this concept.

The unit of responsibility was the family, and in the Spanish-Portuguese tradition this would include a horde of cousins, uncles and aunts. But beyond that circle, responsibility thinned out to meager good works among the poorest of the poor. One observer in a Spanish-speaking country put it as follows:

"In several years here I've come to know a few of the very rich. On one or two occasions I've been emboldened to say, 'You know the need is very great for a children's hospital. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if you were to found such a hospital and give it in your name?' They look at me in astonishment. 'Children's hospital! Why I have my family to think of.' "

The very rich live on a scale — great town houses, huge landed estates, apartments in Paris, Madrid, Lisbon where they spend several months each year—that only a few North Americans even attempt today. They seek to insure their future by keeping large chunks of their wealth out of the country, invested in the United States or Europe.

The second evil is an outgrowth of the first. The layer of trained, capable administrators willing to take government jobs is thin indeed. In business and industry it is larger since the rapid development of the industrial center of Sao Paulo. (Brazil last year turned out 200,000 motor vehicles.)

Planning Minister Roberto Campos works 12 to 14 hours a day. He has so few assistants to whom he can turn for help in the complex economic task he is directing. The same lack is evident in the political crisis that Brazil faces with presidential elections due a year from October. Those who stress the prime importance of stability in this transitional phase see few candidates measuring up to the urgent needs of the moment.

"Surely Brazil does not deserve more than two lunatics in one generation," remarks one of the stabilizers who shuttles back and forth between Rio and the new capital of Brasilia.

The last popularly elected president, Janio Quadros, resigned after a few months in office in a maneuver intended to force Congress to yield to his wishes. The maneuver failed and Quadros was out. His vice-president, Joao Gulart, who happened at the moment to be in Red China negotiating a trade deal, was able to take power. Spouting talk about land reform and encouraging non-commissioned officers in the army to challenge the authority of their superiors, Goulart was at the same time one of the two or three largest landholders in the country. His holdings were said to be six times the size of the country of Belgium. While he may have been a Marxist, as was widely charged, a cynic remarked that it was more Groucho than Karl.

The leading candidate for president who has managed to get the nomination of the conservative party which backs the present regime, is Gov. Carlos Lacerda of the state of Guanabara (Rio de Janeiro). Lacerda is extraordinarily brilliant, and he has demonstrated his capacity in trying to correct Rio's acute shortages of water, sewage facilities and other basic needs. But he is suspected of an insatiable lust for power, and his political views would qualify him for high office in the John Birch Society in the United States.

One of the weirder declared candidates is Alziro Zarur, a 48-year-old radio preacher with a wide following. "Jesus will rule Brazil if I win," he tells his radio listeners, "and Jesus is not my campaign manager, I am his." His chances in a wide open free-for-all are not entirely discounted.

So much is happening in the far-put reaches of this giant country that if only the present troubles can be mastered, the future is bright. Building the capital of Brasilia 800 miles in the empty interior is fulfilling many of the hopes held out for it. Roads are being pushed out, new towns and cities built, resources developed. In the state of Parana in the south, adjoining Sao Paulo, a full-scale boom is on, with frontier overtones.

In short, Brazil, which has had a coastal civilization with crowded port cities, may at last be opening up. The potential is unlimited if only the skills, the drive, the initiative can be mobilized to realize it. The sleeping giant that has lived only on the Atlantic littoral, in its awakening, can transform not only a nation but a continent.

The Wrong Road

Lincoln, Neb.

We as a nation are smart enough to conquer space, with temperature variations from over 400 below zero to several thousand degrees above, and still survive. But we are as stupid as sheep in learning from the experience of other nations that we can't lord it over our fellow man and expect to get by with it.

England learned her lesson the hard way when the blockbusters put the lords and the laborers in the same bomb shelters, and they were glad to mingle together.

When man strays too far from the straight and narrow, he will be reminded of his mistakes and often he is reminded in not too gentle a way. Today the Scandinavian countries have gone so far as to embrace the so-called "new morality" which is not new, at all. It was tried in the days of Sodom and Gomorrah and in the days of the flood.

Stupid man as ever in the past will put up a fight when he is reminded of his error. Billy Graham was harassed while he was talking in Denmark and even told to go back to America. People just don't want to be told that they can't do as they please and not expect to pay the penalty.

Are we in America ever going to learn that we are on the wrong road? People are starving and we are feeding the garbage cans with our wasteful methods. When people stand up in numbers against injustices toward them, we threaten them with a bomb. The fact is that we should be bombed out of our greediness and awakened to the fact that we are our brother's keeper.

I'm afraid we will learn the hard way what Christianity really stands for.

Hastings, Neb.

Representative Gerald Ford, GOP House leader, thinks that President Johnson should order an all-out attack upon North Veit Nam. But for some unaccountable reason, neither Mr. Ford nor any other Republican dared to tell President Eisenhower to launch an all-out attack on North Korea in June, 1953. Rather, Ford and all other Republicans backed up, shut up, and consented to Ike's accepting an armistice to end the Korean conflict without ever trying to attack North Korea or trying to gain a military victory for the U.N. and the U.S.

..Now, in event that President Johnson should decide to end the Viet Nam conflict, as the Korean conflict was ended, with an armistice, Representative Ford would find himself in a very embarrassing position if he continued to insist that the Viet Nam conflict be continued and extended into North Viet Nam.

Americans in general have always abided by the decisions of the President of the United States, the commander-in-chief of all U.S. armed forces, and there is no good reason why they should not now abide by the decisions of President Johnson concerning the Viet Nam conflict.

From Within

Lincoln, Neb.

The powers that be in the Kremlin must be taking great comfort in the headlines out of California that are flooding the American scene these days. Not that they probably are too surprised, since an analysis of the situation and others preceding it would indicate that the "masters of deceit" have had no small hand in bringing it about. But they do make excellent political propaganda out of our racial troubles, and keep adding fuel to the flame, meanwhile laying the framework for new flareups elsewhere.

The race riots in Rochester, New York, about a year ago at this time serve as a good example of what we are up against in this shrewdest of enemies. It had been a long, hot summer in that part of New York and the mood was receptive for such a rebellion. But the setting was so completely foreign for such an outbreak. In Harlem, yes. But Rochester had never witnessed anything like it before. We have friends who live there and discussed the matter with them. Rochester does have a large Negro population, about 10 percent, or 30,000 of the city's 300,000. But they are for the most part well educated, hard-working, and well treated. They live in nice homes, which they maintain with pride and there are few slum areas. That is why it must be believed that the riots were from an imported group who stirred tempers at a psychological time. There was no reason for the riots there, since the Negroes had everything that was being demanded.

The menace from without is difficult enough to combat. But what can we do about such an insidious menace from within?

High And Low

Bladen, Neb.

I have heard it said many times that we all have our likes and dislikes. But why should any of us dislike anyone who has done us no harm?

Many of the fine, cultured people who have done scarcely any labor in their lifetime feel themselves superior to hard-working people, when these same old bent-over farmers and public laborers are the ones who are keeping them in their air-conditioned homes and the easy life.

In wintertime these fine folks step out of nice warm rooms and into fine cars to be driven to their destinations. They are living off the fat of the land.

Are we getting a fair deal?

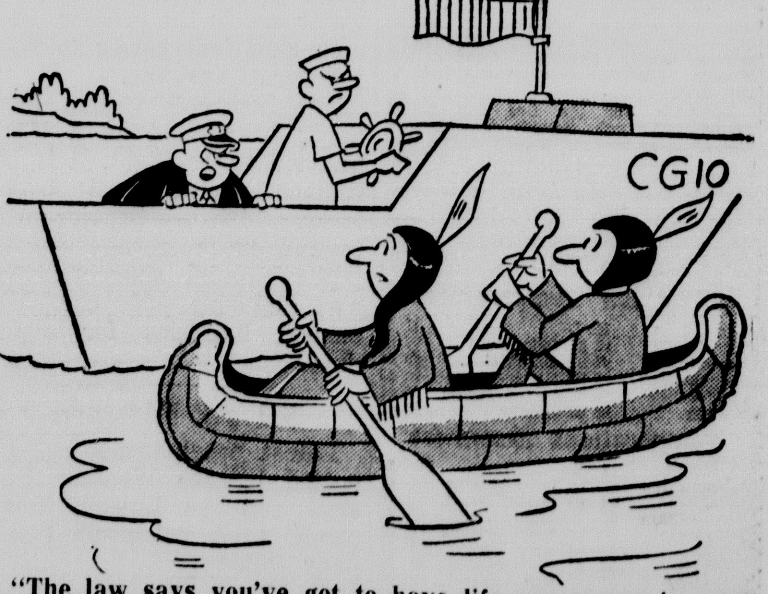
OFF THE RECORD By Ed. Reed



"The law says you've got to have life preservers in your boat on this lake."

Amazing '65 Legislature Parted With Tradition

Among other major legislative enactments:

—the broadest state governmental reorganization program in history, consolidating accounting, budgeting and administrative functions under a new Department of Administrative Services, and centralizing revenue functions under the state tax commissioner

—a six-year, $68.5 million capital construction program.

Educational Service Units

—creation of 19 educational service units throughout the state to provide supplementary and special education services.

—establishment of an area trade school concept backed with $500,000 in state funds per biennium, including a maximum of $100,000 per school, and creation of a new vocational technical school at Sidney.

—provision for a wide-open presidential primary election in Nebraska beginning in 1968, and return of selection of all national convention delegates to a vote of the people.

Post-Conviction Appeal

—enactment of a post-conviction appeal procedure in state courts.

—establishment of a new structure of interest rate statutes regulating the credit finance industry, featuring an 18% maximum rate for installment sales and revolving charge agreements, and a "full disclosure" rate law.

—approval of 17 constitutional amendments which will be submitted to the voters in 1966, including a proposal to permit public transportation for private and parochial students and a proposition which would require state aid to education once the tax base is broadened.

Two Reapportionment Acts

—enactment of two legislative reapportionment acts, each in turn reducing population disparity between districts.

—approval of a fair employment practices act and a new civil rights law barring discrimination by real estate brokers.

—an increase in the state gasoline tax from 7 to 7½ cents a gallon, with allocation of the additional revenue on a formula of 80% to municipalities and 20% to counties.

Hike In Cigarette Tax

—a hike in the cigarette tax from 6 to 8 cents a package, with allocation of additional revenue on a basis of 35% to educational television, 35% to recreation matching funds, and 30% to access roads to recreation areas.

—a boost in the pari-mutuel tax from 3% to 4% and in the beer tax from 6 to 8 cents a gallon, with revenue channeled into the general fund.

—enactment of a broadened and liberalized program of Kerr-Mills medical assistance to the needy aged, replaced, in turn, by legislation which qualifies Nebraska for federal assistance under the new medicare act.

New State Office Building

—authorization for construction of a new state office building financed, in part, by a special .20 mill, four-year property tax levy.

—approval of 21 interim studies, including a $300,000 survey of highways, roads and streets.

"This state will never again be the same as it was before this Legislature met," Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff told his colleagues in the waning days of the 1965 session.

"We're on the march."

The record—measured in terms of action, accomplishment and achievement and judged by a pattern of decision in all fields—indicates that no Legislature has ever done more.

Whether it has done right will be for history to judge.

Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha Tuesday offered the traditional final-day legislative motion praising press coverage of the Legislature.

Proud had earlier in the session proposed a resolution criticizing the press for less than fair and impartial treatment of legislative news.

Having offered Tuesday's prepared motion, Proud concluded: "I dare you to vote me down."

The resolution was approved.

9 Counties Over 10% Mark In Tax Referendum Drive

Omaha (AP)—Income tax referendum headquarters said that nine counties now have gone over the 10% mark in signatures and 22 over the 5% mark.

The petition campaign needs 38 counties over the 5% mark (more than 5% of the county vote in the last gubernatorial election) to bring about a 1966 general election vote on the tax passed by the current Legislature and 10% to stop the state from taking any steps to implement the tax prior to the 1966 election.

Campaign headquarters said Douglas and Keya Paha counties were the latest to go over the 10% mark.

Terry Walks Out On Study Committee For State Roads

State Sen. Terry Carpenter Tuesday walked out of a meeting of a legislative committee appointed to coordinate a sweeping study of Nebraska's roads and highways. He announced he would resign from the nine-member group.

Carpenter said a federal requirement that U.S. government funds for the study must be obtained through agreements with the State Roads Department would result in a "whitewash."

"If we have to clear the study through the highway department, which we propose to study, it's completely ridiculous," Carpenter said. "They're going to be investigated and they have to approve it."

Management Too

Carpenter wants a probe of highway department management included in the comprehensive study.

"I have reason to believe everything is not as good as it should be. That's why I asked to be on this committee in the first place," he said.

After the executive meeting of the group, committee Chairman J. W. Burbach of Crofton said he was confident Carpenter would come back to the committee.

Burbach said the dispute resulted from a misunderstanding on the part of Carpenter and Robert Anderson, Nebraska engineer for the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads.

No Whitewash

"I feel management is a part of this study and the committee will determine this question properly," Burbach said. "I don't intend for it to be a whitewash."

Carpenter left as the committee was holding its second meeting.

The study of all roads, streets and highways in Nebraska was ordered by this session of the legislature. It is expected to cost more than $300,000.

Burbach said the group agreed to meet Aug. 27 and 28 in Lincoln to discuss the study with highway engineering consultants.

He said it is expected that firms will be hired to carry out the study at the meeting.

Among other major legislative enactments:

—the broadest state governmental reorganization program in history, consolidating accounting, budgeting and administrative functions under a new Department of Administrative Services, and centralizing revenue functions under the state tax commissioner

—a six-year, $68.5 million capital construction program.

Educational Service Units

—creation of 19 educational service units throughout the state to provide supplementary and special education services.

—establishment of an area trade school concept backed with $500,000 in state funds per biennium, including a maximum of $100,000 per school, and creation of a new vocational technical school at Sidney.

—provision for a wide-open presidential primary election in Nebraska beginning in 1968, and return of selection of all national convention delegates to a vote of the people.

Post-Conviction Appeal

—enactment of a post-conviction appeal procedure in state courts.

—establishment of a new structure of interest rate statutes regulating the credit finance industry, featuring an 18% maximum rate for installment sales and revolving charge agreements, and a "full disclosure" rate law.

—approval of 17 constitutional amendments which will be submitted to the voters in 1966, including a proposal to permit public transportation for private and parochial students and a proposition which would require state aid to education once the tax base is broadened.

Two Reapportionment Acts

—enactment of two legislative reapportionment acts, each in turn reducing population disparity between districts.

—approval of a fair employment practices act and a new civil rights law barring discrimination by real estate brokers.

—an increase in the state gasoline tax from 7 to 7½ cents a gallon, with allocation of the additional revenue on a formula of 80% to municipalities and 20% to counties.

Hike In Cigarette Tax

—a hike in the cigarette tax from 6 to 8 cents a package, with allocation of additional revenue on a basis of 35% to educational television, 35% to recreation matching funds, and 30% to access roads to recreation areas.

—a boost in the pari-mutuel tax from 3% to 4% and in the beer tax from 6 to 8 cents a gallon, with revenue channeled into the general fund.

—enactment of a broadened and liberalized program of Kerr-Mills medical assistance to the needy aged, replaced, in turn, by legislation which qualifies Nebraska for federal assistance under the new medicare act.

New State Office Building

—authorization for construction of a new state office building financed, in part, by a special .20 mill, four-year property tax levy.

—approval of 21 interim studies, including a $300,000 survey of highways, roads and streets.

"This state will never again be the same as it was before this Legislature met," Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff told his colleagues in the waning days of the 1965 session.

"We're on the march."

The record—measured in terms of action, accomplishment and achievement and judged by a pattern of decision in all fields—indicates that no Legislature has ever done more.

Whether it has done right will be for history to judge.

Proud Reverses Himself, Offers Praise To Press

Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha Tuesday offered the traditional final-day legislative motion praising press coverage of the Legislature.

Proud had earlier in the session proposed a resolution criticizing the press for less than fair and impartial treatment of legislative news.

His earlier resolution failed to gather any supporting votes other than his own, prompting Proud to warn of the power of the press.

Having offered Tuesday's prepared motion, Proud concluded: "I dare you to vote me down."

The resolution was approved.

9 Counties Over 10% Mark In Tax Referendum Drive

Omaha (AP)—Income tax referendum headquarters said that nine counties now have gone over the 10% mark in signatures and 22 over the 5% mark.

The petition campaign needs 38 counties over the 5% mark (more than 5% of the county vote in the last gubernatorial election) to bring about a 1966 general election vote on the tax passed by the current Legislature and 10% to stop the state from taking any steps to implement the tax prior to the 1966 election.

Campaign headquarters said Douglas and Keya Paha counties were the latest to go over the 10% mark.

Terry Walks Out On Study Committee For State Roads

State Sen. Terry Carpenter Tuesday walked out of a meeting of a legislative committee appointed to coordinate a sweeping study of Nebraska's roads and highways. He announced he would resign from the nine-member group.

Carpenter said a federal requirement that U.S. government funds for the study must be obtained through agreements with the State Roads Department would result in a "whitewash."

"If we have to clear the study through the highway department, which we propose to study, it's completely ridiculous," Carpenter said. "They're going to be investigated and they have to approve it."

Management Too

Carpenter wants a probe of highway department management included in the comprehensive study.

"I have reason to believe everything is not as good as it should be. That's why I asked to be on this committee in the first place," he said.

After the executive meeting of the group, committee Chairman J. W. Burbach of Crofton said he was confident Carpenter would come back to the committee.

Burbach said the dispute resulted from a misunderstanding on the part of Carpenter and Robert Anderson, Nebraska engineer for the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads.

No Whitewash

"I feel management is a part of this study and the committee will determine this question properly," Burbach said. "I don't intend for it to be a whitewash."

Carpenter left as the committee was holding its second meeting.

The study of all roads, streets and highways in Nebraska was ordered by this session of the legislature. It is expected to cost more than $300,000.

Burbach said the group agreed to meet Aug. 27 and 28 in Lincoln to discuss the study with highway engineering consultants.

He said it is expected that firms will be hired to carry out the study at the meeting.

Town Talk

We're back on the guest theme again this morning - with a few variations, of course. We learned of a courtesy for one of the guests, for instance, and we did pick up news of some homecomers.

Arriving on Tuesday were Mrs. Wendell Berge and her son, Douglas Berge, of Lasce, who will spend a few days as the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hammond.

On Thursday Mrs. Hammond will be a luncheon hostess at the Lincoln Country Club as a courtesy to Mrs. Berge, and the guest list will include a group of the honoree's Lincoln friends.

From Lincoln Mrs. Berge and her son will drive to Ann Arbor, Mich., where Mrs. Berge will complete work on her Master's degree at the University of Michigan. Mr. Berge will drive on to the east coast for a visit with friends before returning to Lincoln for his junior year at the University of Nebraska.

* * *

And from Los Angeles last Sunday came Mrs. Thomas C. Pierson and her children, Thomas Pierson, Jr., and Lynda Sue, who are the house guests of Mr. Pierson's parents, Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Pierson. During their stay in town the guest threesome also will visit Mr. Pierson's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Pierson, Jr.

From Lincoln Mrs. Pierson and her daughter will return to Los Angeles, but Mr. Pierson, Jr., will leave early in September for Juilliard School, Rochester, N.Y., where he will be a student.

Incidentally, Mrs. Thomas Pierson is the former Beth Pohlemus of Holdrege, Gamma Phi Beta at Nebraska.

* * *

The homecomers we had in mind are Mr. and Mrs. David Makepeace who returned home from Minnesota a few days ago.

And on Sunday morning Mr. and Mrs. Makepeace will be greeting their daughter, Mrs. Richard Gustafson, and her two children Ricky and Lynda, of Prairie Village, Kan., who will spend a week or 10 days in Lincoln.

NEWS of suburban areas

There are thousands and thousands of hot little irons pressing baskets and baskets of clothes that were soiled on vacations many suburban families have just completed.

Homemakers now are wondering "was it really worth it," or not as they prepare to smooth the wrinkles in that last article out of who knows how many garments she has already pressed.

But we discover that these ironers soon turn their thoughts to gayer activities as they welcome guests into their homes, or attend neighborhood get-togethers, or take on the hostess duties themselves.

NORTHEAST HEIGHTS

There were two members of the Northeast Heights social set who took on hostess duties last Monday evening and they were Mrs. Ray Martin and Mrs. Marlin Knickerbocker. The two planned a baby shower for Mrs. John Martin and 30 friends and relatives of the honoree were invited as guests. The evening event took place at the home of Mrs. Ray Martin Sr. where coffee was served following the presentation of gifts to the honoree.

Let us turn a page in the social notebook and take a look at who is traveling or just returned from vacation spots.

One quick glance gives us the name of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Barnett and three children Jerry, Linda, and Carol Anne as present vacationers. The fivesome left yesterday for Colorado where the family plans to spend a week or possibly more, sightseeing through most of the state.

A second glance, and we see the name of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kuhn who, with their daughter, Mrs. Gene Tipton and her three children were Sunday travelers to Ponca State Park. The Nebraska stop-off will be the first of several for the traveling sixsome as they head north for other vacation points of interest.

A final look at the social page tells us that Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brehm and their four children along with Mrs. Brehm's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bodensteiner have just returned from their vacation. The holiday for the eight lasted two weeks and the majority of their time was spent at a cabin in Warm Springs Canyon, Idaho. The canyon is located near Sun Valley and is famous for its fishing spots, horseback riding and its clear lakes —so you can about guess the activities of the Brehm family and Mr. and Mrs. Bodensteiner while at Warm Springs.

PRAIRIE VALLEY

It was "a vacation of a lifetime" say Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hill and son, Donald. The three returned last Sunday from a week's vacation tour through Yellowstone National Park and through Grand Teton National Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Dariel Cederholm are anticipating the coming days as they tell us of present and future guests and of vacationing daughters. First, news of the current guests who are Mr. and Mrs. John Schriner of Milwaukee, Wis. The couple arrived today for an indefinite visit with Mr. and Mrs. Cederholm and we might add that Mr. Cederholm and Mr. Schriner are old army buddies who get together each year.

As for Mr. and Mrs. Cederholm's two daughters—they have been the house guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hynes in Spencer, Iowa for the past week and will remain there through this week. On Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Hynes will leave their home in Spencer, Iowa, and with Kathy and Cindy Cederholm will head for Lincoln—For Mr. and Mrs. Hynes it will be a weekend visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cederholm, and for Kathy and Cindy it will mean homecoming.

Program

Meeting for dinner Monday evening at the Hotel Capital were the members of the Lincoln Toastmistress Club.

Mrs. Henry Holst presided as toastmistress and program speakers were Mrs. Charles Chace, Mrs. Dorothy Cristo and Mrs. Josephine Eyen. Topic mistress for impromptu talks was Mrs. Robert Herman.

We Hear That

Arriving last week from Pontiac, Mich., were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kurth and their children, Steve, Paul, Robbie, Eric and Brenn, who are visiting at the home of Mrs. Kurth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Broer. Mrs. Kurth will attend her sister, Miss Kathleen Broer, as matron of honor for her marriage to Courtney Dillingham, which will be an event of Saturday, Aug. 21.

BRIDE at morning wedding

Bouquets of pink gladioli decorated the chancel of St. James Methodist Church for the marriage Saturday evening, Aug. 14, of Miss Patricia Jean McClarnon, daughter of Mrs. Jens P. Nelsen of Lincoln, and of Virgil McClarnon of Clarinda, Iowa, to Ronald James Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley E. Walker. The service was solemnized at 7 o'clock by the Rev. Clarence Campbell, and Mrs. Gail Adams, organist, played the wedding music. The vocal soloist was Mrs. James McClarnon, Tarkio, Mo.

The attendants who wore frocks of mint green silk over taffeta and carried pink carnations, were Miss Jean Carper, as the maid of honor, and Mrs. Orlan Jones, the bridesmatron, both of Clarinda.

John Walker served as best man, and the ushers were Orlan Jones, Clarinda; James McClarnon, Tarkio, Mo.; Larry Nichols, Steve Halstead and Larry Sevenker.

The bride appeared in a gown of white Chantilly lace and tulle over silk. The long-sleeved bodice was designed with a sabrina neckline, and tiers of lace and tulle formed the wide skirt. Her illusion veil was held by a cap of jeweled lace, and she carried a white Bible clustered with pink roses.

Attendants Announced

Revealing plans this morning for her approaching wedding is Miss Judith Sharp, who has chosen Sunday, Sept. 5, as the date for her marriage to Ron Grapes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan C. Grapes of Big Springs.

For the ceremony, which will be solemnized at 3 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, at First-Plymouth Church, the bride-elect has named her sister, Mrs. C. L. Croft of Omaha, as her matron of honor and only attendant.

Lighting the chancel candles will be Mrs. Harold Burton and Mrs. Don Anfinson.

Haron Burton will serve Mr. Grapes as best man, and seating the guests will be Carl Jesson of Bassett, and Ralph Langemeier.

The daughter of Mrs. Walter Sharp of Omaha, the bride-elect will be honored at a prenuptial courtesy on Sunday afternoon, when her sister, Mrs. C. L. Croft, will be hostess at her home in Omaha.

Also entertaining in courtesy to Miss Sharp will be Mrs. Evelyn Coleman, who will be hostess at her home on Friday evening, Aug. 27. During the informal party, a linen shower will be presented to the bride-elect.

Naming the members of her bridal party this morning is Miss Patricia Books, who has chosen Sunday, Aug. 22, as the date for her wedding.

Miss Books, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Books of North Platte, has revealed that her marriage to Philip Lindekugel of North Platte, will be solemnized at 2:30 o'clock, at the First Christian Church in North Platte.

Miss Linda Anderson of Lincoln, will attend Miss Books as maid of honor, and her bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Anderson and Mrs. Robert Randolph, Lincoln.

Serving as best man will be Gerald L. Horst of Wisner, and the corps of ushers will include Perry Butler, Hartington; Frank Cox, Hershey; Ronald Books, brother of the bride-elect, Ernie Thayer and James Wise, North Platte; and Greg Kropp, Nebraska City.

Lighting the chancel candles will be Miss Book's brother, Richard Book, North Platte, and Tommy Olson, Lincoln.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Dble

Opening lead — nine of hearts.

There is no doubt that scientific bidding will pay good dividends in the long run, but there are many occasions when science would be better off taking a back seat. As an example of this we cite the accompanying hand played in a match between Great Britain and Denmark.

When the renowned Boris Schapiro and Terence Reese held the North-South cards for Britain, the bidding went as shown.

Schapiro could have bid three notrump over three clubs in the hope that Reese would provide values in spades, but, being unwilling to run the risk that the opponents might run a long spade suit against him, he bid three hearts instead. This invited Reese to contract for three notrump with appropriate spade strength.

The three heart bid struck home when Reese was now able to bid three notrump in comfort. A kinder fate might have rewarded Schapiro and Reese for their cautious bidding, but East had different ideas when he elected to double three notrump.

The double commanded a heart lead and West obliged by leading the nine. East won the jack with the queen and returned a spade, the king losing to the ace. Another heart lead permitted East to cash four heart tricks, after which a spade return enabled West to cash two spades to defeat the contract four tricks—700 points.

At the second table, the Danish North-South pair bid less scientifically but more effectively. The bidding went:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 NT

East led a heart, won by North with the jack. Not having X-ray eyes, North failed to finesse the ten of clubs and he made only the obvious seven tricks. As a result he went down two—100 points—but gained 600 points net on the deal. Apparently, though, science ultimately triumphed, since the British went on to win the match with ease.

DEAR ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter has announced that when she turns 18, in four months, she is getting married, and she wants "the whole show," as she puts it. She says the girl's father is supposed to pay for everything. Her father makes $5600 a year. There are three other children in our family, all younger. We are buying a $12,000 home and have a 30-year mortgage with 23 years left to pay. How much do parents owe their children?

Should we borrow money to put on "the whole show"? I think if our daughter wants that kind of wedding, she should go to work, save her money and put it on herself.

I would like to add that when I got married, I didn't even get a wedding present from my folks. I knew they couldn't afford it. I asked for nothing, expected nothing and got nothing. But I loved them and I knew they loved me, too. What makes young people today think that everything they want they have coming to them?

JUST PLAIN MA

DEAR MA: Your question is a good one. Young people who have been waited on and handed money for nothing develop the something-for-nothing attitude. Apparently your daughter hasn't been taught that a family is a team, and each member has to pull his share of the load and make a few sacrifices if necessary. If a girl is old enough to multiply, she's old enough to add. Tell her you can't afford "the whole show" and ring down the curtain on the whole subject.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: What is a girl supposed to do when her boy friend acts very, very affectionate to her in private, but like he never saw her before when they are in public?

SALLY

DEAR SALLY: Rejoice! It's better than having him act very, very affectionate in public, and like he never saw her before in private.

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure the woman and her husband who ask the waitresses a lot of personal questions must have been sitting at my station. You wouldn't believe how many people come in and ask, "What kind of accent do you have?" "Did you marry a G.I.?" "Since you didn't marry a G.I., where did you meet your husband?"

I don't mind answering a few questions from a nice little old couple who just want to make conversation. But once in a while you get a real pill, and the only way to stop him is to put him in his place by reversing the question and replying, "I met my husband in California. Where did you meet your wife?" This usually causes a stunned silence. But it always works.

Bishop Pike Hits Heresy Charge

San Francisco (AP) — Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike, charged again with heresy by fellow-clergymen, replied in typical outspoken fashion Tuesday that the latest accusations are "either utterly false or grossly misleading."

Fourteen Episcopal priests in Arizona have asked that Bishop Pike be dismissed. The request was made in a letter to Arizona Bishop Joseph M. Harte, who forwarded it to the ruling House of Bishops of the United States.

The 52-year-old Pike is bishop of the California Diocese, one of four dioceses in the state. It extends from Sacramento to San Luis Obispo, and was the first Episcopal diocese formed in California.

To Ordain Widow

He was charged with heresy for saying he intended to ordain a 48-year-old widow, Deaconess Phyllis Edwards of San Francisco, as perpetual deacon.

The Arizona priests also charged that Bishop Pike has failed to celebrate the Feast of the Annunciation in his Grace Cathedral and has denied the doctrine of the Holy Trinity.

Bishop Pike replied that Bishop Harte and the Rev. Paul D. Urbano, rector of All Saints Church in Phoenix, and one of the 14 complainants, voted at last year's Episcopal general convention in St. Louis for the ordination of women. There were no negative votes.

Pike also said that on the feast day of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary—the celebration of Christ's divinity — four services were held in the San Francisco Grace Cathedral.

'Time For Candor'

The question of the doctrine of Holy Trinity, Bishop Pike said, is fully discussed in his book, "A Time for Christian Candor," discussed at the convention last year.

Bishop Pike said there were no charges of heresy then over his views on this matter. He has said the doctrine of the Holy Trinity is one of the "outdated, incomprehensible and nonessential" teachings of his church.

Four years ago, several Episcopal priests in Georgia sent a letter to their bishop charging that Bishop Pike had committed heresy by declaring the virgin birth and a few other biblical miracles were "myths."

But the letter never got beyond the Georgia bishop, who sided with Bishop Pike in defining "myths" as possible explanations of deeper truths.

Vote At Glacier

Now that the Arizona bishop has forwarded the dismissal request to the House of Bishops, it would have to vote by simple majority for an extensive investigation. The vote will be taken in executive session when the nearly 200 bishops meet Sept. 7-10 in Glacier National Park, Mont.

An investigative board would consist of five clergymen and five laymen. None could come from Pike's diocese. If they should uphold the charges, an ecclesiastical trial would be held.

In the last Episcopal heresy trial in the United States, the Rt. Rev. William Montgomery Brown, retired bishop of Arkansas, was deposed in 1920 for calling Christ a symbol "such as Uncle Sam and Santa Claus."

Viet Protest Hunger Strike In 7th Day

Ft. Benning, Ga. (AP)—"There were 15,983 men at breakfast today—one absent."

The Army made that brief announcement Tuesday in reporting that a 26-year-old soldier had entered his seventh day of a hunger strike protesting his assignment to combat in Viet Nam.

Pfc. Winstel Belton of Milwaukee, Wis., refused again to eat breakfast. He had refused Monday on direct order of his commanding officer and was ordered held for court-martial.

The order to end the hunger strike came after doctors decided the lack of food had made him unfit for combat duty.

Belton is a communications specialist with the 1st Cavalry Division which is slated to ship out soon. The Army will decide whether he will be tried at Ft. Benning or aboard ship en route to Viet Nam.

King Gives Support To Guard Use

Los Angeles (UPI) — The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. Tuesday supported use of the National Guard to put down "blind, misguided" rioting here and said he would work to restore responsible leadership to the Negro community.

The Negro rights leader, met by about 200 persons at International Airport, said he came to "minister to the small degree that I can" to all who were involved.

He was greeted at the airport by Bayard Rustin, New York civil rights leader and unofficial chairman of the "board of the shadow civil rights" cabinet that follows King everywhere. Rustin arrived here earlier.

King said that "violence is not the answer to social conflict whether it is engaged in by white people in Alabama or by Negroes in Los Angeles."

King said he did not feel it was in the power of any Negro leader to have appealed with reason to the rioters and stopped the violence.

"It was a blind, misguided revolt against society and authority because they (the rioters) were alienated from their families, society and authority," said King. "I do not believe it was organized."

At the airport King said that thousands of innocent Negro people have been caught up in the riot "who have done no wrong or who have no thought in any way to use violence."

He said that a community has been disrupted and the institutions it needs daily have been destroyed by the riot.

Local Man Dies After Apparent Shotgun Suicide

Donald D. Schnuerle, 20, of 2827 So. 11th, died about 9:45 p.m. Monday night of an apparently self-inflicted shotgun wound in the head, according to the sheriff's office.

Two Schnuerle children, Kelli, 4, a girl, and Bill, 3, slept through the sound of the explosion. They were in separate bedrooms.

Schnuerle was found by a neighbor, Rodney L. Young, 2835 So. 11th. Fifteen minutes earlier, Schnuerle had asked Young to check his sleeping youngsters. Young found Schnuerle in the kitchen when he went to check the children. Schnuerle said he was going to pick up his wife who was working.

O Street Work Is To Continue

Additional improvement work on O Street has been scheduled according to Richard Erixon, city engineer.

Erixon said starting Wednesday, city crews will strip off old asphalt from Lincoln's main street from 25th to 16th.

However, he said he expects O to remain open to traffic.

Removal of the old surface should be completed in a week, Erixon said. Resurfacing will be started immediately after the Nebraska State Fair week.

TORNADO RIPS S. CAROLINA RESORT AREA

Ocean Drive, S.C. (AP)—A tornado slammed into the main section of this South Carolina coastal resort area late Tuesday smashing buildings and causing an estimated $1 million in damages. At least six persons were injured.

Myrtle Beach police said the damage would amount to at least $1 million.

Chief Merlin Bellamy of the Ocean Drive Police Department said rescuers were searching to determine if any other casualties were in the debris.

"We don't know if anyone has been killed or how many have been injured, but we're probing the area to determine what the situation is," Bellamy said.

Deadlocked Conferees Agree On Aid Program

Washington (AP) — Senate and House conferees, deadlocked since mid-June on foreign aid, agreed to recommend a one-year, $3.36-billion extension of the program Tuesday.

Senate negotiators dropped their insistence on a two-year extension, at $3.36 billion a year, and House conferees agreed to recommend extending the program for "two or more years" when the foreign aid bill comes up again next year.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., charged "a complete surrender" by his Senate colleagues and announced he will oppose the compromise bill on the Senate floor.

The compromise drops a Morse amendment which would have ended foreign aid in its present form on June 30, 1967, and set up a study committee to recommend a new approach.

Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., head of the House conferees, announced he will try to call up the compromise measure in that chamber Thursday.

President Johnson originally asked for $3.38 billion. Later he submitted an additional request for $89 million to finance the start of an economic and social development program in South Viet Nam, Thailand and Laos. This was included in the measure approved Tuesday.

In addition to agreeing to consider a multiyear authorization next year, the House conferees joined with Senate conferees in urging the President to inaugurate a review of the present aid format to seek to "direct it more effectively toward the solution of the problems of the developing countires."

The compromise bill authorizes $1.7 billion in military assistance, the remainder in economic aid, including $780.25 million for the development loan fund, $5[illegible]0.12 million for the Alliance for Progress program, and [illegible]10 million for technical cooperation and development grants.

Bishop Pike Hits Heresy Charge

San Francisco (AP) — Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike, charged again with heresy by fellow-clergymen, replied in typical outspoken fashion Tuesday that the latest accusations are "either utterly false or grossly misleading."

Fourteen Episcopal priests in Arizona have asked that Bishop Pike be dismissed. The request was made in a letter to Arizona Bishop Joseph M. Harte, who forwarded it to the ruling House of Bishops of the United States.

The 52-year-old Pike is bishop of the California Diocese, one of four dioceses in the state. It extends from Sacramento to San Luis Obispo, and was the first Episcopal diocese formed in California.

To Ordain Widow

He was charged with heresy for saying he intended to ordain a 48-year-old widow, Deaconess Phyllis Edwards of San Francisco, as perpetual deacon.

The Arizona priests also charged that Bishop Pike has failed to celebrate the Feast of the Annunciation in his Grace Cathedral and has denied the doctrine of the Holy Trinity.

Bishop Pike replied that Bishop Harte and the Rev. Paul D. Urbano, rector of All Saints Church in Phoenix, and one of the 14 complainants, voted at last year's Episcopal general convention in St. Louis for the ordination of women. There were no negative votes.

Pike also said that on the feast day of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary—the celebration of Christ's divinity — four services were held in the San Francisco Grace Cathedral.

'Time For Candor'

The question of the doctrine of Holy Trinity, Bishop Pike said, is fully discussed in his book, "A Time for Christian Candor," discussed at the convention last year.

Bishop Pike said there were no charges of heresy then over his views on this matter. He has said the doctrine of the Holy Trinity is one of the "outdated, incomprehensible and nonessential" teachings of his church.

Four years ago, several Episcopal priests in Georgia sent a letter to their bishop charging that Bishop Pike had committed heresy by declaring the virgin birth and a few other biblical miracles were "myths."

But the letter never got beyond the Georgia bishop, who sided with Bishop Pike in defining "myths" as possible explanations of deeper truths.

Vote At Glacier

Now that the Arizona bishop has forwarded the dismissal request to the House of Bishops, it would have to vote by simple majority for an extensive investigation. The vote will be taken in executive session when the nearly 200 bishops meet Sept. 7-10 in Glacier National Park, Mont.

An investigative board would consist of five clergymen and five laymen. None could come from Pike's diocese. If they should uphold the charges, an ecclesiastical trial would be held.

In the last Episcopal heresy trial in the United States, the Rt. Rev. William Montgomery Brown, retired bishop of Arkansas, was deposed in 1920 for calling Christ a symbol "such as Uncle Sam and Santa Claus."

Viet Protest Hunger Strike In 7th Day

Ft. Benning, Ga. (AP)—"There were 15,983 men at breakfast today—one absent."

The Army made that brief announcement Tuesday in reporting that a 26-year-old soldier had entered his seventh day of a hunger strike protesting his assignment to combat in Viet Nam.

Pfc. Winstel Belton of Milwaukee, Wis., refused again to eat breakfast. He had refused Monday on direct order of his commanding officer and was ordered held for court-martial.

The order to end the hunger strike came after doctors decided the lack of food had made him unfit for combat duty.

Belton is a communications specialist with the 1st Cavalry Division which is slated to ship out soon. The Army will decide whether he will be tried at Ft. Benning or aboard ship en route to Viet Nam.

King Gives Support To Guard Use

Los Angeles (UPI) — The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. Tuesday supported use of the National Guard to put down "blind, misguided" rioting here and said he would work to restore responsible leadership to the Negro community.

The Negro rights leader, met by about 200 persons at International Airport, said he came to "minister to the small degree that I can" to all who were involved.

He was greeted at the airport by Bayard Rustin, New York civil rights leader and unofficial chairman of the "board of the shadow civil rights" cabinet that follows King everywhere. Rustin arrived here earlier.

King said that "violence is not the answer to social conflict whether it is engaged in by white people in Alabama or by Negroes in Los Angeles."

King said he did not feel it was in the power of any Negro leader to have appealed with reason to the rioters and stopped the violence.

"It was a blind, misguided revolt against society and authority because they (the rioters) were alienated from their families, society and authority," said King. "I do not believe it was organized."

At the airport King said that thousands of innocent Negro people have been caught up in the riot "who have done no wrong or who have no thought in any way to use violence."

He said that a community has been disrupted and the institutions it needs daily have been destroyed by the riot.

Local Man Dies After Apparent Shotgun Suicide

Donald D. Schnuerle, 20, of 2827 So. 11th, died about 9:45 p.m. Monday night of an apparently self-inflicted shotgun wound in the head, according to the sheriff's office.

Two Schnuerle children, Kelli, 4, a girl, and Bill, 3, slept through the sound of the explosion. They were in separate bedrooms.

Schnuerle was found by a neighbor, Rodney L. Young, 2835 So. 11th. Fifteen minutes earlier, Schnuerle had asked Young to check his sleeping youngsters. Young found Schnuerle in the kitchen when he went to check the children. Schnuerle said he was going to pick up his wife who was working.

O Street Work Is To Continue

Additional improvement work on O Street has been scheduled according to Richard Erixon, city engineer.

Erixon said starting Wednesday, city crews will strip off old asphalt from Lincoln's main street from 25th to 16th.

However, he said he expects O to remain open to traffic.

Removal of the old surface should be completed in a week, Erixon said. Resurfacing will be started immediately after the Nebraska State Fair week.

TORNADO RIPS S. CAROLINA RESORT AREA

Ocean Drive, S.C. (AP)—A tornado slammed into the main section of this South Carolina coastal resort area late Tuesday smashing buildings and causing an estimated $1 million in damages. At least six persons were injured.

Myrtle Beach police said the damage would amount to at least $1 million.

Chief Merlin Bellamy of the Ocean Drive Police Department said rescuers were searching to determine if any other casualties were in the debris.

"We don't know if anyone has been killed or how many have been injured, but we're probing the area to determine what the situation is," Bellamy said.

Deadlocked Conferees Agree On Aid Program

Washington (AP) — Senate and House conferees, deadlocked since mid-June on foreign aid, agreed to recommend a one-year, $3.36-billion extension of the program Tuesday.

Senate negotiators dropped their insistence on a two-year extension, at $3.36 billion a year, and House conferees agreed to recommend extending the program for "two or more years" when the foreign aid bill comes up again next year.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., charged "a complete surrender" by his Senate colleagues and announced he will oppose the compromise bill on the Senate floor.

The compromise drops a Morse amendment which would have ended foreign aid in its present form on June 30, 1967, and set up a study committee to recommend a new approach.

Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., head of the House conferees, announced he will try to call up the compromise measure in that chamber Thursday.

President Johnson originally asked for $3.38 billion. Later he submitted an additional request for $89 million to finance the start of an economic and social development program in South Viet Nam, Thailand and Laos. This was included in the measure approved Tuesday.

In addition to agreeing to consider a multiyear authorization next year, the House conferees joined with Senate conferees in urging the President to inaugurate a review of the present aid format to seek to "direct it more effectively toward the solution of the problems of the developing countires."

The compromise bill authorizes $1.7 billion in military assistance, the remainder in economic aid, including $780.25 million for the development loan fund, $580.12 million for the Alliance for Progress program, and $210 million for technical cooperation and development grants.

Sorensen: RFK Did Not Disagree On LBJ

New York (AP) — Theodore C. Sorensen said Tuesday that Robert F. Kennedy did not disagree in any way with his brother's choice of Lyndon B. Johnson as a vice presidential candidate in 1960.

"Was Bobby Kennedy as equally enthusiastic as Sen. Kennedy to have Johnson on the ticket?" Sorensen was asked in a CBS television interview by Mike Wallace.

"Yes, he was," replied Sorensen, who was one of the late President John F. Kennedy's closest advisers.

Don't Conflict

Sorensen said the various versions of how Johnson was chosen which have been published recently don't really conflict much.

"They simply each have a different piece of the same story," he said.

Here's a rundown on recent published accounts:

— Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., former Kennedy aide, said Kennedy offered Johnson the vice presidential spot, thinking he would not accept, and that his decision was unpopular with Robert Kennedy.

—Philip Graham, late publisher of the Washington Post and chairman of Newsweek magazine, worte that Robert Kennedy told Johnson he should withdraw from vice presidential consideration, but that John Kennedy said it was a mistake because "Bobby's been out of touch."

—President Johnson told a July 13 news conference that John Kennedy "asked me on his own motion" to accept the second spot, and then went to work to erase Johnson's own reservations.

Sorensen said of Robert Kennedy's role that his assignment was "that of delivering bad news to the Johnson camp."

'Quite A Few' Doctors Will Reject Medicare Program: AMA Head

Lancaster, Pa. (AP) — Dr. James Z. Appel, president of the American Medical Association, predicted Tuesday that "quite a few" doctors throughout the country will refuse to participate in the medicare program.

In an interview, Appel said the doctor's protest would take the form of refusing to complete the forms required by the federal government under the new program of health care for the aged.

This would have the effect, he said, of making payments to the doctors by the Social Security system impossible.

Appel emphasized, however, that "I have not heard one physician tell me that he will not take care of patients over 65 but quite a few will ignore the required government forms."

Recently, in Chicago, the AMA advised the nation's doctors that they would risk prosecution under the Sherman Antitrust Act if they acted in concert as a medical organization to boycott medicare. The organization pointed out, however, that individual doctors could refuse to accept a patient who is a beneficiary under the program.

Appel said a special committee of the AMA is in continuing meetings with officials of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which is the administering federal agency, to advise on formulation of rules and regulations to govern the program.

Appel is a practicing physician here.

Bauer: Tax Rate Would Have Been About 2½%

The chief sponsor of the state income tax bill passed at the current legislative session estimated Tuesday that were the state income tax replacing the state property tax this year, the income tax rate would be around 2½%.

Lincoln Sen. Hal Bauer said, however, that precise estimates are difficult because of uncertainty about the total amount of corporate income taxable. Individual income totals can be quite accurately projected because of federal income tax experience, but the state will need to accumulate some experience with the corporate tax to achieve greater exactness, he noted.

The State Board of Equalization has set the state property tax levy at 11.73 mills, designed to raise $44.8 million during the coming year.

Bauer said the 2½% estimate on the flat rate income tax rate needed to raise the $44.8 millions is based on prior calculations that a two percent tax would raise some $34 million.

Sen. George Gerdes of Alliance, another leader in the fight for the income tax, said he thought an income tax of 2¾% would have been required this year to replace the property tax.

The income tax is scheduled to take effect in 1967 but currently is the subject of a referendum petition drive which would give voters next year a chance either to repeal it, or retain it.

Morrison Bids Farewell To Legislators

Governor Morrison Tuesday voiced general satisfaction with the accomplishments of the 1965 Legislature in a brief farewell address to state senators.

Morrison, whose revenue program was largely shunned by lawmakers, said he disagreed with legislative action "on a number of issues."

But complete agreement among all branches of government, he said, would sound "the death of the Democratic system."

Morrison's recommendations to support additional government services by excise tax levies were generally shattered early in the session, and a state income tax which he opposed was instead enacted.

He vetoed four bills in this session, and his executive rejection was overturned on the floor of the Legislature three times.

Morrison lauded enactment in this 75th session of a major public power reorganization bill, laws to revamp administration and revenue collections in state government, and a six-year building program for the University of Nebraska, state colleges and institutions.

These accomplishments came about, he said, with only nominal increases in the state property tax.

"I know you share with me the pride that Nebraska is a leader in many areas, while its citizens contribute less than those in any other state for the support of government," he said.

He predicted that history would someday record the passage of LB301 as the "most important step" ever taken by a Nebraska Legislature.

The bill provides an area concept for offering special education courses that most small school systems can't afford.

The governor summed up the diamond anniversay Legislature as one that "forged many degrees of leadership."

Bill Drafter Will Continue Job On Half-Time Basis

The Legislature on a 30-5 vote Tuesday approved the continued employment, on a half-time basis, of the Legislature's bill drafter, Lincoln Attorney John J. (Jack) Wilson.

Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter made the motion, pointing to interim legal duties on which the Legislature and Legislative Council will need help.

Wilson would draw half pay during the interim period.

Power Merge Bill Court Test Asked

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

A Supreme Court test "as quickly as possible" of the public power merger bill passed by the 1965 Legislature is the hope of Paul Ogier of Wallace, state director of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Assn.

Ogier, in Lincoln for the semi-annual meeting of the Nebraska Rural Electric Assn. Tuesday, declared that the "wheeling clause" is the "most important" provision of LB764, consolidating the operations of Consumers Public Power District, Loup River Public Power District and Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District.

This provision is important to the rurals, he said, because it allows them to buy power from an agency other than the grid and have the grid "wheel" or deliver it to them.

'Very Interested'

Ogier also commented that rural electric officials are "very interested in the appointments to the board which Gov Morrison will make" The state director predicted that the governor's appointments will be announced "sometime next week"

"I feel that the people and especially the board is the thing that will make this new organization work," Ogier said.

Ogier was re-elected state director at the meeting Tuesday.

Kermit Overby, of Washington, D.C, director of legislation and research for the National Rural Electrification Assn, told some 200 directors and secretaries from the 34-member rural electric systems in the state that the history of the REA loan funds this year is "particularly significant, for it may indicate what we need to do in the future"

Ogier

Overby

Tracing the REA attempt to get congressional authorization of a $475 million loan fund, being settled this week in a House-Senate conference committee somewhere between $350 and $380 million, Overby emphasized the action concerning the contingency fund.

Funds Released

Overby praised the "tremendous demonstration to see that your needs for the program were taken care of" as pressure on budget officials resulted in the release of needed contingency funds.

Addressing the rural electric officials on his experiences as a member of a six-man team studying the possibility of rural electrification in Viet Nam was Charles Ham of Sidney, manager of the Wheatbelt Public Power District.

Ham reported that the country is now working on developing systems and noted that foreign aid included money to build systems

'Need To Electrify'

"They need to electrify the whole country" because the only power, except for scattered private portable plants, is in the cities and larger towns, he said "They all want electricity, but presently their needs are quiet modest."

Ham acknowledged that their survey activities were hampered by the war because the "whole country is a war area No area is completely safe"

Not daring to go on the highways, Ham said he and his team "had to fly everywhere we went," during the 90 days they were in Viet Nam.

During the meeting Tuesday the Nebraska Rural Electric Assn endorsed the recently enacted federal water resources planning act and encouraged state implementation, urged wholesale power supply agencies of Nebraska to cooperate with out-of-state agencies in order to provide adequate inter-connections resulting in lowest cost power possible, urged the Federal Power Commission and Congress to regulate interconnected power systems, reaffirmed support of the present REA loan terms

REA Needs To Attract Non-Federal Money

Attracting non-government money to the Rural Electric Assn. loan program is being discussed in state and regional electric systems meetings as a means of financing unmet growth capital needs

Kermit Overby, legislation and research department director of REA, and Paul Ogier state director of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Assn., said in Lincoln Tuesday that a "serious problem" will be facing the rural electrics in the next few years because the annual authorization for REA loan is not meeting the applications for REA money.

The two agreed that an approximate $310 million backlog existed to date.

Annual Needs

By 1980, it is estimated that annual needs will run from $675 to $775 million. The 1965 authorization was only $375 million and the 1966 sum is expected to be approximately $365 million

Suggesting that stronger-based power systems will "eventually" be expected to get needed money for growth capital needs on their own, Overby also contended that many systems will continue to require capital.

Suggested devices for the mechanism of attracting non-government money to the REA loan program include a central bank and a guaranteed loan program.

The bank, according to one outline, might give the REA administrator authority to offer loan guarantees. Later, when borrowers — through their purchases of stock — achieved majority ownership the bank would pass gradually into the hands of the rural electric systems

Loans, to enable borrowers to operte more effectively and efficiently, would be subject only to terms established by a board. In the bank's early years, the government would supply administrative assistance through REA and provide initial equity capital.

A suggestion for an intermediate REA financing program, according to Overby, would be establishment of a loan program in which the funds were provided by the flow of principal, interest and advance repayments on outstanding REA loans into a revolving loan fund account.

Attempt To Revive Tax Plan Nixed

The Legislature batted down 27-13 Tuesday Scottsbluff Sen Terry Carpenter's effort to revive a resolution on intangible property taxes

His Resolution 48 had been rejected earlier on recommendation of the Banking Committee after a public hearing.

The resolution would direct that county assessors be instructed to add to the tax rolls as intangible property all intangible property owned by banks, including stocks, bonds, notes and accounts receivable: the portfolios of insurance companies and the stocks and bonds and shares of building and loan associations

Carpenter indicated the resolution is intended to provoke a lawsuit to test whether these securities should be taxed as intangibles. He said the banks, insurance companies and savings and loan associations themselves have "more than reasonable doubt that what they are doing will not stand the test of law"

Sen. Albert Kjar of Lexington, banking committee chairman, protested the revival motion. He termed it an attempt to change intangible tax laws by resolution instead of by law, and said it was "ill-advised to bring it up at this late date."

Approved 32-10 was a Carpenter Resolution, 105, urging Nebraska's Department of Education to utilize Nebraska's private vocational technical schools for training under the Manpower Development and Training Act

Women's Job Corps Stalled By Backlog

Lincoln's screening center for the Women's Job Corps, operated by Women In Community Service, will not process any more girls until Sept. 1 because of the large backlog of girls waiting to get into the training program, according to Mrs. Richard Rice, WICS publicity director.

The extensive waiting lists accumulated when the centers were slow in opening, Mrs. Rice explained

She indicated that the board of directors of Women in Community Service planned to keep the center open even though the screening would be stopped.

The Job Corps, established by the Economic Opportunity Act, functions to give youths, 16-21 years of age with no future job prospects, job skills, basic education and good work and living habits.

It added that seven million rounds of machine gun and rifle ammunition and several thousand automatic weapons and pistols have been collected. Bomb disposal units are still called out almost daily.

Double Overtime Plan Defeated

Washington (AP) — The administration's plan for double overtime pay as one way to spread employment failed Tuesday as the House Education and Labor Committee moved toward a final vote on hiking the minimum wage to $1 75 an hour

The committee agreed on final details of the bill to boost the hourly wage from $1 25 and broaden coverage. A final vote is scheduled Wednesday, with approval almost certain.

The move for double overtime after the 49th hour of work was beaten, 18 to 12 Employer groups had opposed this, saying it wouldn't mean more employment, only higher labor costs

But a proposal by Rep Roman C Pucinski, D-Ill, was adopted It calls for a report by the Secretary of Labor next year on the feasibility of penalty pay for overtime.

The bill to boost the minimum wage would also extend coverage to 7.2 million more workers, including 200,000 janitorial and maintenance employes of educational institutions.

An amendment by Rep Lloyd Meeds, D-Wash would provide that canneries dealing with a perishable crop can work employes up to 48 hours a week for 11 weeks without paying overtime premium pay. The present procedure allows such processors two 14-week exemptions a year with no overtime payments until after 56 hours of work.

Power Merge Bill Court Test Asked

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

A Supreme Court test "as quickly as possible" of the public power merger bill passed by the 1965 Legislature is the hope of Paul Ogier of Wallace, state director of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Assn.

Ogier, in Lincoln for the semi-annual meeting of the Nebraska Rural Electric Assn. Tuesday, declared that the "wheeling clause" is the "most important" provision of LB764, consolidating the operations of Consumers Public Power District, Loup River Public Power District and Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District.

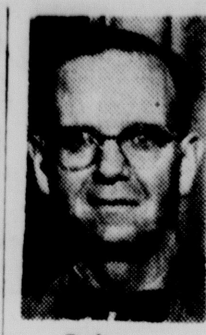
This provision is important to the rurals, he said, because it allows them to buy power from an agency other than the grid and have the grid "wheel" or deliver it to them.

'Very Interested'

Ogier also commented that rural electric officials are "very interested in the appointments to the board which Gov. Morrison will make." The state director predicted that the governor's appointments will be announced "sometime next week."

"I feel that the people and especially the board is the thing that will make this new organization work," Ogier said.

Ogier was re-elected state director at the meeting Tuesday.



Ogier

Overby

Kermit Overby, of Washington, D.C., director of legislation and research for the National Rural Electrification Assn., told some 200 directors and secretaries from the 34-member rural electric systems in the state that the history of the REA loan funds this year is "particularly significant, for it may indicate what we need to do in the future."

Tracing the REA attempt to get congressional authorization of a $475 million loan fund, being settled this week in a House-Senate conference committee somewhere between $350 and $380 million, Overby emphasized the action concerning the contingency fund.

Funds Released

Overby praised the "tremendous demonstration to see that your needs for the program were taken care of" as pressure on budget officials resulted in the release of needed contingency funds.

Addressing the rural electric officials on his experiences as a member of a six-man team studying the possibility of rural electrification in Viet Nam was Charles Ham of Sidney, manager of the Wheatbelt Public Power District.

Ham reported that the country is now working on developing systems and noted that foreign aid included money to build systems.

'Need To Electrify'

"They need to electrify the whole country" because the only power, except for scattered private portable plants, is in the cities and larger towns, he said. "They all want electricity, but presently their needs are quiet modest."

Ham acknowledged that their survey activities were hampered by the war because the "whole country is a war area. No area is completely safe."

Not daring to go on the highways, Ham said he and his team "had to fly everywhere we went," during the 90 days they were in Viet Nam.

During the meeting Tuesday the Nebraska Rural Electric Assn. endorsed the recently enacted federal water resources planning act and encouraged state implementation; urged wholesale power supply agencies of Nebraska to cooperate with out-of-state agencies in order to provide adequate inter-connections resulting in lowest cost power possible; urged the Federal Power Commission and Congress to regulate interconnected power systems; reaffirmed support of the present REA loan terms.

REA Needs To Attract Non-Federal Money

Attracting non-government money to the Rural Electric Assn. loan program is being discussed in state and regional electric systems meetings as a means of financing unmet growth capital needs.

Kermit Overby, legislation and research department director of REA, and Paul Ogier state director of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Assn., said in Lincoln Tuesday that a "serious problem" will be facing the rural electrics in the next few years because the annual authorization for REA loan is not meeting the applications for REA money.

The two agreed that an approximate $310 million backlog existed to date.

Annual Needs

By 1980, it is estimated that annual needs will run from $675 to $775 million. The 1965 authorization was only $375 million and the 1966 sum is expected to be approximately $365 million.

Suggesting that stronger-based power systems will "eventually" be expected to get needed money for growth capital needs on their own, Overby also contended that many systems will continue to require capital.

Suggested devices for the mechanism of attracting non-government money to the REA loan program include a central bank and a guaranteed loan program.

The bank, according to one outline, might give the REA administrator authority to offer loan guarantees. Later, when borrowers — through their purchases of stock — achieved majority ownership the bank would pass gradually into the hands of the rural electric systems.

Loans, to enable borrowers to operte more effectively and efficiently, would be subject only to terms established by a board. In the bank's early years, the government would supply administrative assistance through REA and provide initial equity capital.

A suggestion for an intermediate REA financing program, according to Overby, would be establishment of a loan program in which the funds were provided by the flow of principal, interest and advance repayments on outstanding REA loans into a revolving loan fund account.

Women's Job Corps Stalled By Backlog

Lincoln's screening center for the Women's Job Corps, operated by Women In Community Service, will not process any more girls until Sept. 1 because of the large backlog of girls waiting to get into the training program, according to Mrs. Richard Rice, WICS publicity director.

The extensive waiting lists accumulated when the centers were slow in opening, Mrs. Rice explained.

She indicated that the board of directors of Women in Community Service planned to keep the center open even though the screening would be stopped.

The centers want to keep in contact with girls already processed and will continue to gather names of girls who are interested in the program for screening after Sept. 1, she said.

Attempt To Revive Tax Plan Nixed

The Legislature batted down 27-13 Tuesday Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter's effort to revive a resolution on intangible property taxes.

His Resolution 48 had been rejected earlier on recommendation of the Banking Committee after a public hearing.

The resolution would direct that county assessors be instructed to add to the tax rolls as intangible property all intangible property owned by banks, including stocks, bonds, notes and accounts receivable; the portfolios of insurance companies and the stocks and bonds and shares of building and loan associations.

Carpenter indicated the resolution is intended to provoke a lawsuit to test whether these securities should be taxed as intangibles. He said the banks, insurance companies and savings and loan associations themselves have "more than reasonable doubt that what they are doing will not stand the test of law."

Sen. Albert Kjar of Lexington, banking committee chairman, protested the revival motion. He termed it an attempt to change intangible tax laws by resolution instead of by law, and said it was "ill-advised to bring it up at this late date."

Approved 32-10 was a Carpenter Resolution, 105, urging Nebraska's Department of Education to utilize Nebraska's private vocational technical schools for training under the Manpower Development and Training Act.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you. Nebraskans Defend Titles

Nebraska's Bob Churchich and Freeman White are among the six Big Eight gridders who will be back this season to defend statistical titles

White is the defending leader in pass receiving with 348 yards on 17 receptions and Churchich returns as the passing leader with 893 yards

The other four returning champions are Oklahoma State's Larry Elliott, who scampered to a second title in kickoff returns Walt Garrison, aiming for a second rushing crown, and Charles Durkee the Cowboys' kicking specialist, and Missouri's Gary Lane, last year's total offense leader

Skywriters Planning Third Trip

Plans are nearly complete for the third annual Big Eight Skywriters trip through the conference football camps

This year's journey is scheduled to start Sept. 2 with Kansas the first stop The writers and broadcasters will be in Lincoln to visit the Cornhusker camp Sept. 6, well rested after a free Sunday in Boulder, Colo.

Twenty-eight writers and broadcasters plus Big Eight officials, Wayne Duke, John Waldorf and Mickey Holmes will make this year's trip

Mitchell Picks Jayhawks 4th

Kansas coach Jack Mitchell is picking his Jayhawks fourth behind Nebraska, Missouri and Oklahoma (not particularly in that order) this season

Mitchell has promised Kansas fans more passing this season and the Jayhawks threw 81 passes in their spring game The KU coach says there are three reasons for the "new look" offense at Lawrence

"The defenses are more versatile and eliminate offense consistency, which forces us to do more throwing. We believe we have better receiving We have improved throwing."

Pheasants About Same, Except . . .

For the first time in the last umpteenth years, Nebraska's Game Commission isn't claiming the state's pheasant population is up 15 to 20%, except in most areas

But they are still putting out the optimistic propaganda that hunting will be better except for the Panhandle and the Sandhills. "Relative increases—ranging from three to 20% — in all the rest of the state make the picture about the same as last year," a commission official notes.

There's that 20% figure again In two more years Nebraska will be the only place in the nation with more pheasants than any other animal including humans

At the same time that Mel Steen's department shouts, "We got great hunting" Iowa admits that its pheasant population is down because of last winter's snows and especially in Northwest Iowa where the count is down 50%

Now, according to the little bit of geography we learned in elementary school, Northwest Iowa is separated from Northeast Nebraska only by the Missouri River.

How can Iowa's count in Northwest Iowa be down 50% when just across the river in Nebraska it is up 3 to 20%? Strange mathematics!

Just Wondering

Just wondering why when Arnie Palmer was assessed a two-stroke penalty for tearing the bridge down in the first round of the PGA, he didn't claim he was only making capital improvements on his own course?

DODGERS RETAIN LEAD

Braves Get 5th Straight Win

. . . LA TOPS PHILS

By United Press International

Southpaw Denny LeMaster scattered three hits to lead the rampaging Milwaukee Braves to their fifth victory in a row Tuesday night 4-1 over the St Louis Cardinals

LeMaster, bothered by tendonitis much of the campaign, gave up a leadoff single to Lou Brock, picked him off first base and pitched hitless ball for seven innings. The Cardinals scored their run in the eighth when Tim McCarver singled and scored on Dal Maxwell's double.

Felipe Alou led the slugging Braves with four hits in five trips to the plate Alou singled in the third and took second on Curt Flood's fielding error He scored on Mack Jones' single to right Jones took second on Ted Savage's throw to the plate which went awry Jones scored from third later on Joe Torre's fielder's choice

The braves scored again in the fifth on Hank Aaron's two run homer

The Los Angeles Dodgers retained their half-game hold on first place by defeating the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2. Jim Lefebvre drove in the tie-breaking run with a single in the seventh inning. Claude Osteen received credit for his 11th victory although Ron Perranoski relieved him in the top of the eighth.

Vern Law gained credit for his 14th victory as the Pittsburgh Pirates downed the Houston Astros 8-6 Donn Clendenon led the Pirates' 12-hit attack with a homer—the first hit by a Pirate in the Astrodome — while Rusty Staub homered for the Astros

Rookie Ken Henderson doubled home two runs in the fourth inning Tuesday to give the San Francisco Giants their second straight 3-2 victory over the New York Mets

Henderson's blow erased a 2-1 Met lead and enabled Bob Bolin, who fanned nine batters in relief, to register his seventh win

New York took a 2-0 lead by scoring single runs in the second and third innings both charged to starter Gaylord Perry Roy McMillan singled home Charlie Smith in the second inning and Chuck Hiller scored on an infield out in the second after Perry had walked the bases full and been removed in favor of Bolin

Willie McCovey singled home an unearned run by Henderson in the third inning and then in the fourth Jim Ray Hart and Len Gabrielson singled ahead of Henderson's game-winning double

The win ran Bolin's record to 7-4 and the loss was charged to Jack Fisher, making his log read 7-16

Home runs by Frank Robinson and Deron Johnson plus relief pitching by Billy McCool and Sammy Ellis led the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Robinson hit his 22nd homer in the second inning and Johnson his 23rd in the sixth to help rookie Ted Davidson win his second game

Johnson also drove in a run with a single to increase his league-leading runs-batted-in total to 97. Billy Williams hit his 20th homer for the Cubs.

Detroit Topples Twins

By United Press International

Willie Horton hit two home runs and Al Kaline and Don Wert one apiece Tuesday night to power the Detroit Tigers to a 7-4 victory over the league-leading Minnesota Twins

The win lifted Detroit into sole possession of second place, seven games behind the Twins who now have lost four of their last five games. It was the eighth triumph in the past nine games for the Tigers

Kaline's homer a bases-empty shot in the third, was the 250th of his major league career He ranks fifth among active American League players He drove in another run with a single in the fifth.

Don Wert started the Detroit home run barrage by hitting his eighth of the year to lead off the third inning Horton hit his first homer leading off the fourth. He hit his second of the game and 25th of the year in the fifth with two on.

Hank Aguirre, who shut out the Twins on five hits through seven frames, picked up the win, his 12th of the year, with relief help from Terry Fox. Rookie Jim Merritt suffered the defeat, his first in three decisions since joining the Twins July 30.

Lew Krausse, a onetime $100,000 bonus baby making his first major league appearance of the season, dropped Cleveland into a tie for third place by pitching the Kansas City Athletics to a 3-2 victory over the Indians. Krausse limited Cleveland to two hits over the first six innings, but needed relief help from Don Mossi after serving up a two-run homer to Larry Brown Bert Campaneris and Rene Lachemann homered for the A's

Matson May Retire Until Feud Settled

. . . TEXAS A&M COACH TESTIFIES

Washington (AP) — Track star Tom Farrell caught in the middle of the fight between the rival powers ruling U S amateur athletics testified Tuesday he may be barred from college meets this fall and winter

And Earl Rudder, president of Texas A&M, said the squeeze has become so intense that his school's world champion shot putter, Randy Matson, is thinking of retiring from competition until it ends.

The testimony marked the second day of a Senate Commerce Committee investigation into the row between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union The senators want to learn whether a law is needed to settle the jurisdictional feud

The two bodies have agreed to a truce with no discipline against any athletes at least until the committee winds up its hearings

Farrell told the committee he is in hot water with the NCAA for disobeying its boycott against the AAU National Championships in San Diego, Calif., which picked most of the U S. track and field team that lost to Russia recently.

His reasons for defying the NCAA boycott, Farrell said, included a patriotic desire to represent his country against the Soviets, and the belief that he also should use his "God-given talent"

But he told reporters of another reason — pretty Chris Janowski the girl he intends to marry told him "Go ahead and run in the AAU meet Don't be a dope"

Farrell said the U S. team in Russia was strong, but the row over qualification had affected it He said some top athletes refused to risk disciplinary action by the NCAA or their schools

Farrel fifth in the 800 meters in the 1964 Tokyo Olympics said he placed only as an alternate on the U S squad and never got to run against the Russians

Rudder testified that Matson's morale and performance have slipped because of concern over the athletic jurisdictional war He said Matson who will testify next week, has confided to his coach that he may retire from competition "until this thing blows over"

Farrell said he still can run for his school this fall and winter in this, his last year in college, but "I'll most likely lose my eligibility." He said he has received no official word of such a planned penalty, but he expects it.

The 21-year-old athlete said his track coach reported receiving a telephone call from Walter Byers NCAA executive director, before the AAU meet warning that disciplinary action would be taken against him or the school if Farrell competed

Byers subsequently issued a statement that no such call had been made and that the question whether Farrell's athletic scholarship of grant-in-aid is terminated would be up to the school The statement did not mention eligibility

Farrell called the row "just a disgrace." Rudder termed it "unbelievable" conduct for adults.

Farrell said he hopes some agency will be created with power to restore the peace permanently Rudder suggested a permanent arbitration board set up by Congress

Rudder said he fears the fight will discourage young athletes from competing, and ultimately will hurt the United States in the 1968 Olympic Games

The hearings continue Wednesday with witnesses including Olympic stars of the past.

—ARMY COACH 'SURPRISED'—

Dietzel Denies Charge Of Unethical Recruiting

West Point N Y (AP) — Paul Dietzel, Army's football coach, denied Tuesday a charge by the University of Florida football coach that he had engaged in unethical recruiting practices in the case of a Florida schoolboy fullback Ron Esmann

The accusation was made Monday by Ray Graves, the Florida coach, after he had learned that Esmann, who had signed a grant-in-aid at Florida, had decided to go to Bordenton Prep School on a half-scholarship to prepare for entrance to West Point

Dietzel said in a statement

"I was surprised and disappointed to read the statements allegedly made by my old friend Coach Ray Graves that I had engaged in unethical recruiting practices in no way have I or any representatives of the Military Academy deviated from either the letter or the spirit of the constitution bylaws and regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association or the Eastern College Athletic Conference

Even though this fine young man (Esmann) expressed great interest' in the Military Academy as early as April 1964, it is understandable that he signed a letter of intent with the University of Florida since no one can assure a candidate in advance that he will eventually receive an appointment to the Military Academy

"Upon nomination, all candidates must meet the academy's exacting admission requirements — academic, medical and physical When Graves called me last Sunday evening concerning Ron Esmann, the young man's appointment status was not discussed at all"

Graves had said he had talked to Dietzel about this, and he said he was unable to get the boy an appointment this fall, that he would have to send him to a prep school That means the boy and the boy's daddy will be paying part of the expenses as well as some foundation the academy has for such things"

Graves said it was the second time this year Dietzel had taken a Florida prospect He said the other player was Jay Olner an end from Clearwater, who had an appointment to West Point and expressed a desire to go there

He said Esmann, whose home is in Pompano Beach, did not have one and that was what irked him

"We can't get this scholarship back" said Graves It's gone I've been on the phone for days trying to straighten this thing out but all Dietzel will say is that he is going to look into this and that

"The fact is they are unethical and dead wrong in the things they are doing, and no sweet talk is going to change that"

Esmann, a 6-foot-1, 195-pounder said he didn't expect to go to West Point but now hopes to go there

At a news conference in Miami Tuesday, Graves called for a national letter of intent to stop service academies from grabbing prospective players.

Tee Shot Not Always Key To Par-3 Success

. . . HILLCREST BEST NO. 3

(Third of a Series)
By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

The primary object in playing a par 3 hole is to get on the green with the tee shot but fulfilling that object is not always the key to success

Amateurs Charlie Borner and Matt Taber and host pro Bunny Richards learned this fact of life in playing the No. 3 hole in the Lincoln Star's Nebraska's Best 18 at the Hillcrest Country Club in Lincoln

Hillcrest's third hole is a long par 3 that measures 232 yards from tee to green. The green is trapped to the right and the fairway slopes toward the trap

The three golfers playing the hole for the Lincoln Star's series took distinctly different routes

Borner hit a 2-iron to the right side of the green and had to come over the trap to reach the green with his second shot Making the shot even more difficult the day the hole was played was the hardness of the green and the pin placement which was to the right side

This meant Borner had to loft a shot over the sand and try to stop it quickly on the green He hit as soft a shot as possible over the trap but it ran on the hard surface 14 feet past the hole

However Borner made the putt for the par 3 to keep him even with par in the series

Richards hit a 3-wood from the tee and landed in the left rough He chipped to the green and had an 18-foot putt left to get the par.

The Hillcrest pro rammed it in to keep the pros only one over-par through the third hole

Taber the Lincoln City champion and runner-up in the state tournament, hit the best tee ball of the trio He placed his tee shot on the green with a 2-iron and had a 40-foot putt for his birdie

But Taber missed the putt by five feet, then left the par putt a foot short for a bogey-4 The bogey put Taber four-over-par through the first three holes in the series

Nebraskans Defend Titles

Nebraska's Bob Churchich and Freeman White are among the six Big Eight gridders who will be back this season to defend statistical titles.

White is the defending leader in pass receiving with 348 yards on 17 receptions and Churchich returns as the passing leader with 893 yards.

The other four returning champions are Oklahoma State's Larry Elliott, who scampered to a second title in kickoff returns, Walt Garrison, aiming for a second rushing crown, and Charles Durkee, the Cowboys' kicking specialist, and Missouri's Gary Lane, last year's total offense leader.

Skywriters Planning Third Trip

Plans are nearly complete for the third annual Big Eight Skywriters trip through the conference football camps.

This year's journey is scheduled to start Sept. 2 with Kansas the first stop. The writers and broadcasters will be in Lincoln to visit the Cornhusker camp Sept. 6, well rested after a free Sunday in Boulder, Colo.

Twenty-eight writers and broadcasters plus Big Eight officials, Wayne Duke, John Waldorf and Mickey Holmes will make this year's trip.

Mitchell Picks Jayhawks 4th

Kansas coach Jack Mitchell is picking his Jayhawks fourth behind Nebraska, Missouri and Oklahoma (not particularly in that order) this season.

Mitchell has promised Kansas fans more passing this season and the Jayhawks threw 81 passes in their spring game. The KU coach says there are three reasons for the "new look" offense at Lawrence:

"The defenses are more versatile and eliminate offense consistency, which forces us to do more throwing. We believe we have better receiving. We have improved throwing."

Pheasants About Same, Except . . .

For the first time in the last umpteenth years, Nebraska's Game Commission isn't claiming the state's pheasant population is up 15 to 20%, except . . . in most areas.

But they are still putting out the optimistic propaganda that hunting will be better except for the Panhandle and the Sandhills. "Relative increases—ranging from three to 20% — in all the rest of the state make the picture about the same as last year," a commission official notes.

There's that 20% figure again. In two more years, Nebraska will be the only place in the nation with more pheasants than any other animal including humans.

At the same time that Mel Steen's department shouts, "We got great hunting," Iowa admits that its pheasant population is down because of last winter's snows and especially in Northwest Iowa where the count is down 50%.

Now, according to the little bit of geography we learned in elementary school, Northwest Iowa is separated from Northeast Nebraska only by the Missouri River.

How can Iowa's count in Northwest Iowa be down 50% when just across the river in Nebraska, it is up 3 to 20%? Strange mathematics!

Just Wondering

Just wondering why when Arnie Palmer was assessed a two-stroke penalty for tearing the bridge down in the first round of the PGA, he didn't claim he was only making capital improvements on his own course?

Tee Shot Not Always Key To Par-3 Success

. . . HILLCREST BEST NO. 3

(Third of a Series)

By HAL BROWN

Star Sports Editor

The primary object in playing a par-3 hole is to get on the green with the tee shot, but fulfilling that object is not always the key to success.

Amateurs Charlie Borner and Matt Taber and host pro Bunny Richards learned this fact of life in playing the No. 3 hole in the Lincoln Star's Nebraska's Best 18 at the Hillcrest Country Club in Lincoln.

Hillcrest's third hole is a long par 3 that measures 232 yards from tee to green. The green is trapped to the right and the fairway slopes toward the trap.

The three golfers playing the hole for the Lincoln Star's series took distinctly different routes.

Borner hit a 2-iron to the right side of the green and had to come over the trap to reach the green with his second shot. Making the shot even more difficult the day the hole was played was the hardness of the green and the pin placement which was to the right side.

This meant Borner had to loft a shot over the sand and try to stop it quickly on the green. He hit as soft a shot as possible over the trap, but it ran on the hard surface 14 feet past the hole.

However, Borner made the putt for the par-3 to keep him even with par in the series.

Richards hit a 3-wood from the tee and landed in the left rough. He chipped to the green and had an 18-foot putt left to get the par.

The Hillcrest pro rammed it in to keep the pros only one-over-par through the third hole.

Taber, the Lincoln City champion and runner-up in the state tournament, hit the best tee ball of the trio. He placed his tee shot on the green with a 2-iron and had a 40-foot putt for his birdie.

But Taber missed the putt by five feet, then left the par putt a foot short for a bogey-4. The bogey put Taber four-over-par through the first three holes in the series.

DODGERS RETAIN LEAD

. . . LA TOPS PHILS

By United Press International

Southpaw Denny LeMaster scattered three hits to lead the rampaging Milwaukee Braves to their fifth victory in a row Tuesday night, 4-1 over the St. Louis Cardinals.

LeMaster, bothered by tendonitis much of the campaign, gave up a leadoff single to Lou Brock, picked him off first base and pitched hitless ball for seven innings. The Cardinals scored their run in the eighth when Tim McCarver singled and scored on Dal Maxwell's double.

Felipe Alou led the slugging Braves with four hits in five trips to the plate. Alou singled in the third and took second on Curt Flood's fielding error. He scored on Mack Jones' single to right. Jones took second on Ted Savage's throw to the plate which went awry. Jones scored from third later on Joe Torre's fielder's choice.

The braves scored again in the fifth on Hank Aaron's two-run homer.

The Los Angeles Dodgers retained their half-game hold on first place by defeating the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2. Jim Lefebvre drove in the tie-breaking run with a single in the seventh inning. Claude Osteen received credit for his 11th victory although Ron Perranoski relieved him in the top of the eighth.

Vern Law gained credit for his 14th victory as the Pittsburgh Pirates downed the Houston Astros 8-6. Donn Clendenon led the Pirates' 12-hit attack with a homer—the first hit by a Pirate in the Astrodome — while Rusty Staub homered for the Astros.

Rookie Ken Henderson doubled home two runs in the fourth inning Tuesday to give the San Francisco Giants their second straight 3-2 victory over the New York Mets.

Henderson's blow erased a 2-1 Met lead and enabled Bob Bolin, who fanned nine batters in relief, to register his seventh win.

New York took a 2-0 lead by scoring single runs in the second and third inings, both charged to starter Gaylord Perry. Roy McMillan singled home Charlie Smith in the second inning and Chuck Hiller scored on an infield out in the second after Perry had walked the bases full and been removed in favor of Bolin.

Willie McCovey singled home an unearned run by Henderson in the third inning and then in the fourth Jim Ray Hart and Len Gabrielson singled ahead of Henderson's game-winning double.

The win ran Bolin's record to 7-4 and the loss was charged to Jack Fisher, making his log read 7-16.

Hom runs by Frank Robinson and Deron Johnson plus relief pitching by Billy McCool and Sammy Ellis led the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Robinson hit his 22nd homer in the second inning and Johnson his 23rd in the sixth to help rookie Ted Davidson win his second game.

Johnson also drove in a run with a single to increase his league-leading runs-batted-in total to 97. Billy Williams hit his 20th homer for the Cubs.

Detroit Topples Twins

By United Press International

Willie Horton hit two home runs and Al Kaline and Don Wert one apiece Tuesday night to power the Detroit Tigers to a 7-4 victory over the league-leading Minnesota Twins.

The win lifted Detroit into sole possession of second place, seven games behind the Twins who now have lost four of their last five games. It was the eighth triumph in the past nine games for the Tigers.

Kaline's homer, a bases-empty shot in the third, was the 250th of his major league career. He ranks fifth among active American League players. He drove in another run with a single in the fifth.

Don Wert started the Detroit home run barrage by hitting his eighth of the year to lead off the third inning.

Horton hit his first homer leading off the fourth. He hit his second of the game and 25th of the year in the fifth with two on.

Hank Aguirre, who shut out the Twins on five hits through seven frames, picked up the win, his 12th of the year, with relief help from Terry Fox. Rookie Jim Merritt suffered the defeat, his first in three decisions since joining the Twins July 30.

Lew Krausse, a onetime $100,000 bonus baby making his first major league appearance of the season, dropped Cleveland into a tie for third place by pitching the Kansas City Athletics to a 3-2 victory over the Indians. Krausse limited Cleveland to two hits over the first six innings, but needed relief help from Don Mossi after serving up a two-run homer to Larry Brown. Bert Campaneris and Rene Lachemann homered for the A's.

Southpaw Steve Barber held Boston to three hits and Boog Powell cracked a two-run double to lead the Baltimore Orioles to a 3-1 triumph over the Red Sox.

The Chicago White Sox swept a doubleheader from the Washington Senators, 7-2 and 5-1. Danny Cater smacked three hits and drove in three runs in the opener to provide John Buzhardt with his ninth victory although he needed relief help from Hoyt Wilhelm. Juan Pizarro scattered seven hits and socked a two-run homer in the nightcap to gain his third triumph, all against the Senators.

The New York Yankees climbed above the .500 mark for the first time since April 18 by beating the Los Angeles Angeles 6-1. Mickey Mantle and Bobby Richardson drove in two runs apiece in the five-run second frame and Downing allowed nine hits in posting his 10th win.

Harbour Doll Returns Most At Columbus

Columbus — The highest paying horse Tuesday at Agricultural Park track here was Harbour Doll, winner of the first race. Harbour Doll, owned by former racing commissioner H. C. Zellers of Lincoln, returned $32.20, $12.60, and $8.00.

Ridden by William Stallings, Harbour Doll was second during the early part of the race, then came on in the stretch to win by a length and a half.

The horse coupled with The Wick, owned by Ed Luther of Wisner, Nebraska, to pay $132.00 in the Daily Double. The Wick's jockey, Boyd Morris, moved to the top of the jockey standings in Columbus with the second-race win. Morris finished the day with two wins, two seconds, and one third in seven mounts.

Matson May Retire Until Feud Settled

. . . TEXAS A&M COACH TESTIFIES

Washington (AP) — Track star Tom Farrell, caught in the middle of the fight between the rival powers ruling U.S. amateur athletics, testified Tuesday he may be barred from college meets this fall and winter.

And Earl Rudder, president of Texas A&M, said the squeeze has become so intense that his school's world champion shot putter, Randy Matson, is thinking of retiring from competition until it ends.

The testimony marked the second day of a Senate Commerce Committee investigation into the row between the National Collegiate Athletic Associaion and the Amateur Athletic Union. The senators want to learn whether a law is needed to settle the jurisdictional feud.

The two bodies have agreed to a truce, with no discipline against any athletes, at least until the committee winds up its hearings.

Farrell told the committee he is in hot water with the NCAA for disobeying its boycott against the AAU National Championships in San Diego, Calif., which picked most of the U.S. track and field team that lost to Russia recently.

His reasons for defying the NCAA boycott, Farrell said, included a patriotic desire to represent his country against the Soviets, and the belief that he also should use his "God-given talent."

But he told reporters of another reason — pretty Chris Janowski, the girl he intends to marry, told him "Go ahead and run in the AAU meet. Don't be a dope."

Farrell said the U.S. team in Russia was strong, but the row over qualification had affected it. He said some top athletes refused to risk disciplinary action by the NCAA or their schools.

Farrel, fifth in the 800 meters in the 1964 Tokyo Olympics, said he placed only as an alternate on the U.S. squad and never got to run against the Russians.

Rudder testified that Matson's morale and performance have slipped because of concern over the athletic jurisdictional war. He said Matson, who will testify next week, has confided to his coach that he may retire from competition "until this thing blows over."

Farrell said he still can run for his school this fall and winter in this, his last year in college, but "I'll most likely lose my eligibility." He said he has received no official word of such a planned penalty, but he expects it.

The 21-year-old athlete said his track coach reported receiving a telephone call from Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, before the AAU meet, warning that disciplinary action would be taken against him or the school if Farrell competed.

Byers subsequently issued a statement that no such call had been made and that the question whether Farrell's athletic scholarship of grant-in-aid is terminated would be up to the school. The statement did not mention eligibility.

Farrell called the row "just a disgrace." Rudder termed it "unbelievable" conduct for adults.

Farrell said he hopes some agency will be created with power to restore the peace permanently. Rudder suggested a permanent arbitration board set up by Congress.

Rudder said he fears the fight will discourage young athletes from competing, and ultimately will hurt the United States in the 1968 Olympic Games.

The hearings continue Wednesday, with witnesses including Olympic stars of the past.

—ARMY COACH 'SURPRISED'—

Dietzel Denies Charge Of Unethical Recruiting

West Point, N.Y. (AP) — Paul Dietzel, Army's football coach, denied Tuesday a charge by the University of Florida football coach that he had engaged in unethical recruiting practices in the case of a Florida schoolboy fullback, Ron Esmann.

The accusation was made Monday by Ray Graves, the Florida coach, after he had learned that Esmann, who had signed a grant-in-aid at Florida, had decided to go to Bordenton Prep School on a half-scholarship to prepare for entrance to West Point.

Dietzel said in a statement:

"I was surprised and disappointed to read the statements allegedly made by my old friend, coach Ray Graves that I had engaged in unethical recruiting practices. In no way have I or any representatives of the Military Academy deviated from either the letter or the spirit of the constitution, bylaws and regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association or the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

"Even though this fine youn man (Esmann) expressed 'great interest' in the Military Academy as early as April 1964, it is understandable that he signed a letter of intent with the University of Florida since no one can assure a candidate in advance that he will eventually receive an appointment to the Military, Academy.

"Upon nomination, all candidates must meet the academy's exacting admission requirements — academic, medical and physical. When Graves called me last Sunday evening concerning Ron Esmann, the young man's appointment status was not discussed at all."

Graves had said he had "talked to Dietzel about this, and he said he was unable to get the boy an appointment this fall, that he would have to send him to a prep school. That means the boy and the boy's daddy will be paying part of the expenses as well as some foundation the academy has for such things."

Graves said it was the second time this year Dietzel had taken a Florida prospect. He said the other player was Jay Olner, an end from Clearwater, who had an appointment to West Point and expressed a desire to go there.

He said Esmann, whose home is in Pompano Beach, did not have one and that was what irked him.

"We can't get this scholarship back," said Graves. "It's gone. I've been on the phone for days trying to straighten this thing out but all Dietzel will say is that he is going to look into this and that.

"The fact is they are unethical and dead wrong in the things they are doing, and no sweet talk is going to change that."

Esmann, a 6-foot-1, 195-pounder, said he didn't expect to go to West Point but now hopes to go there.

At a news conference in Miami Tuesday, Graves called for a national letter of intent to stop service academies from grabbing prospective players.

'Dock' Still Close To Baseball At 75

. . . COACHES THREE TEAMS

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Lawrence — It's been decades since E. J. Barrett ran the bases, but at age 75 he can still run a baseball team with the best of 'em.

In fact "Dock" runs three teams in three sizes: Pony, Pee Wee and Midget. His assortment ranges from age 16 down, and includes some 50 boys who probably believe their manager originated the game.

He didn't—but the retired postmaster and baseball have been ticker-close since he became Lawrence bat boy in 1904. Player, secretary, business manager, manager and several times a league president—such reads his personal scorecard.

"I just keep going because I love baseball, especially Lawrence baseball," explained the shortstop-spry oldster. "The big leagues are all right, but even with TV I just watch them occasionally."

Six decades of the local sport are preserved in Dock's stack of scorebooks, team photos and clippings — and his memory fills in any minute details missed. The one topic modestly ruled out is his own prowess as first baseman—others claim him a credit to both town and game.

A few Barrett recollections:

—Lawrence's 2-1 defeat of Cowles and the majors-destined Dazzy Vance back in 1911. Dusty Koons, known best for his Western League throwing, took only 35 minutes to write the 7-inning game into the record books.

—Butch Kroening's 16-strikeout and 6-5 showing against Campbell in 1925, when "the first six batters got no closer to the ball than a tick foul." The pitcher moved up later to the Denver Bears.

—The 1938 marathon with rival St. Stephens, treating Nuckolls County fair-goers to "18 innings and a 1-1 deadlock finally called on account of darkness."

Although Bob Logan was the only Lawrence man to make the majors (1945), several played in other pro circuits. Logan hurled his way through the old State League at Fairbury to Boston, Brooklyn and Chicago before an accident ended his mound career.

"Lawrence played in six fair tournaments in 1925, won five of them and came in second in the other," the manager reflected. Then, jumping 40 years in seconds, "You know, I don't remember our youngest boys losing a game the last three or four seasons."

Though assisted by Jim Friend and Jiggs Kotinek, the retiree is usually first at the diamond. He marks the base lines, hauls the equipment and handles the roster.

A sparkplug of the Mid-Rivers League, the manager is as excited about his youngsters today as of any adult talent through the years. He was overjoyed recently, for example, by young Pat Faimon's 24 strikeouts in eight innings.

The aging sportsman's record includes heading the Tri-County, State Line, Nebraska-Kansas and Southern Nebraska Leagues. He has three daughters and four sons, all the sons playing town ball before going into various professions.

Barrett's nickname, by the way, was derived from an MD father. How the spelling became corrupted he isn't sure, but "Dock" it has been on dozens of team pictures.

Besides boys and baseball, the young oldster is driven by one other related dedication: victory.

"My boys are taught never to cheat or play dirty, but for sure they're also taught to try to win."

Lincolnite Snags Rock Bass Record

A new category has been added to the state fishing records, the Game Commission reports.

Nate Crockett of Lincoln turned the trick with a 1-pound 4-ounce rock bass taken from Dewey Lake on an artificial. The scrappy member of the sunfish family had a girth of 13 inches and measured 11 inches long. Although no heavyweight compared to other fish, this is a bruiser in the rock bass community.

Except for some good white bass fishing in several reservoirs, fishing is in the normal late-summer slowdown.

SOUTHEAST

Platte River and Sand Pits (Grand Island area)—bass and bluegill hitting worms and artificial lures. Stagecoach Lake—largemouth bass taking artificial lures. Wagon Train Lake—bullheads available. Verdon Lake—bluegill on worms. Burchard Lake—bass biting early in morning and late evening.

NORTHEAST

Lewis and Clark—white bass fishing good in late afternoon and evening, trolling jigs and spinners in South Shore and north of Weigand boat basin best bet; below Gavins Point Dam catfish hot for crawdads and frogs; some white bass in evening on artificial lures; lot of carp on corn. Elkhorn River (Madison County)—catfishing on set lines fair, crawdads and frogs best bait. DeSoto Bend—catfish after minnows in early morning and late evening. Platte River—bank lines bringing in catfish. Fremont State Lakes—carp going for corn and other prepared bait at lake No. 5.

SOUTHWEST

Red Willow Reservoir—catfishing good at face of dam and on west. Harlan County Reservoir—white bass biting on silver lures. Swanson and Enders Reservoirs—occasional walleye and white bass biting. Johnson Reservoir—white bass fishing good from bank or trolling artificial lures yellow in color; few walleye biting same rig. Lake Maloney—catfish and drum eager for minnows at inlet; occasional walleye showing up; catfish biting in lake. Sutherland Reservoir—live bait producing catfish up to 8 pounds at inlet; smaller catfish in lake. Lake McConaughy—white bass fishing good in early morning or late evening on silver spoons or white doll flies; walleye biting in Otter Creek and Lemoyne areas on artificial lures; catfish active at west end on shrimp.

PANHANDLE

Lake Minatare—boat fishermen taking walleye and perch on night crawlers. Bridgeport Pits—occasional bass on artificial lures. Box Butte Reservoir—crappie biting at face of dam on worms and minnows. Smith Lake—crappie, perch, and bluegill going for worms and minnows. Trout Streams—grasshoppers and worms effective in Nine Mile and Stucken Hole creeks, also on upper end of Niobrara River.

SAND HILLS

Dewey Lake—bass hitting. Sherman Reservoir—catfish and bullheads active. Merritt Reservoir—trout biting in early morning and late evening. Hofelt Lake—bullhead fishing hot, two anglers had 40 between them.

State Lakes At Fremont Get Phones

Fremont—Telephones have been installed at three of the State Lakes here in an effort to provide a greater margin safety for swimmers and boaters.

The emergency telephones, at Lakes 9, 10 and 20, are connected directly to the Fremont Fire Dept. where a rescue unit equipped with a boat and manned by firemen trained in scuba diving and water recovery will answer all calls.

The telephones were installed by Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. who paid part of the cost along with the Fremont Rotary Club and the State Game Commission.

Capt. Howard Schneider of the Fremont Fire Dept. said anyone needing help has merely to lift one of the telephones hanging in an open box and it automatically rings at the Fire Station.

Jack Strain, chief of the Parks Division of the Game Commission, said telephones at the Fremont Lakes might be more practicle than they would be at some other lakes because of their close location to the city of Fremont.

'Dock' Still Close To Baseball At 75

. . . COACHES THREE TEAMS

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Lawrence — It's been decades since E. J. Barrett ran the bases, but at age 75 he can still run a baseball team with the best of 'em.

In fact "Dock" runs three teams in three sizes: Pony, Pee Wee and Midget. His assortment ranges from age 16 down, and includes some 50 boys who probably believe their manager originated the game.

He didn't—but the retired postmaster and baseball have been ticker-close since he became Lawrence bat boy in 1904. Player, secretary, business manager, manager and several times a league president—such reads his personal scorecard.

"I just keep going because I love baseball, especially Lawrence baseball," explained the shortstop-spry oldster. "The big leagues are all right, but even with TV I just watch them occasionally."

Six decades of the local sport are preserved in Dock's stack of scorebooks, team photos and clippings — and his memory fills in any minute details missed. The one topic modestly ruled out is his own prowess as first baseman—others claim him a credit to both town and game.

A few Barrett recollections:

—Lawrence's 2-1 defeat of Cowles and the majors-destined Dazzy Vance back in 1911. Dusty Koons, known best for his Western League throwing, took only 35 minutes to write the 7-inning game into the record books.

—Butch Kroening's 16-strike out and 6-5 showing against Campbell in 1925, when 'the first six batters got no closer to the ball than a tick foul." The pitcher moved up later to the Denver Bears.

—The 1938 marathon with rival St. Stephens, treating Nuckolls County fair-goers to "18 innings and a 1-1 deadlock finally called on account of darkness."

Although Bob Logan was the only Lawrence man to make the majors (1945), several played in other pro circuits. Logan hurled his way through the old State League at Fairbury to Boston, Brooklyn and Chicago before an accident ended his mound career.

"Lawrence played in six fair tournaments in 1925, won five of them and came in second in the other," the manager reflected. Then, jumping 40 years in seconds, "You know, I don't remember our youngest boys losing a game the last three or four seasons."

Though assisted by Jim Friend and Jiggs Kotinek, the retiree is usually first at the diamond. He marks the base lines, hauls the equipment and handles the roster.

A sparkplug of the Mid-Rivers League, the manager is as excited about his youngsters today as of any adult talent through the years. He was overjoyed recently, for example, by young Pat Faimon's 24 strikeouts in eight innings.

The aging sportsman's record includes heading the Tri-County, State Line, Nebraska-Kansas and Southern Nebraska Leagues. He has three daughters and four sons, all the sons playing town ball before going into various professions.

Barrett's nickname, by the way, was derived from an MD father. How the spelling became corrupted he isn't sure, but "Dock" it has been on dozens of team pictures.

Besides boys and baseball, the young oldster is driven by one other related dedication: victory.

"My boys are taught never to cheat or play dirty, but for sure they're also taught to try to win."

Lincolnite Snags Rock Bass Record

A new category has been added to the state fishing records, the Game Commission reports.

Nate Crockett of Lincoln turned the trick with a 1-pound 4-ounce rock bass taken from Dewey Lake on an artificial. The scrappy member of the sunfish family had a girth of 13 inches and measured 11 inches long. Although no heavyweight compared to other fish, this is a bruiser in the rock bass community.

Except for some good white bass fishing in several reservoirs, fishing is in the normal late-summer slowdown.

SOUTHEAST

Platte River and Sand Pits (Grand Island area)—bass and bluegill hitting worms and artificial lures. Stagecoach Lake—largemouth bass taking artificial lures. Wagon Train Lake—bullheads available. Verdon Lake—bluegill on worms. Burchard Lake—bass biting early in morning and late evening.

NORTHEAST

Lewis and Clark—white bass fishing good in late afternoon and evening, trolling jigs and spinners in South Shore and north of Weigand boat basin best bet; below Gavins Point Dam catfish hot for crawdads and frogs; some white bass in evening on artificial lures; lot of carp on corn. Elkhorn River (Madison County)—catfishing on set lines fair, crawdads and frogs best bait. DeSoto Bend—catfish after minnows in early morning and late evening. Platte River—bank lines bringing in catfish. Fremont State Lakes—carp going for corn and other prepared bait at lake No. 5.

SOUTHWEST

Red Willow Reservoir—catfishing good at face of dam and on west. Harlan County Reservoir—white bass biting on silver lures. Swanson and Enders Reservoirs—occasional walleye and white bass biting. Johnson Reservoir—white bass fishing good from bank or trolling artificial lures yellow in color; few walleye biting same rig. Lake Maloney—catfish and drum eager for minnows at inlet; occasional walleye showing up; catfish biting in lake. Sutherland Reservoir—live bait producing catfish up to 8 pounds at inlet; smaller catfish in lake. Lake McConaughy—white bass fishing good in early morning or late evening on silver spoons or white doll flies; walleye biting in Otter Creek and Lemoyne areas on artificial lures; catfish active at west end on shrimp.

PANHANDLE

Lake Minatare—boat fishermen taking walleye and perch on night crawlers. Bridgeport Pits—occasional bass on artificial lures. Box Butte Reservoir—crappie biting at face of dam on worms and minnows. Smith Lake—crappie, perch, and bluegill going for worms and minnows. Trout Streams—grasshoppers and worms effective in Nine Mile and Stucken Hole creeks, also on upper end of Niobrara River.

SAND HILLS

Dewey Lake—bass hitting. Sherman Reservoir—catfish and bullheads active. Merritt Reservoir—trout biting in early morning and late evening. Hofelt Lake—bullhead fishing hot, two anglers had 40 between them.

State Lakes At Fremont Get Phones

Fremont—Telephones have been installed at three of the State Lakes here in an effort to provide a greater margin safety for swimmers and boaters.

The emergency telephones, at Lakes 9, 10 and 20, are connected directly to the Fremont Fire Dept. where a rescue unit equipped with a boat and manned by firemen trained in scuba diving and water recovery will answer all calls.

The telephones were installed by Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. who paid part of the cost along with the Fremont Rotary Club and the State Game Commission.

Capt. Howard Schneider of the Fremont Fire Dept. said anyone needing help has merely to lift one of the telephones hanging in an open box and it automatically rings at the Fire Station.

Jack Strain, chief of the Parks Division of the Game Commission, said telephones at the Fremont Lakes might be more practicle than they would be at some other lakes because of their close location to the city of Fremont.

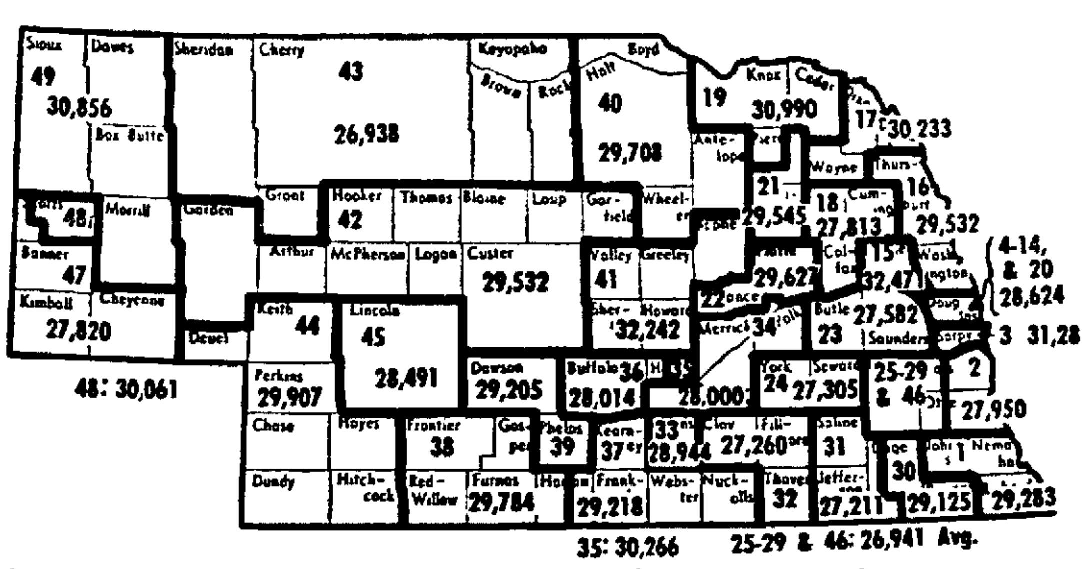
Reapportionment Act OK'd

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer



NEW LEGISLATIVE DISTRICTS . . . showing population in each

The Legislature Tuesday approved its second reapportionment act on a 34-12 vote.

The measure, LB925, violates seven county lines and reduces population disparity among the 49 legislative districts to a maximum of 5,533 persons.

LB925 represents the 1965 Unicameral's second attempt to meet U.S. constitutional requirements as interpreted by a three-judge U.S. District Court tribunal.

Its first effort, expressed in LB628, contained a maximum population disparity of 13,436.

Maximum Disparity

In terms of percentages, the maximum disparity between districts was cut from the 48.4% in LB628 to the 19.0% represented in LB925.

The bill received one vote more than the number necessary to enact it into law immediately upon signature by the governor, thus permitting the act to receive a swift court test.

The reapportionment issue is currently under U.S. District Court jurisdiction. The three-judge tribunal had warned the Legislature that if its next effort failed to pass the constitutional test, senators would be required to run at large in 1966.

Passage of LB925, in effect, removed the state's opportunity to appeal the unfavorable decision on LB628 to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff told his colleagues that he may take the new bill before the State Supreme Court to determine whether it violates state constitutional provisions, particularly on the question of crossing county lines

Counties which are split include Hall, Scotts Bluff, Harlan, Pierce, Cass, Otoe and Gage. Hall is divided into three legislative districts.

The largest new district, composed of Dodge County, counts 32,471 persons while the smallest — the six-county 43rd spreading across Sandhills country in northwest Nebraska — has 26,938.

Kill Attempt

Carpenter offered a motion to return the bill to select file to kill it so that senators might complete the debate they wish the court to consider in judging the measure.

Carpenter said preservation of the four-year terms held by 25 senators and retention of at least 49 districts were "very pertinent" factors in drawing the bill.

If the Legislature chooses to cross county lines, as it did, "there is no reason not to make the districts mathematically perfect," he contended.

Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton read into the record a report that it would have been impossible for the Legislature to hold maximum population disparity to 15% if it did not cross country lines even if it attempted to reduce districts to 37.

Sen. George Gerdes of Alliance, chief author of the plan, said it represents "the best compromise possible." Four-year terms were protected, he said, because the state constitution requires it.

Jeopardizes Concept

Enactment of LB925 will jeopardize the concept of counties as separate governmental entities of the state, Sen. Ross Rasmussen of Hooper contended.

Sen. Elvin Adamson of Valentine once again pleaded with the Legislature not to set the precedent of violating county boundaries.

But Sen. George Syas of Omaha argued that county lines must be crossed if the Unicameral is to meet the equal population requirements of the federal constitution.

Once the record was completed, Carpenter withdrew his kill motion.

Voting against the reapportionment bill Sens. Adamson, Kenneth Bowen of Red Cloud, S. H. Brayer Sr. of Norfolk, Carpenter, Peter Claussen of Leigh, Maurice Kremer of Aurora, Frank Nelson of O'Neill, Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln, Ira Paine of Grand Island, Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont, Ross Rasmussen, and William Wylie of Elgin.

Legislature Defeats Four Proposed Rule Changes

The Legislature Tuesday turned down four proposed rules changes, accepting only a proposal which changes procedure for amendment of legislation on select file

Under the rules change, amendments may be attached to a bill on select file (second of three floor positions) only by unanimous consent.

If one senator objects to the amendment, the bill must be returned to general file to discuss the issue

The change, proposed by the Rules Committee and accepted on a 39-4 vote, is designed to limit debate to general file.

Rules changes require 30 votes. The four proposals scorned were —increasing from 25 to 30 the number of votes required to raise a bill killed in committee; proposed by the Rules Committee; 21-23.

Meyer, Assistants Will Discuss Best Way To Uphold Remap Bill

Nebraska Atty. Gen Clarence Meyer Tuesday called a meeting with two of his assistants to discuss "the best approach to uphold LB925."

Meyer said the meeting will be Wednesday or Thursday.

He will discuss defending the new reapportionment measure with Assistant Atty. Gen. Richard Williams and Robert A. Nelson, a special assistant attorney general.

Williams and Nelson have reapportionment woes in the federal courts.

"We're just like the senators," Meyer said "We'd like to get rid of the reapportionment question until after the next federal census."

Meyer said he and the other two attorneys would discuss how to get an appeal on an earlier reapportionment bill dismissed by the U S. Supreme Court

"We'll also decide on the best approach to use in presenting LB925 to the special federal court which retained jurisdiction in the case," he said.

Meyer's office filed an appeal in the U.S. Supreme Court after a federal tribunal last May struck down LB628, the first redistricting effort of this session.

But with passage of the reapportionment bill Tuesday, the appeal became a moot issue. Meyer had urged that the appeal on LB628 be carried through.

He contends crossing county lines as called for in LB925 violates the State Constitution.

When the three federal judges voided LB628 on a 2-1 decision, they retained jurisdiction over any other redistricting bill assed in this session of the Legislature.

Nielsen Cited At Kearney Co. Fair

Minden—Peter C. Nielsen, 75-year-old Minden resident, received the annual outstanding citizen of Kearney County award presented during the Kearney County Fair.

The award is sponsored by the Kearney County Fair Board who selected the winner from among nine citizens nominated by the public.

Mr. Nielsen was born in Denmark and came to Minden in 1907. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, Odd Fellows, Hastings Knights of Pythias, Lions Club and Danish Brotherhood.

$2 HEAD TAX INCREASE WILL REMAIN IN EFFECT

A $2 increase in the state head tax enacted by the 1963 Legislature to finance Nebraska's participation in the Kerr-Mills medical care for the aged program will continue in effect although Nebraska's participation in the program comes to an end next June.

The Unicameral Monday passed LB936 calling for the Kerr-Mills program, less than two years old, to be terminated in mid-1966

At that time the state will begin to administer the new medicare program. It is financed entirely by federal funds raised through Social Security taxes.

The $1,084,000 scheduled to go into the Kerr-Mills account for the second year of the 1965-67 biennium from the head tax will be diverted instead to the general fund.

The head tax in 1963 was raised from $3.50 to $5.50.

Sen. Kenneth L. Bowen of Red Cloud, original sponsor of the 1963 K -Mills act, said he recognizes the head tax is a regressive tax, but "I don't propose to see the head tax repealed until we get a broadened tax base in Nebraska."

Reapportionment Act OK'd

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature Tuesday approved its second reapportionment act on a 34-12 vote.

The measure, LB925, violates seven county lines and reduces population disparity among the 49 legislative districts to a maximum of 5,533 persons.

LB925 represents the 1965 Unicameral's second attempt to meet U.S. constitutional requirements as interpreted by a three-judge U.S. District Court tribunal.

Its first effort, expressed in LB628, contained a maximum population disparity of 13,436.

Maximum Disparity

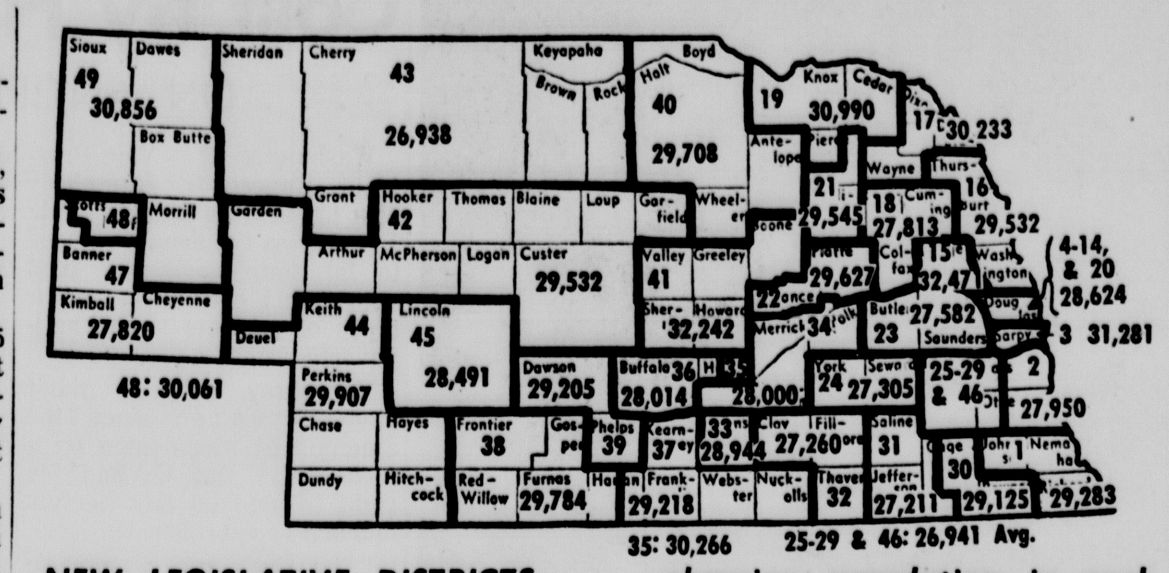
In terms of percentages, the maximum disparity between districts was cut from the 48.4% in LB628 to the 19.0% represented in LB925.

The bill received one vote more than the number necessary to enact it into law immediately upon signature by the governor, thus permitting the act to receive a swift court test.

The reapportionment issue is currently under U.S. District Court jurisdiction. The three-judge tribunal had warned the Legislature that if its next effort failed to pass the constitutional test, senators would be required to run at large in 1966.

Passage of LB925, in effect, removed the state's opportunity to appeal the unfavorable decision on LB628 to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff told his colleagues that he may take the new bill before the State Supreme Court to determine whether it violates state constitutional provisions, particularly on the question of crossing county lines.



NEW LEGISLATIVE DISTRICTS . . . showing population in each

Counties which are split include Hall, Scotts Bluff, Harlan, Pierce, Cass, Otoe and Gage. Hall is divided into three legislative districts.

The largest new district, composed of Dodge County, counts 32,471 persons while the smallest — the six-county 43rd spreading across Sandhills country in northwest Nebraska — has 26,938.

Kill Attempt

Carpenter offered a motion to return the bill to select file to kill it so that senators might complete the debate they wish the court to consider in judging the measure.

Carpenter said preservation of the four-year terms held by 25 senators and retention of at least 49 districts were "very pertinent" factors in drawing the bill.

If the Legislature chooses to cross county lines, as it did, "there is no reason not to make the districts mathematically perfect," he contended.

Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton read into the record a report that it would have been impossible for the Legislature to hold maximum population disparity to 15% if it did not cross country lines even if it attempted to reduce districts to 37.

Sen. George Gerdes of Alliance, chief author of the plan, said it represents "the best compromise possible." Four-year terms were protected, he said, because the state constitution requires it.

Jeopardizes Concept

Enactment of LB925 will jeopardize the concept of counties as separate governmental entities of the state, Sen. Ross Rasmussen of Hooper contended.

Sen. Elvin Adamson of Valentine once again pleaded with the Legislature not to set the precedent of violating county boundaries.

But Sen. George Syas of Omaha argued that county lines must be crossed if the Unicameral is to meet the equal population requirements of the federal constitution.

Once the record was completed, Carpenter withdrew his kill motion.

Voing against the reapportionment bill Sens. Adamson, Kenneth Bowen of Red Cloud, S. H. Brayer Sr. of Norfolk, Carpenter, Peter Claussen of Leigh, Maurice Kremer of Aurora, Frank Nelson of O'Neill, Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln, Ira Paine of Grand Island, Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont, Ross Rasmussen, and William Wylie of Elgin.

Legislature Defeats Four Proposed Rule Changes

The Legislature Tuesday turned down four proposed rules changes, accepting only a proposal which changes procedure for amendment of legislation on select file.

Under the rules change, amendments may be attached to a bill on select file (second of three floor positions) only by unanimous consent.

If one senator objects to the amendment, the bill must be returned to general file to discuss the issue.

The change, proposed by the Rules Committee and accepted on a 39-4 vote, is designed to limit debate to general file.

Rules changes require 30 votes. The four proposals scorned were:

—increasing from 25 to 30 the number of votes required to raise a bill killed in committee; proposed by the Rules Committee; 21-20.

—requiring that bills which affect state agencies carry a statement that they have been examined and approved by the agencies as to form before they may be moved beyond select file; proposed by the Rules Committee; 29-7.

U. S. Has First Surplus In Payments In 8 Years

Washington (AP)—The United States reported Tuesday its first balance of payments surplus in eight years.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and other top government officials cautioned, however that part of the improved showing was due to special factors and that considerable effort would be required to maintain a surplus through the year.

Fowler said "We do not take it as a sign that we have turned the corner from balance of payments deficits to balance of payments surpluses. The period of surplus is too short for that."

Program Working

However he said that President Johnson's program for correcting the deficit is working. He said he is confident the program "will make it possible for us to bring our accounts with the rest of the world into an equilibrium that can be sustained."

The Commerce Department said exports, which had been on a long time rising trend, showed no gain in the first six months of the year. Imports showed an increase partly because of increased buying of foreign steel in anticipation of a work stoppage in that industry in the United States.

Fowler said the fact that foreign governments elected to trade in some $330 million of their dollars for gold in the second quarter indicated that "these foreign monetary authorities believe there are still more dollars abroad than are needed."

'Achieve Equilibrium'

He said the goal of the balance of payments program is "to achieve an equilibrium which will manifest to the world that the dollar is as good as gold."

The balance of payments—which measures public and private payments to foreigners against receipts from foreigners — had been in deficit every quarter since 1957.

The quarterly statement confirmed reports that the long string of deficits had been broken. However, officials have said that the balance must be maintaied over a year or more before the government can claim success in stemming the flow of dollars abroad.

Adjusted Surplus

The seasonally adjusted surplus for the three month period was $132 million compared with a deficit of $545 million in the first quarter of the year and a deficit of $555 million in the second quarter of 1964.

The deficit for the first six months of the year was at an annual rate of $1.2 billion compared to the 1964 full year deficit of $3.2 billion.

A major factor in the improved showing was a slowdown in the rate of bank lending to foreigners and the rate of business investment in other countries. Both had been increasing rapidly for many years.

Strike Favorable

The dock strike in the early months of the year caused a postponement of a considerable amount of shipping and this showed up as a favorable factor in the balance of payments in the second quarter.

After allowing for the effect of the strike, exports of merchandise showd little change from a year ago while imports continued to rise.

On an annual rate basis the U.S. trade surplus — the amount by which exports exceed imports — was about $2 billion less than in 1964.

Bank loans to foreigners declined by $380 million in the second quarter following a rise of $660 million in the early months the year.

Thus the net increase in bank loans was only about $76 million in the first six months of the year as compared to a rise of $1.2 billion in the first half of 1964.

Salad Oil King Gets 20 Years

Newark, N.J. (UPI) — Dethroned salad oil king Anthony (Tino) De Angelis was sent to prison for 20 years Tuesday as the price for masterminding a $100 million fraud that rocked Wall Street with one of history's biggest commodities scandals.

The rags-to-riches-to-rags tycoon stood silent as U.S. District Judge Reynier J. Wortendyke read the sentence for three counts of fraud and one of conspiracy. His attorney, Walter Van Riper, appeared stunned by the penalty and moved for a reduction to 10 years, but the judge denied the request.

Then as U.S. marshals led him away De Angelis pale and mute, took a handkerchief from his pocket and dabbed his dampeened eyes. He did not utter a word during the brief session.

The 49-year-old former president of the Allied Crude Vegetable Oil Refining Corp. who rose from drugstore soda jerk to head a $300 million-a-year commodities empire only to lose it all, showed the strain of his two-month confinement at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary where he underwent court-ordered examinations.

Van Riper indicated later he will study the sentence before deciding whether to appeal to the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia. He noted that under the law, De Angelis will be eligible for parole after serving one-third of the 20-year term.

The government said De Angelis issued $100 million worth of phony warehouse receipts to banks and financial institutions around the world as collateral for credit.

County Plans No Appeal On New Tax Hike

Lancaster County probably will not appeal to the Nebraska Supreme Court the State Board of Equalization's decision to raise the county property valuations.

Deputy County Attorney Floyd Sterns advised the County Board Tuesday that his office could find "no sound legal" basis for the board to make an appeal."

He said it was their opinion that the chances were very slim of the court overruling the decision of the State Board of Equalization.

At the board meeting, Leo Bartunek urged the board to appeal. Five other counties and six individuals have served notice they will appeal the valuation hikes.

In other action, the board granted an amusement license to the Outpost Inn.

The applicants said they weren't planning to actually operate a dance hall, but wanted to be within the law if a few couples wanted to dance.

LAND . . . after 3,200 miles of water is happy sight to Manry.

Hero's Welcome Is Given Manry And Tinkerbelle

Falmouth, England (AP) — Robert Manry, a lone newsman-mariner from Ohio, came ashore Tuesday night after a 78-day voyage from Cape Cod in a 13½-foot sailboat — the smallest known to have made the eastward Atlantic crossing nonstop.

Hailed as a hero, the 47-year-old Manry first embraced his wife and two children and unelt to kiss the soil of England, then told a spine-chilling story of fear, exhaustion and hallucination at sea.

Six times he was washed overboard from the tiny Tinkerbelle and saved by a lifeline.

Do It Again

But he would do it again, he said. And when his wife objected, "Not without me," he added "Maybe we'll buy a bigger boat and sail the Pacific."

Amid a storm of cheers, Manry stepped from the Tinkarbelle onto the Custom House Quay. Then he knelt to greet England at the spot where news of Adm. Lord Nelson's death was brought to this seafaring nation 160 years ago.

He had been at sea 2½ months on the 3,200-mile crossing.

Both man and boat looked immaculate. Tinkerbelle proudly flew the Stars and Stripes. Her white paint and red deck gleamed in the evening sun. Her two sails, a white jib and red main, looked hardly big enough to make a pair of bedsheets.

Biggest Occasion

For Falmouth this was the biggest occasion since Capt. Kurt Carlsen tried, vainly as it turned out, to bring his stricken freighter Flying Enterprise into port in 1952.

Thousands lined the cliffs of the Cornish coast at every possible vantage point to watch Manry sail in.

Near Black Rock Buoy, like the great windjammers that packed this historic harbor a century ago, he accepted a tow.

As the harbor launch, with Tinkerbelle in tow, pulled into the quay an uproar of cheers, church bells and ship sirens rose.

The cheers were deafening, though few of the waiting thousands even saw their hero. More cheers awaited him as he went to a news conference, and still more when he at last arrived at the hotel where Mrs. Manry and the children have been waiting these past two weeks.

Nightmare Story

At his news conference with his wife beside him, Manry told a nightmare story of hallucination and exhaustion.

Exhaustion, he explained, was his greatest fear. To fall asleep when unprepared for it carried the risk of being run down by Atlantic shipping. To fight it, he took a medicine, and it had spine-chilling effects, he said.

"For a time I thought my boy Douglas was on the boat with me," he said.

"Then there was another man with us — a monster—and when Douglas went into the cabin, this monster would throw him overboard. I got so I was scared to go into the cabin for fear of this monster.

'Jump In'

"Eventually, I plucked up the courage to jump in there. There was no one there, and that broke the hallucination."

His more realistic problems came in navigation. It was difficult to sight the sun's position accurately. He had to shoot the sun axactly on waves sometimes 20 feet high — three feet higher than Tinkerbelle's mast — while the boat was bobbing about like a cork.

He solved this problem by making six or more sights with his sextant and taking an average.

Sea Anchor

For his sailing technique, he drew on the experiences of Capt. Joshua Slocum of the Spray, first of the great American single-handers, and great exponent of the sea anchor.

The sea anchor is a heavy canvas drogue. In rough weather, or at any time when an unmanned boat needs to be held steady, it is streamed overboard and holds the boat head to wind where it can ride the waves with least danger.

He figured on 60 to 75 days for the trip. It took 78.

Tie-Breaking Vote Cast By Humphrey

. . . ON ANTIPOVERTY VETOES

Washington (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey cast his first tie-breaking vote Tuesday as the Senate refused to let state governors keep veto rights over three major types of projects in the antipoverty program.

Humphrey actually didn't have to vote, since the amendment was beaten on a 45-45 tally. But he has the right to vote on any tie ballots and he exercised it.

"The chair just wanted to vote," Humphrey said with a grin when Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., asked him why he voted "no," when he didn't have to vote at all.

Earlier in debate on the Senate bill authorizing $1.65 billion for the antipoverty program's second year, a Republican move to trim $500 million was beaten.

A final vote likely will come Wednesday.

Eliminates Power

Under the law now, a governor can veto all proposed projects in his state. But the pending bill eliminates this power on community action, neighborhood youth corps and adult basic education projects.

A similar House bill also in effect, eliminates the veto power over these projects.

Sen. Paul J. Fannin, R-Ariz., a former governor, offered the amendment. He said at their recent conference, the state governors almost unanimously asked that their veto power be kept intact.

Sen. Pat McNamara, D-Mich., said there was a legitimate concern the veto was being used to kill or delay "meritorious programs."

The floor manager of the bill said he knew of only four actual vetoes so far, but said in many cases governors had used the threat of veto to force revamping of projects.

The vote to kill Sen. Peter H. Dominick's money-whittling proposal was 51 to 40.

The Colorado Republican argued whacking $552.5 billion would still leave a 38% increase to finance what Johnson has called the war on poverty.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., termed the whole program a "miserable mess" and said Congress ought to end it.

McNamara noted that the Senate version authorizing $1.65 billion is less than the $1.9 billion voted by the House.

Senate passage seemed assured. When this happens, differences between the two versions will have to be worked out in conference.

Nebraska Republican Sen. Roman Hruska voted with the minority on the two roll call votes while Sen. Carl T. Curtis, who was in Nebraska Tuesday following the death of a sister, was announced as paired for both measures.

August 30 Is Opening Date In District 160

School District No. 160 schools will open on Aug. 30, according to Supt. Wesley T. Shepard.

Due to continued reorganization progress, the Norris High School will be moved to Cortland for the coming term. Junior high will be continued at the Hickman attendance center, and elementary sites will be maintained at Cortland (K-4), Firth (K-6), Roca (1-4), Panama (K-6) and Hickman (k). Panama is slated to merge with Dist. 160 later this month, via a board-to-board petition.

Students are being notified of final transportation and registration plans this week, Dr. Shepard said. Those who do not receive letters should notify the administrative office in Hickman (tel. 992-2505).

Initial tearchers meetings are set for Aug. 25 and 26. All new pupils in the district must present birth certificates at the time of registration, according to Supt. Shepard.

Two new members have been added to the administrative staff. They are Mr. Floyd Mann, Junior High Principal, and Mr. Albert Heitbrink, Elementary Principal at the Panama site.

District 160 will expand to more than $10 million in valuation after Panama joins. Thirty-one new teachers have been added to the staff in all subject areas. Announcements on adult classes offered the first semester will be made at a later date.

U. S. Has First Surplus In Payments In 8 Years

Washington (AP)—The United States reported Tuesday its first balance of payments surplus in eight years.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and other top government officials cautioned, however, that part of the improved showing was due to special factors and that considerable effort would be required to maintain a surplus through the year.

Fowler said, "We do not take it as a sign that we have turned the corner from balance of payments deficits to balance of payments surpluses. The period of surplus is too short for that . . ."

Program Working

However, he said that President Johnson's program for correcting the deficit is working. He said he is confident the program "will make it possibls for us to bring our accounts with the rest of the world into an equilibrium that can be sustained."

The Commerce Department said exports, which had been on a long time rising trend, showed no gain in the first six months of the year. Imports showed an increase partly because of increased buying of foreign steel in anticipation of a work stoppage in that industry in the United States.

Fowler said the fact that foreign governments elected to trade in some $330 million of their dollars for gold in the second quarter indicated that "these foreign monetary authorities believe there are still more dollars abroad than are needed."

'Achieve Equilibrium'

He said the goal of the balance of payments program is "to achieve an equilibrium which will manifest to the world that the dollar is as good as gold."

The balance of payments—which measures public and private payments to foreigners against receipts from foreigners — had been in deficit every quarter since 1957.

The quarterly statement confirmed reports that the long string of deficits had been broken. However, officials have said that the balance must be maintaied over a year or more before the government can claim success in stemming the flow of dollars abroad.

Adjusted Surplus

The seasonally adjusted surplus for the three month period was $132 million comyear and a deficit of $545 million in the first quarter of the year and a deficit of $555 million in the second quarter of 1964.

The deficit for the first six months of the year was at an annual rate of $1.2 billion compared to the 1964 full year deficit of $3.2 billion.

A major factor in the improved showing was a slowdown in the rate of bank lending to foreigners and the rate of business investment in other countries. Both had been increasing rapidly for many years.

Strike Favorable

The dock strike in the early months of the year caused a postponement of a considerable amount of shipping and this showed up as a favorable factor in the balance of payments in the second quarter.

After allowing for the effect of the strike, exports of merchandise showd little change from a year ago while imports continued to rise.

On an annual rate basis, the U.S. trade surplus — the amount by which exports exceed imports — was about $2 billion less than in 1964.

Bank loans to foreigners declined by $380 million in the second quarter following a rise of $660 million in the early months the year.

Thus the net increase in bank loans was only about $76 million in the first six months of the year as compared to a rise of $1.2 billion in the first half of 1964.

Salad Oil King Gets 20 Years

Newark, N.J. (UPI) — Dethroned salad oil king Anthony (Tino) De Angelis was sent to prison for 20 years Tuesday as the price for masterminding a $100 million fraud that rocked Wall Street with one of history's biggest commodities scandals.

The rags-to-riches-to-rags tycoon stood silent as U.S. District Judge Reynier J. Wortendyke read the sentence for three counts of fraud and one of conspiracy. His attorney, Walter Van Riper, appeared stunned by the penalty and moved for a reduction to 10 years, but the judge denied the request.

Then, as U.S. marshals led him away, De Angelis, pale and mute, took a handkerchief from his pocket and dabbed his dampeened eyes. He did not utter a word during the brief session.

The 49-year-old former president of the Allied Crude Vegetable Oil Refining Corp., who rose from drugstore soda jerk to head a $300 million-a-year commodities empire only to lose it all, showed the strain of his two-month confinement at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary where he underwent court-ordered examinations.

Van Riper indicated later he will study the sentence before deciding whether to appeal to the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia. He noted that under the law, De Angelis will be eligible for parole after serving one-third of the 20-year term.

The government said De Angelis issued $100 million worth of phony warehouse receipts to banks and financial institutions around the world as collateral for credit.

County Plans No Appeal On New Tax Hike

Lancaster County probably will not appeal to the Nebraska Supreme Court the State Board of Equalization's decision to raise the county property valuations.

Deputy County Attorney Floyd Sterns advised the County Board Tuesday that his office could find "no sound legal" basis for the board to make an appeal."

He said it was their opinion that the chances were very slim of the court overruling the decision of the State Board of Equalization.

At the board meeting, Leo Bartunek urged the board to appeal. Five other counties and six individuals have served notice they will appeal the valuation hikes.

In other action, the board granted an amusement license to the Outpost Inn.

The applicants said they weren't planning to actually operate a dance hall, but wanted to be within the law if a few couples wanted to dance.

LAND . . . after 3,200 miles of water is happy sight to Manry.

Hero's Welcome Is Given Manry And Tinkerbelle

Falmouth, England (AP) — Robert Manry, a lone newsman-mariner from Ohio, came ashore Tuesday night after a 78-day voyage from Cape Cod in a 13½-foot sailboat — the smallest known to have made the eastward Atlantic crossing nonstop.

Hailed as a hero, the 47-year-old Manry first embraced his wife and two children and unelt to kiss the soil of England, then told a spine-chilling story of fear, exhaustion and hallucination at sea.

Six times he was washed overboard from the tiny Tinkerbelle and saved by a lifeline.

Do It Again

But he would do it again, he said. And when his wife objected, "Not without me," he added, "Maybe we'll buy a bigger boat and sail the Pacific."

Amid a storm of cheers, Manry stepped from the Tinkarbelle onto the Custom House Quay. Then he knelt to greet England at the spot where news of Adm. Lord Nelson's death was brought to this seafaring nation 160 years ago.

He had been at sea 2½ months on the 3,200-mile crossing.

Both man and boat looked immaculate. Tinker-belle proudly flew the Stars and Stripes. Her white paint and red deck gleamed in the evening sun. Her two sails, a white jib and red main, looked hardly big enough to make a pair of bedsheets.

Biggest Occasion

For Falmouth this was the biggest occasion since Capt. Kurt Carlsen tried, vainly as it turned out, to bring his stricken freighter Flying Enterprise into port in 1952.

Thousands lined the cliffs of the Cornish coast at every possible vantage point to watch Manry sail in.

Near Black Rock Buoy, like the great windjammers that packed this historic harbor a century ago, he accepted a tow.

As the harbor launch, with Tinkerbelle in tow, pulled into the quay an uproar of cheers, church bells and ship sirens rose.

The cheers were deafening, though few of the waiting thousands even saw their hero. More cheers awaited him as he went to a news conference, and still more when he at last arrived at the hotel where Mrs. Manry and the children have been waiting these past two weeks.

Nightmare Story

At his news conference with his wife beside him, Manry told a nightmare story of hallucination and exhaustion.

Exhaustion, he explained, was his greatest fear. To fall asleep when unprepared for it carried the risk of being run down by Atlantic shipping. To fight it, he took a medicine, and it had spine-chilling effects, he said.

"For a time I thought my boy Douglas was on the boat with me," he said.

"Then there was another man with us — a monster—and when Douglas went into the cabin, this monster would throw him overboard. I got so I was scared to go into the cabin for fear of this monster.

'Jump In'

"Eventually, I plucked up the courage to jump in there. There was no one there, and that broke the hallucination."

His more realistic problems came in navigation. It was difficult to sight the sun's position accurately. He had to shoot the sun axactly on waves sometimes 20 feet high — three feet higher than Tinkerbelle's mast — while the boat was bobbing about like a cork.

He solved this problem by making six or more sights with his sextant and taking an average.

Sea Anchor

For his sailing technique, he drew on the experiences of Capt. Joshua Slocum of the Spray, first of the great American single-handers, and great exponent of the sea anchor.

The sea anchor is a heavy canvas drogue. In rough weather, or at any time when an unmanned boat needs to be held steady, it is streamed overboard and holds the boat head to wind where it can ride the waves with least danger.

He figured on 60 to 75 days for the trip. It took 78.

Tie-Breaking Vote Cast By Humphrey

. . . ON ANTIPOVERTY VETOES

Washington (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey cast his first tie-breaking vote Tuesday as the Senate refused to let state governors keep veto rights over three major types of projects in the antipoverty program.

Humphrey actually didn't have to vote, since the amendment was beaten on a 45-45 tally. But he has the right to vote on any tie ballots and he exercised it.

"The chair just wanted to vote," Humphrey said with a grin when Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., asked him why he voted "no," when he didn't have to vote at all.

Earlier in debate on the Senate bill authorizing $1.65 billion for the antipoverty program's second year, a Republican move to trim $500 million was beaten.

A final vote likely will come Wednesday.

Eliminates Power

Under the law now, a governor can veto all proposed projects in his state. But the pending bill eliminates this power on community action, neighborhood youth corps and adult basic education projects.

A similar House bill also in effect, eliminates the veto power over these projects.

Sen. Paul J. Fannin, R-Ariz., a former governor, offered the amendment. He said at their recent conference, the state governors almost unanimously asked that their veto power be kept intact.

Sen. Pat McNamara, D-Mich., said there was a legitimate concern the veto was being used to kill or delay "meritorious programs."

The floor manager of the bill said he knew of only four actual vetoes so far, but said in many cases governors had used the threat of veto to force revamping of projects.

McNamara noted that the Senate version authorizing $1.65 billion is less than the $1.9 billion voted by the House.

Nebraska Republican Sen. Roman Hruska voted with the minority on the two roll call votes while Sen. Carl T. Curtis, who was in Nebraska Tuesday following the death of a sister, was announced as paired for both measures.

Clues Sought In Slaying Of Family

Crestline, Calif. (AP)—Sheriff's deputies searched Tuesday for motive and clues in the slaying of a family of four in a mountain cabin they had just finished building.

"It looks to me like they were just herded into the bedroom and shot," Deputy Coroner A. J. McCann said after examining the cabin where a Hughes Aircraft Co. engineer, his wife and two sons were found dead Monday.

Slain by an unknown assailant with 22-caliber bullets—in the cabin 10 miles above San Bernardino—were James A. Boles, 41; his wife, Darlene, 37, and their sons, Bobby, 13 and Tommy, 12 residents of Fountain Valley in Orange County.

Bodies of the mother and one of the boys were in a bloodstained closet. The mother evidently had tried to hide the lad by covering him with clothing and herself. Her body lay atop his.

Deputies said all had been shot several times at close range. The father lay in the middle of the bedroom floor. The other son was slumped against a bedroom wall. The victims apparently had been dead one or two days.

Even the family dog was slain; it lay on the livingroom sofa.

Nearly two dozen empty shells were found scattered through the small cabin. No weapon was found. Sheriff Frank Bland said Boles' empty wallet was found on a table.

"Maybe the motive was robbery, but we just don't know," said Bland.

Dobson Brothers Get Resurfacing Project In City

Dobson Bros. Construction Co. has been awarded the contract for an arterial street resurfacing project by Mayor Dean Petersen.

Dobson's low bid was $132,527.50. Pioneer Paving Co. submitted the only other bid, $135,922.50.

The first part of the project, which is scheduled for completion by Sept. 1, includes 48th St., Adams to Fremont; Q, 19th to 23rd; R, 24th to 27th and 14th, Furnace to Groveland.

EJECTOR FOR RESEARCH ROCKET EXHAUST GASES

Three flatbed railroad cars carry this 86-foot ejector as it begins the journey from the Elliott Company's plant in Jeannette, Pa., to NASA'S Plum Brook Station near Sandusky, O. It is one of three to be used to eject exhaust gases produced by research rocket engines being tested in a high altitude simulation chamber.

Ike: Riots Show Breakdown In Respect For Law, Morals

Washington (UPI) — Former President Dwight D Eisenhower said Tuesday that current riots were mere symptoms of a breakdown in respect for law and moral values.

He indicated a belief that Democratic policies of "bread and circuses" contributed to that breakdown.

He discussed his concern about riots like those in Los Angeles at two meetings with Republicans in Congress and at news conferences after those sessions.

"The United States as a whole is being atmosphered into a policy of lawlessness," Eisenhower said after meeting with House GOP leaders Tuesday morning.

Following a luncheon with all Republican senators, he reported that they had talked about domestic rebellion — not just the Los Angeles riots, but others like the University of California demonstrations at Berkeley last winter.

'Real Crusade'

He said these and other incidents indicated a weakening of respect for law and that a "real crusade" was needed to restore respect for moral values.

Eisenhower questioned the effect on the people of "a policy of bread and circuses" like that employed by the ancient Romans.

He also suggested that a political party which can command respect for moral values "will win a great number of converts to its banners."

At both of his news conferences, Eisenhower questioned whether the nation could have "guns and a lot more butter" during the Viet Nam war.

"I don't believe it," he said

Threatened With Inflation

The former president said "of course" he believed the nation was threatened with inflation and that it "could get into an awful lot of trouble" if it does not adopt sound budget policies during a period of prosperity.

He said the GOP must support President Johnson during international crises but that it also deplored the pace at which the influence of the federal government is growing.

Eisenhower said the American political system depends on "rough equality" between the two parties and that the GOP must grow — without "trick formulas" or trying to outpromise the Democrats. His party must offer "positive programs on a high plane," he said, and should not try to dull self-reliance with "subsidies across the board."

"I'd like to see my party give inspiration to America and a program of common sense," he said.

Asked what federal programs he might curtail, he said he saw so much spending that he did not want to suggest which were the worst.

Plugging In Cord Is Fatal To Baby

Pierce (UPI) — Maureen Uecker, one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Uecker, was killed instantly Monday evening when she attempted to plug in a lamp cord while one of her feet was touching a heat register.

The baby's hand apparently touched one of the prongs on the cord which was partially plugged into the socket.

Ogallala Plant Plans Expansion

Ogallala (AP) — Plans for immediate construction of a large plant on Ogallala's industrial site have been announced by Loren Kolste, Ogallala, manager of the capacitor division of Thompson Ramo Wooldridge, Inc.

It is the second major expansion in three years. A new building was added to the firm's 1957 structure in 1963.

Excavations for the footings will get underway within the next two weeks so the structure may be enclosed without winter interruptions

Present plans call for occupation of the building before the first of the year.

The additional plant will mean a further increase in the payroll here as well as an increase in the productive capacity.

Legislation Proposed

Washington (UPI)—A House subcommittee recommended federal legislation to solve the problems of interstate taxation.

St. Stephen's Crown, Great Hungarian Treasure, In U.S.

Washington (UPI) — The State Department acknowledged that the 1,000-year-old crown of St Stephen, one of Hungary's great national treasures, is in U S hands

Department spokesman Robert J McCloskey said he personally did not know the location of the jewelled crown but he assured newsmen at a briefing that "someone in the government" knows where it is.

McCloskey declined to comment on a report that Hungary had renewed its request for return of the crown which was given to U S military officials by Hungarians during World War II to prevent its falling into Russian hands

The crown was given to Hungary's King Stephen by Pope Sylvester II in the 10th Century in thanksgiving for converting Hungarian nobles to Christianity.

It is an item of reverence to Hungarian Christians and its presence in the United States is a touchy matter. The Communist government wants it back, and anti-Communist Hungarian expatriates do not want to see it returned to a Communist regime

Clues Sought In Slaying Of Family

Crestline, Calif. (AP)—Sheriff's deputies searched Tuesday for motive and clues in the slaying of a family of four in a mountain cabin they had just finished building.

"It looks to me like they were just herded into the bedroom and shot," Deputy Coroner A. J. McCann said after examining the cabin where a Hughes Aircraft Co. engineer, his wife and two sons were found dead Monday.

Slain by an unknown assailant with 22-caliber bullets—in the cabin 10 miles above San Bernardino—were: James A. Boles, 41; his wife, Darlene, 37, and their sons, Bobby, 13 and Tommy, 12 residents of Fountain Valley in Orange County.

Bodies of the mother and one of the boys were in a bloodstained closet. The mother evidently had tried to hide the lad by covering him with clothing and herself. Her body lay atop his.

Deputies said all had been shot several times at close range. The father lay in the middle of the bedroom floor. The other son was slumped against a bedroom wall. The victims apparently had been dead one or two days.

Even the family dog was slain; it lay on the living-room sofa.

Nearly two dozen empty shells were found scattered through the small cabin. No weapon was found. Sheriff Frank Bland said Boles' empty wallet was found on a table.

"Maybe the motive was robbery, but we just don't know," said Bland.

EJECTOR FOR RESEARCH ROCKET EXHAUST GASES

Three flatbed railroad cars carry this 86-foot ejector as it begins the journey from the Elliott Company's plant in Jeannette, Pa., to NASA'S Plum Brook Station near Sandusky, O. It is one of three to be used to eject exhaust gases produced by research rocket engines being tested in a high altitude simulation chamber.

Ike: Riots Show Breakdown In Respect For Law, Morals

Washington (UPI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said Tuesday that current riots were mere symptoms of a breakdown in respect for law and moral values.

He indicated a belief that Democratic policies of "bread and circuses" contributed to that breakdown.

He discussed his concern about riots like those in Los Angeles at two meetings with Republicans in Congress and at news conferences after those sessions.

"The United States as a whole is being atmosphered into a policy of lawlessness," Eisenhower said after meeting with House GOP leaders Tuesday morning.

Following a luncheon with all Republican senators, he reported that they had talked about domestic rebellion — not just the Los Angeles riots, but others like the University of California demonstrations at Berkeley last winter.

'Real Crusade'

He said these and other incidents indicated a weakening of respect for law and that a "real crusade" was needed to restore respect for moral values.

Eisenhower questioned the effect on the people of "a policy of bread and circuses" like that employed by the ancient Romans.

He also suggested that a political party which can command respect for moral values "will win a great number of converts to its banners."

At both of his news conferences, Eisenhower questioned whether the nation could have "guns and a lot more butter" during the Viet Nam war.

"I don't believe it," he said.

Threatened With Inflation

The former president said "of course" he believed the nation was threatened with inflation and that it "could get into an awful lot of trouble" if it does not adopt sound budget policies during a period of prosperity.

He said the GOP must support President Johnson during international crises but that it also deplored the pace at which the influence of the federal government is growing.

Eisenhower said the American political system depends on "rough equality" between the two parties and that the GOP must grow — without "trick formulas" or trying to outpromise the Democrats. His party must offer "positive programs on a high plane," he said, and should not try to dull self-reliance with "subsidies across the board."

"I'd like to see my party give inspiration to America and a program of common sense," he said.

Asked what federal programs he might curtail, he said he saw so much spending that he did not want to suggest which were the worst.

Plugging In Cord Is Fatal To Baby

Pierce (UPI) — Maureen Uecker, one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Uecker, was killed instantly Monday evening when she attempted to plug in a lamp cord while one of her feet was touching a heat register.

The baby's hand apparently touched one of the prongs on the cord which was partially plugged into the socket.

Ogallala Plant Plans Expansion

Ogallala (AP) — Plans for immediate construction of a large plant on Ogallala's industrial site have been announced by Loren Kolste, Ogallala, manager of the capacitor division of Thompson Ramo Wooldridge, Inc.

It is the second major expansion in three years. A new building was added to the firm's 1957 structure in 1963.

Excavations for the footings will get underway within the next two weeks so the structure may be enclosed without winter interruptions.

Present plans call for occupation of the building before the first of the year.

The additional plant will mean a further increase in the payroll here as well as an increase in the productive capacity.

Legislation Proposed

Washington (UPI)—A House subcommittee recommended federal legislation to solve the problems of interstate taxation.

St. Stephen's Crown, Great Hungarian Treasure, In U.S.

Washington (UPI) — The State Department acknowledged that the 1,000-year-old crown of St. Stephen, one of Hungary's great national treasures, is in U.S. hands.

Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said he personally did not know the location of the jewelled crown but he assured newsmen at a briefing that "someone in the government" knows where it is.

McCloskey declined to comment on a report that Hungary had renewed its request for return of the crown which was given to U.S. military officials by Hungarians during World War II to prevent its falling into Russian hands.

The crown was given to Hungary's King Stephen by Pope Sylvester II in the 10th Century in thanksgiving for converting Hungarian nobles to Christianity.

It is an item of reverence to Hungarian Christians and its presence in the United States is a touchy matter. The Communist government wants it back, and anti-Communist Hungarian expatriates do not want to see it returned to a Communist regime.

Changes Small In Grain Market

Chicago (AP) — Trade in the grain futures market Tuesday was largely speculative and in the absence of any strong new factors prices closed generally little changed.

Wheat, the heaviest loser, declined major fractions on all contracts. Corn eased small fractions but oats and new crop soybeans finished with small net gains for most deliveries.

Brokers said the trade volume probably was less than the small [illegible] million bushels handled Monday for all commodities as speculators worked cautiously, guided mainly by weather and reports of crop conditions.

Wheat was [illegible] cent a bushel lower at the close, September $1.53⅝-$1.52⅞; corn unchanged to ⅜ lower, September $1.21-1.21¼; oats unchanged to ¼ higher, September 65⅞-66 cents; rye [illegible] lower, September $1.18¾; soybeans ⅞ higher to [illegible] lower, August $2.72 [illegible].

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Alert Investors Can Save Up To 17% On Securities

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

The investor who waits for stock peddlers to ring his door bell misses up on buying opportunities.

Rukeyser

It would indeed seem incredible if a security merchandiser offered prime stocks listed on the stock exchanges at discounts running as high as 17% below currently quoted prices.

Yet—believe it or not—the self motivated security buyer can acquire prime stocks at discount house savings running up to 17%. This can be achieved by buying many of the 22 closed-end investment companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Recently some of the closed end investment companies have been selling by as much as 17% below the net asset value of its security portfolio.

A closed-end fund is set up in form precisely like a regular industrial, railroad or public utility corporation. It has a limited capital and this is evidenced by its own securities outstanding. These can be acquired only by bidding for shares owned by others.

Open-End Funds

On the other hand, the so-called open-end investment companies or mutual funds keep manufacturing additional shares to meet whatever demand for them can be whipped up by advertising and selling pressure. Of course, the investor in an open-end company doesn't have to seek a bid for his holdings from another investor but can cash them at the investment company itself at approximately the pro rata current market valuation of the component securities in the portfolio of the mutual fund.

Some open-end mutual funds add as much as 8½% to the sales tag on their own shares. This premium above the net liquidating value of the fund is called a "load" and it covers advertising and sales cost. The "load" enables the less sophisticated to acquire a financial education and get prodded out of the inertia of non-savers.

A number of experienced investment counsel firms, managing open-end mutual funds as a sideline sell them over the counter at net asset value without a premium or load for sales expenses. Accordingly, these so-called "no load" funds are not peddled by dealers, but must be purchased on the initiative of the buyer directly from sponsoring firms.

But if it is enticing to get "no load" funds without a premium, investors should look into the opportunity in some closed-end investment companies to buy component securities in effect at as much as 17% below net asset value.

Disparity

This disparity exists in part because there is little or no ballyhoo in favor of the overlooked seasoned "closed-end" investment company shares. The situation recalls a remark made to this writer many years ago by Frank A. Vanderlip, then president of the National City Bank of New York. Vanderlip said: "I don't buy new issues and pay a premium over untouted old issues which can be ferreted out on a more favorable value basis."

This column, regarding the readers as its clients, feels an obligation to put the searchlight on situations neglected for their own reasons by security merchandisers.

But with no ax to grind, this writer wants to alert the readers to all the facts. These funds at a discount, if they are a bargain, are suitable primarily for long term investors, for in the short term interim there is no assurance that the discount will necessarily be narrowed. The investor in such shares, when and if he needs cash, must rely at such times on bids from other investors.

Furthermore, the small investor won't be in control of the company and can't force its prompt liquidation in order to take a profit on the difference between the discount price and the liquidating value.

Be this as it may, the closed-end investment company is an avenue for buying a stake in prime securities substantially below current quotations of stocks and bonds held in the portfolio of the investment companies.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with self-addressed, stamped envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Mothers To Retire Ball Bats

St. Louis (AP) — The militant mothers of Franz Park are going to retire their baseball bats Friday, much like a sheriff of the Old West hanging up his sixguns after taming the town.

A group of mothers armed themselves with bats late in June and set out to establish order in the little park in south St. Louis. They said rowdies and vandals had taken it over, making the place unsafe for their children.

The city — possibly inspired by a great deal of national publicity — cleaned up the park, repaired or restored damaged playground equipment and added some facilities. Police began keeping a closer watch on the park than previously.

Mayor A. J. Cervantes and Parks Director Louis Buckowitz are among officials invited to a celebration at the park Friday.

The mothers will retire their bats as a gesture indicating their work is finished.

USIA Choice R. W. Akers Given Okay

Washington (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved President Johnson's nomination Tuesday of Robert Wood Akers to be deputy director of the U.S. Information Agency (USIA).

It acted without dissent after a public hearing at which Akers, 59-year-old retired editor-in-chief of the Beaumont, Tex., Enterprise and Journal endorsed a policy of telling "the truth-but the whole truth" about the United States.

As an example of what he meant, Akers told Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, under questioning:

"The truth is that there was a terrible tragedy in Los Angeles. That is not the whole truth. The whole truth is that we have been doing a pretty good job on a pretty difficult problem."

Pellets Fired At Playground Said Accident

Chicago (AP) — Birdshot which a 10-year-old boy told police he fired accidentally broke up a barbecue in a South Side school playground Tuesday.

Pellets spattering off the pavement inflicted minor wounds on three women, two of them Roman Catholic nuns, and seven children.

Police, checking reports of the direction of the fire, went to a third-floor apartment across the street from the Holy Angels Roman Catholic School.

There they found Arturo Lake who said he had been playing on the apartment balcony with his father's shotgun and that it accidentally discharged. He was held for questioning.

The wounded were among about 40 persons attending a Head Start program of the federal anti-poverty campaign. The nuns injured were Sister Donna Marie Sironi, 24, and Sister Eva Marie Ronens, 23.

Stock Market Rises Again

New York (AP) — The stock market continued to flex its muscles Tuesday, turning in its fifth straight advance.

Brokers said the market was making an excellent showing.

They attributed its strength to good business developments, higher dividends and the possibility of inflation from higher defense spending for the war in Viet Nam.

Latest news to encorage the market was a report of a sharp increase in industrial output in July over the previous month.

The market was up throughout the session although it faltered briefly around midday. Prices at the close were at their highest levels of the day.

Institutional buying was indicated by big blocks crossing the tape, among them 93,700 shares of Aluminium, Ltd.

Electronics, utilities, nonferrous metals, chemicals, tobaccos and building materials advanced. Steels, mail order retails and rails declined. Motors were mixed.

The Associated Press 60-stock average advanced .5 to 331.9 with industrials up 1.4, rails off .6 and utilities up .4.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.13 to 894.26.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, representing 85 per cent of the value of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, gained .17 to 87.04.

Of 1,348 issues traded, 566 advanced and 500 declined. There were 36 new 1965 highs and 16 new lows.

Volume dropped to 4.52 million shares from 5.27 million Monday.

Aluminium, Ltd., off ⅜ at 27½ on 107,300 shares, was the most active stock.

Fairclild Camera spurted 4 points to 73⅞ on 102,200 shares and was second most active.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. Treasuries declined.

Changes Small In Grain Market

Chicago (AP) — Trade in the grain futures market Tuesday was largely speculative and in the absence of any strong new factors prices closed generally little changed.

Wheat, the heaviest loser, declined major fractions on all contracts. Corn eased small fractions but oats and new crop sopbeans finished with small net gains for most deliveries.

Brokers said the trade volume probably was less than the small 94.3 million bushels handled Monday for all commodities as speculators worked cautiously, guided mainly by weather and reports of crop conditions.

Wheat was ½-⅞ cent a bushel lower at the close, September $1.53⅝-52⅞; corn unchanged to ⅜ lower, September $1.21-21⅛; oats unchanged to ½ higher, September 65⅞-66 cents; rye ⅜-¾ lower, September $1.18¾; soybeans ⅞ higher to ⅜ lower, August $2.72¾-73

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Alert Investors Can Save Up To 17% On Securities

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

The investor who waits for stock peddlers to ring his door bell misses up on buying opportunities.

It would indeed seem incredible if a security merchandiser offered prime stocks listed on the stock exchanges at discounts running as high as 17% below currently quoted prices.

Rukeyser

Yet—believe it or not—the self motivated security buyer can acquire prime stocks at discount house savings running up to 17%. This can be achieved by buying many of the 22 closed-end investment companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Recently some of the closed end investment companies have been selling by as much as 17% below the net asset value of its security portfolio.

A closed-end fund is set up in form precisely like a regular industrial, railroad or public utility corporation. It has a limited capital and this is evidenced by its own securities outstanding. These can be acquired only by bidding for shares owned by others.

Open-End Funds

On the other hand, the so-called open-end investment companies or mutual funds keep manufacturing additional shares to meet whatever demand for them can be whipped up by advertising and selling pressure. Of course, the investor in an open-end company doesn't have to seek a bid for his holdings from another investor but can cash them at the investment company itself at approximately the pro rata current market valuation of the component securities in the portfolio of the mutual fund.

Some open-end mutual funds add as much as 8½% to the sales tag on their own shares. This premium above the net liquidating value of the fund is called a "load" and it covers advertising and sales cost. The "load" enables the less sophisticated to acquire a financial education and get prodded out of the inertia of non-savers.

A number of experienced investment counsel firms, managing open-end mutual funds as a sideline sell them over the counter at net asset value without a premium or load for sales expenses. Accordingly, these so-called "no load" funds are not peddled by dealers, but must be purchased on the initiative of the buyer directly from sponsoring firms.

But if it is enticing to get "no load" funds without a premium, investors should look into the opportunity in some closed-end investment companies to buy component securities in effect at as much as 17% below net asset value.

Disparity

This disparity exists in part because there is little or no ballyhoo in favor of the overlooked seasoned "closed-end" investment company shares. The situation recalls a remark made to this writer many years ago by Frank A. Vanderlip, then president of the National City Bank of New York. Vanderlip said: "I don't buy new issues and pay a premium over untouted old issues which can be ferreted out on a more favorable value basis."

This column, regarding the readers as its clients, feels an obligation to put the searchlight on situations neglected for their own reasons by security merchandisers.

But with no ax to grind, this writer wants to alert the readers to all the facts. These funds at a discount, if they are a bargain, are suitable primarily for long term investors, for in the short term interim there is no assurance that the discount will necessarily be narrowed. The investor in such shares, when and if he needs cash, must rely at such times on bids from other investors.

Furthermore, the small investor won't be in control of the company and can't force its prompt liquidation in order to take a profit on the difference between the discount price and the liquidating value.

Be this as it may, the closed-end investment company is an avenue for buying a stake in prime securities substantially below current quotations of stocks and bonds held in the portfolio of the investment companies.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with self-addressed, stamped envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Mothers To Retire Ball Bats

St. Louis (AP) — The militant mothers of Franz Park are going to retire their baseball bats Friday, much like a sheriff of the Old West hanging up his sixguns after taming the town.

A group of mothers armed themselves with bats late in June and set out to establish order in the little park in south St. Louis. They said rowdies and vandals had taken it over, making the place unsafe for their children.

The city — possibly inspired by a great deal of national publicity — cleaned up the park, repaired or restored damaged playground equipment and added some facilities. Police began keeping a closer watch on the park than previously.

Mayor A. J. Cervantes and Parks Director Louis Buckowitz are among officials invited to a celebration at the park Friday.

The mothers will retire their bats as a gesture indicating their work is finished.

USIA Choice R. W. Akers Given Okay

Washington (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved President Johnson's nomination Tuesday of Robert Wood Akers to be deputy director of the U.S. Information Agency (USIA).

It acted without dissent after a public hearing at which Akers, 59-year-old retired editor-in-chief of the Beaumont, Tex., Enterprise and Journal endorsed a policy of telling "the truth-but the whole truth" about the United States.

As an example of what he meant, Akers told Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, under questioning:

"The truth is that there was a terrible tragedy in Los Angeles. That is not the whole truth. The whole truth is that we have been doing a pretty good job on a pretty difficult problem."

Pellets Fired At Playground Said Accident

Chicago (AP) — Birdshot which a 10-year-old boy told police he fired accidentally broke up a barbecue in a South Side school playground Tuesday.

Pellets spattering off the pavement inflicted minor wounds on three women, two of them Roman Catholic nuns, and seven children.

Police, checking reports of the direction of the fire, went to a third-floor apartment across the street from the Holy Angels Roman Catholic School.

There they found Arturo Lake who said he had been playing on the apartment balcony with his father's shotgun and that it accidentally discharged. He was held for questioning.

The wounded were among about 40 persons attending a Head Start program of the federal anti-poverty campaign. The nuns injured were Sister Donna Marie Sironi, 24, and Sister Eva Marie Ronens, 23.

Bill Punishing Out-Of-Court Publicity Called Premature

Washington (AP)—The Justice Department and news media spokesmen came out strongly Tuesday against a bill to punish any principal in a criminal trial who gives out-of-court publicity that might affect the outcome.

"Premature" was the objection raised by Asst. Atty. Gen. Fred M. Vinson Jr. He told a Senate hearing not enough time has passed to test voluntary guidelines laid down last April 16 by Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach to prevent unfair trials.

Also, Vinson said, he could not "in good conscience" endorse any legislation to deny an accused "the right to speak out in his own defense."

Voluntary Approach

The voluntary approach was supported also by Sam Ragan, a member of the special committee on free press and fair trial of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. He said his group and a similar one of the American Bar Association are jointly seeking answers to resolve any conflicts between a fair trial and freedom of the press.

He mentioned similar studies by the Associated Press Managing Editors Association and the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Ragan, executive editor of the News and Observer and Raleigh Times of Raleigh, N.C., and immediate past president of the Associated Press Managing Editors Association, declared:

"A free press and a fair trial are not incompatible . . . indeed, it is my belief that there cannot be a fair trial without a free press."

No Questions

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., author of the bill with 13 co-sponsors, told the Senators there is no question of freedom of the press in prescribing what information or statements defense or prosecuting attorneys may give out prior to a trial.

He said it would not affect in any way what reporters uncover on their own. It is aimed, Morse said, at prejudicial information given to them by others.

"When it comes to much of this crime news," Morse said, "the press, radio and television serve merely as conduits for what one side or the other wants told about its case."

His bill, Morse said, is "a very modest approach to a very difficult and complicated problem." He said Congress has a responsibility to establish safeguards and not leave the matter in the hands of prosecutors and codes of ethics.

Morse said the events in Dallas, Tex., after President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1963 epitomized "the shortcomings of the voluntary approach."

Contempt Of Court

Morse's bill would make it contempt of court punishable by a $1,000 fine for a federal employe or for a defendant or his attorney to make available for publication any information not properly filed with a court if it might affect the outcome of any pending criminal litigation.

Another witness before Senate judiciary subcommittees on constitutional rights and judicial machinery, opening four days of hearings, was Alfred Friendly, vice president and managing editor of the Washington Post and chairman of the Press-Bar Committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

He said a bar to lawyers, police and prosecutors from uttering anything that might prejudice a future trial might at first glance seem fair enough.

"Yet," Friendly said, "it could easily become a means to lower an iron curtain behind which prejudiced or corrupt police could enjoy invulnerability."

In addition to Tuesday's witnesses, letters in opposition to Morse's bill were submitted by Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and Stanford Smith, general manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Radio Moscow: 2,500 Russians In N. Viet Nam

Tokyo (AP) — Moscow radio told Japanese listeners Tuesday that about 2,500 Russian engineers and experts are in North Viet Nam to help in the industrial development of the country.

The Japanese-language broadcast monitored in Tokyo said nearly 80 big enterprises including mines, hydro-power stations and machine factories have been established or rehabilitated with Soviet help.

It added that Soviet experts were added to North Viet Nam's economic development front in recent years.

4 Die Seeking Legendary Treasure Of Captain Kidd

Oak Island, Nova Scotia (AP)—Four treasure hunters seeking a $30 million gold cache left here — according to legend — by the pirate Captain Kidd died in a gas-choked pit in this isle off the Novia Scotia coast Tuesday.

A fifth man, trying in vain to save his trapped companions, was rescued by a vacationing fireman from New York state and a group of children campers under direction of a teacher from Phillips Exeter Academy in Exeter, N.H.

Police said the victims apparently were overcome by methane gas in one of the many shafts and tunnels made by treasure seekers on the isle since 1795 in quest of the ever-elusive cache. Two other members of the treasure-hunting team remained on the surface.

The dead were Robert Restall, 59, native of Hamilton, Ont., who never gave up a belief that the treasure was there to be found, his son, Robert Jr., 24; Cyril Hiltz, 22, of Martin's Point, N.S.; and Carl Graeser, about 40, a mineralogist from Massapequa, N.Y.

Edward White, a fireman from Clarence, N.Y., vacationing on the island, was lowered into the 27-foot-deep pit by school children and secured a rope around unconscious Andrew DeMone. The children pulled out White and DeMone.

Bill Punishing Out-Of-Court Publicity Called Premature

Washington (AP)—The Justice Department and news media spokesmen came out strongly Tuesday against a bill to punish any principal in a criminal trial who gives out-of-court publicity that might affect the outcome.

"Premature" was the objection raised by Asst. Atty. Gen. Fred M. Vinson Jr. He told a Senate hearing not enough time has passed to test voluntary guidelines laid down last April 16 by Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach to prevent unfair trials.

Also, Vinson said, he could not "in good conscience" endorse any legislation to deny an accused "the right to speak out in his own defense."

Voluntary Approach

The voluntary approach was supported also by Sam Ragan, a member of the special committee on free press and fair trial of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. He said his group and a similar one of the American Bar Association are jointly seeking answers to resolve any conflicts between a fair trial and freedom of the press.

He mentioned similar studies by the Associated Press Managing Editors Association and the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Ragan, executive editor of the News and Observer and Raleigh Times of Raleigh, N.C., and immediate past president of the Associated Press Managing Editors Association, declared:

"A free press and a fair trial are not incompatible . . . indeed, it is my belief that there cannot be a fair trial without a free press."

No Questions

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., author of the bill with 13 cosponsors, told the Senators there is no question of freedom of the press in prescribing what information or statements defense or prosecuting attorneys may give out prior to a trial.

He said it would not affect in any way what reporters uncover on their own. It is aimed, Morse said, at prejudicial information given to them by others.

"When it comes to much of this crime news," Morse said, "the press, radio and television serve merely as conduits for what one side or the other wants told about its case."

His bill, Morse said, is "a very modest approach to a very difficult and complicated problem." He said Congress has a responsibility to establish safeguards and not leave the matter in the hands of prosecutors and codes of ethics.

Morse said the events in Dallas, Tex., after President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1963 epitomized "the shortcomings of the voluntary approach."

Contempt Of Court

Morse's bill would make it contempt of court punishable by a $1,000 fine for a federal employe or for a defendant or his attorney to make available for publication any information not properly filed with a court if it might affect the outcome of any pending criminal litigation.

Another witness before Senate judiciary subcommittees on constitutional rights and judicial machinery, opening four days of hearings, was Alfred Friendly, vice president and managing editor of the Washington Post and chairman of the Press-Bar Committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

He said a bar to lawyers, police and prosecutors from uttering anything that might prejudice a future trial might at first glance seem fair enough.

"Yet," Friendly said, "it could easily become a means to lower an iron curtain behind which prejudiced or corrupt police could enjoy invulnerability."

In addition to Tuesday's witnesses, letters in opposition to Morse's bill were submitted by Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and Stanford Smith, general manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Radio Moscow: 2,500 Russians In N. Viet Nam

Tokyo (AP) — Moscow radio told Japanese listeners Tuesday that about 2,500 Russian engineers and experts are in North Viet Nam to help in the industrial development of the country.

The Japanese-language broadcast monitored in Tokyo said nearly 80 big enterprises including mines, hydro-power stations and machine factories have been established or rehabilitated with Soviet help.

It added that Soviet experts were added to North Viet Nam's economic development front in recent years.

4 Die Seeking Legendary Treasure Of Captain Kidd

Oak Island, Nova Scotia (AP)—Four treasure hunters seeking a $30 million gold cache left here — according to legend — by the pirate Captain Kidd died in a gas-choked pit in this isle off the Novia Scotia coast Tuesday.

A fifth man, trying in vain to save his trapped companions, was rescued by a vacationing fireman from New York state and a group of children campers under direction of a teacher from Phillips Exeter Academy in Exeter, N.H.

Police said the victims apparently were overcome by methane gas in one of the many shafts and tunnels made by treasure seekers on the isle since 1795 in quest of the ever-elusive cache. Two other members of the treasure-hunting team remained on the surface.

The dead were Robert Restall, 59, native of Hamilton, Ont., who never gave up a belief that the treasure was there to be found, his son, Robert Jr., 24; Cyril Hiltz, 22, of Martin's Point, N.S.; and Carl Graeser, about 40, a mineralogist from Massapequa, N.Y.

Edward White, a fireman from Clarence, N.Y., vacationing on the island, was lowered into the 27-foot-deep pit by school children and secured a rope around unconscious Andrew DeMone. The children pulled out White and DeMone.

Car Explodes, Doctor Faints, Samaritan Goes

Grantham, England (AP)—Dr. F. J. Hopkins-Musson had an emergency call, and his car wouldn't start.

Another driver stopped to help, lifted the hood of the doctor's car and lit his cigarette lighter to get a better view of the engine.

There was an explosion and the doctor's automobile was wrapped in flames.

Somebody called the fire department. By the time the fire fighters arrived, the doctor had fainted. His car was ruined—and the Good Samaritan had gone without leaving his name.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

A blue day in Hawaii. Blue sky. Blue water. This is ginger season. The most heavily scented flower of the islands. All the tourists are hung with ginger leis.

They leave a heavy wake of perfumed air.

Like most of the world, Paradise is getting crowded.

There were 18,000 babies in 1962—the last count.

Only 3500 people died—it's a healthy climate.

Haoles — (meaning white Americans or Europeans) — are the largest race group. Japanese are next. And pure Hawaiians are fewest.

* * *

About 80 of every 100 live in Honolulu. The inevitable high rise apartments and hotels crowd the shoreline. (There's a project to add more sand fill to the beach at Waikiki.)

High rise buildings are at the foot of Diamond Head. The green volcano crater you see first and last whether you come by ship or plane.

The island papers teeter on the horns of "save Hawaii" and "don't stand in the way of progress."

I read an editorial this morning about putting apartment houses on Diamond Head.

The journal says it might be all right — "if it is done in good taste." Whatever that is.

Probably like the California proposals to fill in San Francisco Bay. Which, no doubt, will be done in the best possible taste.

* * *

This is the end of the road on the flower island of Kauai. Haena is a cluster of small houses. A few fishing boats. A taro patch.

A family is camped here—a mile of white sand beach all to themselves.

A Hawaii hotel man told me: "People who've been to Hawaii a few times are not even stopping in Honolulu in many cases. They just change planes to get to the outer islands."

Even so, he is now building a 15-story hotel at Waikiki.

"I keep thinking the tourist business will level off," he said. "But it goes up and up and up."

In 1950, there were 60,000 tourists in Hawaii.

This year, it will be 600,000. Aloha! Hello, deh!

* * *

"The grass is always greener etc." Who is running full-page ads in the Honolulu papers but Robert P. McCulloch of Lake Havasu, Arizona.

This is a booming cactus-to-Paradise-in-the-desert promotion. Lakes fed by the Colorado river. A boat hitched to every saguaro cactus.

As pretty as the ads sound, this has got to be desert—the Arizona desert of which there is none more deserty. And how in the — I mean, the Havasu City people have plenty of confidence. To try to sell these lots to the residents of the green, lush islands.

However, I recall that Jim Moran, the publicity man, once sold an icebox to an Eskimo. Just to show it could be done.

* * *

There are 270 people on Niihau. The whole island is owned by the Robinson family who got into the sugar business in early days.

The family maintains Niihau as a sort of game preserve of native Hawaiians. The Niihau people stil speak Hawaiian. Communication is by launch. And no casual visitors are allowed on the island.

PIN-WORMS
A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, nose-picking, a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms...ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . small, easy-to-take tablets . . . special sizes for children and adults.

About 80 of every 100 live in Honolulu. The inevitable high rise apartments and hotels crowd the shoreline. (There's a project to add more sand fill to the beach at Waikiki.)

High rise buildings are at the foot of Diamond Head. The green volcano crater you see first and last whether you come by ship or plane.

The island papers teeter on the horns of "save Hawaii" and "don't stand in the way of progress."

I read an editorial this morning about putting apartment houses on Diamond Head.

The journal says it might be all right — "if it is done in good taste." Whatever that is.

Probably like the California proposals to fill in San Francisco Bay. Which, no doubt, will be done in the best possible taste.

This is the end of the road on the flower island of Kauai. Haena is a cluster of small houses. A few fishing boats. A taro patch.

A family is camped here —a mile of white sand beach all to themselves.

A Hawaii hotel man told me: "People who've been to Hawaii a few times are not even stopping in Honolulu in many cases. They just change planes to get to the outer islands."

Even so, he is now building a 15-story hotel at Waikiki.

"I keep thinking the tourist business will level off," he said. "But it goes up and up and up."

In 1950, there were 60,000 tourists in Hawaii.

This year, it will be 600,000. Aloha! Hello, deh!

"The grass is always greener etc." Who is running full-page ads in the Honolulu papers but Robert P. McCulloch of Lake Havasu, Arizona.

This is a booming cactus-to-Paradise-in-the-desert promotion. Lakes fed by the Colorado river. A boat hitched to every saguaro cactus.

As pretty as the ads sound, this has got to be desert—the Arizona desert of which there is none more deserty. And how in the — I mean, the Havasu City people have plenty of confidence. To try to sell these lots to the residents of the green, lush islands.

However, I recall that Jim Moran, the publicity man, once sold an icebox to an Eskimo. Just to show it could be done.

Here at the end of the road was the home of Pele, the volcano goddess of fire. (She moved here from Niihau island nearby. Now she lives on the Big Island of Hawaii. Whassamatta dat wahine? All mix up.)

There are 270 people on Niihau. The whole island is owned by the Robinson family who got into the sugar business in early days.

The family maintains Niihau as a sort of game preserve of native Hawaiians. The Niihau people stil speak Hawaiian. Communication is by launch. And no casual visitors are allowed on the island.

PIN-WORMS
A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, nose-picking, a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms...ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.
